Niobe.

This comedy-drama, which is to be presented in the Live-on Wednesday evening, April 10th, under the auspices of the Riverton P. O. Club, is being rehearsed with enthusiasm by the cast. All those who avail themselves of the opportunity of attending the play will enjoy a splendid production. Niobe, a Greek statue, is owned by Mr. Tomlin, a collector of antiques, and is being stored in the home of Mr. Peter Amos Dunn, the president of the Insurance Co. in which the statue is insured for $50,000. Late one night, the statue is turned on, while Mr. Dunn's wife and family are at the theatre. Many extremely amusing and interesting complications follow. Plenty of good music between the acts. Bouquet sent on once. Phone 150. Reserved seats $1 and 75c. general admission 50c. Tickets also for sale by the patronesses and at Stiles drug store.

Owing to the recent death of the groom's father, Mr. Matthew Mesler Reese, the invitations have been limited to the relatives and intimate friends.

The P. O. Club held its regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon. The reports of the various committees were unusually interesting, especially that of the Village Improvement Section in regard to the open meeting at which the Mayor and interested citizens were present and gave valuable suggestions on the subjects under discussion. Mrs. Marcy reported for the meeting of the Board of Charities and Corrections of the State of New Jersey, held at Princeton on Monday and Tuesday of this week, for the Social Service Committee.

Senator Gaunt's bill providing for a state apportionment on free and other plan diseases, has been approved by Governor Wilson. It is an act to prevent the introduction and spread of dangerous plan diseases in this State, to authorize the inspection of nurseries and plantations, to provide for certificates of health of plants and a method for compelling the destruction of infected plants.

The executive committee of the State Board of Agriculture is to make the appointment, the officer to be known as the State Plant Pathologist. The salary is not fixed, but it is expected an expert will be secured from Washington at a salary of about $1,500 a year. The bill was prepared by State Entomologist John B. Smith of New Brunswick and State Board of Agriculture, the Forestry Commission and Senator Gaunt, who is member of the State Senate.

A new departure is to be made on Saturday, April 8, in establishing an annual breakfast for this organization. The first one will be held at Newark. A large attendance is expected and subjects of importance to the whole Federation will be discussed.

Riverton Athletic Notes.

There will be a regular business meeting of the Riverton Athletic Association Tuesday evening, April 11th, in Roberts Hall.

A full attendance is desired as arrangements are to be made for the coming season, as well as other important business to be transacted.

It is hoped that all the members will see that their dues are paid by that time, to the secretary, Paul C. Burr, at the office of J. S. Collins & Son.

We also trust that many more will join us in making this the banner year for Riverton on the diamond.

Don't kick but push; let us all do our part, first by being at the meeting, Tuesday evening next.

By order of the President.

Grand Opera at Home.

The Victor Victrola recital, given in the P. O. Club building Tuesday evening by Maurice P. Pinckney, Incorporated, was attended by about forty lovers of music, notwithstanding the inclement weather. The soloists were the storm were well repaid for the first, and expressed themselves as deeply indebted to the gentlemen having charge of the entertainment. The selections were from well-known grand operas, and were exceptionally well rendered. The next recital, on April 12, is being looked forward to with much pleasure.

Keith's Theatre.

Features grave and gay, with abundance of music and novelty, will characterize the vaudeville show at Keith's Theatre during Holy Week, beginning Monday, the 10th. The attractions are notable for the most part in that they are new to this house, but there are other favorites in new offerings.

Andrew Mack, the sweet singer of Irish folk songs, makes a welcome reappearance after a long absence, singing some of his original ballads as well as others that are dear to every son of Erin. Mr. Mack has thousands of friends in and about Philadelphia, not only among his compatriots, but also among all lovers of tender songs which embody the theme of humble life.

Another entertainer who has an immense Quaker City following and who comes to us on this occasion with abundance of new and brilliant material, is Miss Augusta Glose, "The Lady Dancer of Vaudeville," as she has been called, presenting her charming pianologue with spoken songs, stories and witticisms in her irresistible manner. Miss Glose is right in the prime of her admirable talent and fame, and is sure to give us a half-hour's delightful entertainment.

A special attraction for this Holy Week is the celebrated writer, explorer and lecturer, Dr. John C. Bowker, recently honored by being made a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England, who will deliver a short and exceedingly appreciative travelogue—"The Passion Play at O. Cammergau," illustrated with some of the rarest photographs ever taken of this, the world's most solemn drama, colored by the doctor himself from the costumes worn in the various Biblical roles. This is quite an innovation for vaudeville and most fitting for the last week of Lent.

Too Costly. King George III. once wished to add the Green park in London, to his palace grounds, whether the people liked it or not. He inquired of his minister as to the cost.

His lordship, mindful of the general discontent then prevalent, answered: "The cost, sir? Oh, it would be a matter of three crowns!"

The king took the hint. The people kept their park and the sovereign his throne.

Communicated.

The members of the Mixed Minstrel Club wish to apologize to their good patrons for some of the very unpleasant happenings that occurred at their annual minstrel performance on Wednesday evening, April 6.

Of course to those who came to make the most of everything, and to criticize where criticism was not due, simply from a general feeling of dislike and jealousy which exists, particularly in so far as the members of this Club are concerned, they say nothing, for the former, in their petty smallness are not worth considering.

It is but justice to the entire circle to say that some of the material used was unexpected and not with the consent of the Club in general, and they are more than sorry that things developed as they did. If the audience had, as a whole, been of the better class, they would have known what ladies and gentlemen would have done under such trying circumstances.

The Club realizes that a small part was done by out-of-town people, but that they were helped wonderfully by fellows of the town who were waiting for "get even" from purely personal reasons.

These fellows, by their low-down actions, mostly members of a Club in this town, have lost a multitude of friends by their nasty meanness, and have gained absolutely nothing, as the sympathy of the people is with the Mixed Minstrels, who are degraded to have worked before such a disgusting crowd as they were.

(MISS S. FLORENCE POWELL.)

Mixed Minstrels.

The mixed minstrel performance in Morgan Hall Wednesday night was an exhibition of vulgarity on the stage and rowdiness among the audience that has never been equaled in Palmyra.

Their low-down actions, mostly members of a Club in this town, have lost a multitude of friends by their nasty meanness, and have gained absolutely nothing, as the sympathy of the people is with the Mixed Minstrels, who are degraded to have worked before such a disgusting crowd as they were.

Council Meets.

The regular meeting of Council was held last night, President Biddle occupying the chair in the absence of the Mayor. The councilmen present were Messrs. Mattia, Filer and Corner.

The clerk was instructed to draw an order for $250 for the Shade Tree Commission.

The lighting committee reported a request from Palmyra Township that Riverton pay one-half the cost of an arc light to be placed at Broad and Elm avenue. A resolution was passed accepting the proposition.

The fire and water committee reported they had been requested for a fire hydrant on the South side of Broad street, between the freight station and Lippincott and one at Seventh street west of Thomas avenue.

A petition was received asking for the construction of an improved sidewalk on the East side of Midway from Main street, 150 feet more or less. Referred to highway committee.

Frederick Lowden addressed a communication to Council, complaining that leaves, sweepings from lawns and other refuse was being deposited in the gutters of Main and Broad streets, making it very difficult for him to keep these streets clean.

The chairman of the police committee stated that there was an ordinance on the books prohibiting this, and that the officers had been instructed to notify those who violated the ordinance that they were liable to a fine.

The treasurer submitted a list of delinquent taxes.

William Quigley was appointed delinquent tax collector.

The following bills were ordered paid: Louis Corner, work on streets, $85.95; Cinn. Electric Light Co., 72.28; Public Service Gas Co., 178.04; Louis Corner, work on sewer, 2.38; Camden S. D. & T. Co., interest, 21.25; Cinnaminson National Bk., 31.25; C. G. Davis, making returns, 11.00; William Quigley, salary, 50.00; Walter Miller, salary, 50.00.

The meeting was adjourned at April 27.

Address by Prof. Johnstone.

The people of Riverton would do well to avail themselves of the privilege accorded them of hearing Professor Edward R. Johnstone, superintendent of the Institution for Feeble Minded Children, which is located at Vineland, New Jersey. This talk will be given at the Porch Club on Tuesday afternoon, April 18th, at three o'clock, under the auspices of "The Social Service Section" of the Club. This subject bears strongly upon the life-work of Professor Johnstone, and will be interesting to parents, as well as to those who have the future well-being of children at heart.

A hearty welcome will be accorded to parents and friends by members of the Club, who desire to show their appreciation of Professor Johnstone's willingness to come to Riverton, by a large audience.

Grand Opera.

The second Victor Victrola recital of The Riverton Grand Opera Company was a most delightful musical evening. About fifty people embraced this opportunity of listening to the finest music. The programme was varied and attractive.

If other music lovers realized the treat that is in store for them, the Porch Club would be crowded at the next recital on April 20th. This will be an opportunity to hear the highest class of opera music in so realistic a manner, that at the recital remarks were passed such as "It sounds just like her," "Doesn't he sound natural," and various other words of praise.

The Mothers' Circle.

Attention is called to the meeting of the Circle on Thursday, April 20th, at 8.30, at the Public School, at which time Dr. Robert N. Willson, of Philadelphia, will address the Circle on Education of the Young in Social Hygiene.

Dr. Willson has spoken before a number of women's organizations recently on this subject most acceptably, and the Circle is to be congratulated on having him.

The meeting is open to the public and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

An Easter Gift.

The Mother's Circle of Riverton, to which belong a number of residents of Palmyra, have sent to the State Institute for the Insane at New Lisbon, New Jersey, one hundred chocolate Easter eggs for distribution among those patients who will be capable of appreciating such a gift on Easter Day.

Tuesday evening, April 18th, Rev. James T. Good, D. D., of Philadelphia, will deliver a stereopticon lecture on Japan in the Presbyterian Chapel. Dr. Good will use slides made from the photographs he himself took while travelling in Japan. As he speaks from first hand knowledge this lecture ought to be of intensely interesting to you. A nominal charge of twenty cents is made to cover expenses.

At an early hour this morning one of the men employed by J. S. Collins & Son, who went to the stable early to do the feeding, found an unconscious man in a stall with one of their horses. Upon investigation the man proved to be Isaac Smith and it is thought that he was intoxicated and crawled in there for the night, and the horse trampled upon him. He was in a serious condition, having a hole in his head, his ankle broken, and a number of other serious bruises. He was taken to the West Jersey Hospital this morning. Marshall Miller assisted in getting Smith out of the stable and to the train.

Riverton A. A. Notes.

The season will be opened on May 6th on which date it is hoped to have a strictly first class team to battle against, so that we will be able to show our worth and be in condition for the League season, which will be opened with Field Club of Palmyra on June 3rd. All during the month of May only first class teams will be scheduled so that we will be able to present a formidable team for the opening date.

Saturday, April 15th, will be general practice and it is hoped that all those who care to be considered candidates will be on hand and help to make this year one of grand success, and if possible better than that of the year 1910.

Most of last year's players will be on hand again, but a pitcher and catcher will have to be secured from the candidates. Howard Hercher's brother is an aspirant for the pitching honors this year and feels that he will be able to fill the shoes of Howard and thus maintain the reputation of Riverton on the diamond during the year 1911.

Howard Hercher left last week for Fall River, Mass., where he will make his debut into Minor League ball, and here's hoping that he will be able to work his way into big league company. All those who desire to try for the team be sure to come out this Saturday and give the Club encouragement by your attendance at the practice games which will be held for the next three Saturdays, the 29th of April being the last day for practice.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

Special services will be held next Sabbath in commemoration of the Resurrection of Jesus as follows:

10.45 a. m., morning worship and sermon with special Easter music by the choir.

2.30 p. m., Bible School. Instead of having special exercises in the evening as heretofore the School will have their Easter exercises at the time of the regular session. Parents and friends cordially invited.

8.00 p. m., special illustrated sermon for which the stereopticon lantern will be used to throw on the screen some of the world-famous paintings on "The Risen Jesus."

The Easter season as the celebration of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ is one of the most important festivals in the calendar of the church and not only ought every member be present but also as many others as possible. This season is especially a fitting time to make a new start if you have been careless heretofore.

Wednesday, 8.00 p. m., the regular weekly meeting for all members of the congregation. The subject for next week will be "The appearances of the Risen Christ." Come and bring someone with you.

Rev. J. G. Noordewier and Dr. Alex. Marcy, Sr., represented Calvary Presbyterian Church at the regular spring meeting of the Presbytery of Monmouth at Beverly. Rev. P. A. Houghtaling and Mr. James Hemphill were also present at the meeting. Calvary Church was highly commended for the large proportion of non-members attending its services.

Members take notice. Next year we also want to be commended because of regularity of attendance on the part of the members. This means you.

J. G. NOORDIEWER, Pastor.

Medical Society Meets.

The regular meeting of The Burlington County Medical Society was held on Wednesday evening of recent, the 12th, at The Inn, Brown's Mills-in the Pines. After the regular routine of business was completed Dr. Alex. Marcy, Jr., chairman of the section on the Practice of Medicine, having arranged a program "The Present Status of Serum Therapy" was discussed in a paper by Dr. Peter Boyens, of Riverton; and the Practical Application of Serum Therapy in the Prevention and Treatment of diphtheria and typhoid fever in a paper by Dr. Joseph Stokes, of Moorestown; and the Practical Application of Serum Therapy in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Tuberculosis in a paper by Dr. Boach Hollingshead, of Pemberton—all able papers. Dr. Elmer, of Moorestown, and others discussed some new remedies and their uses and methods in the treatment of special serious ailments. Dr. Marcy, chairman of a committee appointed to interview the Board of Preholders with a view to increasing the fee from $2 to $5, for service in insane commitments, reported that on the plea that there was no increase of appropriation to meet the requirement in such cases, the Board laid the proposition on the table—just where it is likely to slumber. It was suggested that if the Board could with impunity exceed the annual appropriation by $20,000 it might have strained the point a little farther and granted the request. It was also said that the fee for service to the coroners should be increased from $3 to $5 per view. The members of the Society were highly in favor of substituting County Commissioners for Preholders; a sentiment which is gaining favor very rapidly.

RESOLUTION

Whereas Article No. 120, page 53, School Law of New Jersey, provides that a Board of Education may exclude from school any teacher or pupil who shall not have been successfully vaccinated or re-vaccinated, unless such teacher or pupil shall present a certificate signed by a regularly licensed physician that such teacher or pupil is an unfit subject for vaccination. Therefore be it

Resolved that the Board of Education of the Borough of Riverton will require every teacher or pupil to produce satisfactory evidence to the Medical Inspector of successful vaccination within five (5) years, or in lieu thereof submit to vaccination at once.

Furthermore, that any teacher or pupil not complying with the above resolution by September 1st, 1911, will be excluded from school.

Artisans Notes.

On Monday evening, April 10, as per announcement, was held at society hall, the preliminary meeting for the purpose of organizing a new assembly to be known as Palmyra Assembly No. 65, Artisan Order of Mutual Protection.

The meeting proved a decided success. M. B. M. A. Hope W. Corson and Recorder William B. Patton gave able discourses on the objects and principles of the organization together with comparative tables showing the financial advantage of being an Artisan.

The interest of the men present being centered in knowing in detail the several points of advantage over other insurance organizations, spent the balance of the evening in asking direct questions, all of which received satisfactory answers.

Before the close of the meeting the invitation was extended to those who desired to join to sign their names on the list of members.

It is the desire of the committee to secure as many men as possible to place their names on the charter in order that "Palmyra 65" shall be a banner assembly.

We would therefore ask every man who has a desire to know more about this good organization that cares for the families of its members to get in touch with the committee who will be pleased to furnish convincing literature on the subject.

There will be another preliminary meeting at the call of the chair, after which the assembly will be instituted about May 1st.

Everybody come along; bring your friends; it will do you good.

GEO. M. HARRIS, Chairman, Riverton.

F. W. LUTZ, Secretary, Palmyra.

Field Club Notes.

The Field Club will open its season on Saturday with the strong Steison Club, of Philadelphia, and as usual when these two teams meet it will be for blood.

The Field Club will present several changes in its line-up and also will try out some of the young stars, who are anxious to show us all they have in their system, so don't forget to come out and see this game as all indications point to one of the best games of the season.

Base Ball.

Durgin and Holt will probably start the game for the locals.

Join the Roovers' Club. It organizes this Saturday.

It shows the spirit of the players when even mail can't stop them. Last Saturday the regulars again trimmed the young'uns, but the youngsters claim they were wrong in being out of it had not been for the hail.

Don't forget to come out and look over the youngsters who are breaking into big league society; they need your encouragement.

Game called at 3.30 p.m. Admission 15c.

A Story of the Civil War.

Fifty years ago on April 12, 1861, Fort Sumter was fired upon.

In this semi-centennial year The Inquirer will print a continued story of the momentous events of that period which altered the history of this country if not of the entire world.

The entire narrative of the great conflict, as told by war correspondents of The Philadelphia Inquirer in the field from 1861 to 1865, will be retold with historical accuracy in the light of later developments.

The Inquirer will tell the entire story of the war in the next three months. A full page every Sunday will describe in their order the great battles of the war, while the intervening articles will deal with the details of the war.

The Inquirer will make a connected story, covering the entire conflict.

Do not miss this highly instructive and entertaining history, which will be a daily and Sunday feature in The Inquirer during the next three months of this semi-centennial year.

The Civil War will be the great topic of the year and those who aim to be well informed will read these articles of inestimable value.

If you are not now a regular reader you had better leave your order at once for both the daily and Sunday Inquirer.

D. A. Z.

The Annie Stockton Chapter, D. A. R. of New Jersey, were entertained April 7 by Mrs. David G. Baird at her home in Beverly, the occasion being the fourth anniversary of the organization of the Chapter.

An informal reception was given to prominent members of the National Congress and State Chapter.

Among those present and who addressed the assembly were: Mrs. William Libbey, of Princeton, State Regent; Miss Ellen Matlack, of Woodbury; Mrs. L. William Sherrard, of Haddonfield; Miss B. Massey, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Alex. May, Jr., gave an account of the Chapter's organization, and Mrs. R. S. Williams an address on the history of the flag.

Mrs. Plaig, of Philadelphia, sang several selections in her usual charming style.

The toasts by Mrs. Libbey, Mrs. E. B. Howell, Miss Massey and Mrs. Plaig were particularly appropriate and received warm applause.

The officers of the Chapter are, Regent Mrs. Harriet N. M. Hancock, Vice-Regent Mrs. Sara B. Bitchler, Registrar Mrs. David G. Baird, Secretary Mrs. Frederick Blackburn, Treasurer Miss Bessie B. Warwick.

Field Club Minstrels.

This is the last call and next Thursday and Friday will show what the minstrel troupe has in store for their friends and supporters.

A Protest.

Are the Mixed Minstrels as a whole or as individuals afraid to answer "Modesty," the modest one, who is neither lady or gentleman, for if it were the former, she would not even mention jokes that were considered immoral, or if it were the latter he would not willingly discuss a club so "off-handly" that included ladies as well as gentlemen.

If "Modesty" is a gentleman and not a cad and a coward, we challenge him to come hiding behind a silly cognomen and tell his ideals and morals to the public openly.

He would surely be more respected and admired. Any person who would write such a disgraceful and vicious letter is beneath our contempt. If this man is a gentleman, he will publicly apologize to this Club for the injustice and unfairness he has done them.

He asks "Who are the Mixed Minstrels?" Well, we will tell him who some of the members are, and perhaps he will then realize that he could never aspire to their class.

The interlocutor was Mr. George C. Wallace, secretary of the Green Street Church, Philadelphia; Mr. Edwin L. Powell, soloist of the Church of the Good Samaritan, Paoli, Pa.; Mr. Seward B. Lisk, soloist of the Presbyterian Church, Riverton; Mr. Jack Hughes, Captain of the Baraca Class, Palmyra, etc., etc.

If "Modesty" would have only adhered to facts in his communication it would have received less scolding and been more convincing.

The very beginning he made was down right in his heart that it was untrue that the show began with vulgarity and ended with vulgarly; the question is, what did we ever do to him? for it is plain to be seen that some personal grudge has crept into his criticism.

"Modesty" shows what kind of stock he comes from when he approves of the disgraceful conduct of some of the audience; is he, we wonder, in the same class that some of those "boys who are boys" are? Which is the better, a crowd of refined people giving a list of jokes that they have gotten from the best light operas in town (of course it is plain to be seen that "Modesty" in his modesty never attended any shows but the moving picture ones, hence his biased opinions and narrow mindness), or a crowd of fellows whose morals are indecent and who are known to be sworn under bond to keep the peace for some of the serious offences they have committed? Who are those that dare pose as angels and criticize people who are their superiors both physically and mentally? All these fellows are capable of it to discuss the weather and the girls on the street corners and other lounging places in town.

Any young lady who is so modest that she will not publicly admit right from wrong in afflicted with a disease known as false modesty, and the least said about her is the best, for she in her narrow mindness in the serious side of life would be too weak and cowardly to live up to her ideals, and that is not the kind of material noble womanhood and manhood is developed from.

Mr. Cline and his sketch were received with as much confusion as the rest of the show and let us right here say that he was not misled into being in this show.

He volunteered his services and suggested a sketch. Was there any misleading? If these boys of the town were as angelic and sweet as they are being painted by "Modesty" why didn't they give this part of the program respectful attention? Why, because as we have said before, the idea to make trouble was premeditated and they were only fulfilling that intention.

We imagine about then was "Modesty's" bed time and he went to sleep and missed this part of the show.

"Who gets the profits of the show?" Well, who wants to know? If "Modesty" will come forward from his lair, we will tell him in about five consecutive words whose business that is, and perhaps then he will be sorry he meddled with one question that did not concern him.

If he devoted as much attention to his own affairs as he is so freely giving to those of others, he and others would be gainers.

We, indirectly, bear that this communication came from a business man in Riverton. That is a joke. A business man has no time to devote to minstrel affairs; the groups of these are left to the sewing societies and the biddy-bodies. It is surely a case of "If other people, as modest as 'Modesty' what a heaven this earth would be."

If some of these people who are criticizing so harshly could see themselves as others see them, they would not believe in their own eyes, but they would have a right to be of opinion of the rest of the world that they have.

All we have to say is this, we are going to make it our business to find out who "Modesty" is and then proceed with our actions. Let us tell him in the very beginning this is something that for once has just begun and not ended and, furthermore, we will ignore any more communications that are not signed with the person's full signature, for if we cannot trust with people freely and openly and vice versa, we will not deal with people who assume such "Nick Carter" aliases.

Those confirmed by the Bishop on Thursday night will receive first communion on Easter morning.

Grand Opera at Chestnut Street Opera House.

Philadelphia is to have its first popular-price grand opera season in a long time, beginning Monday, April 24th, when the Aborn English Grand Opera Company will inaugurate an engagement of four weeks at the Chestnut Street Opera House.

This organization numbers one hundred and twenty-five in its double cast, chorus and orchestra, and four other duplicate organizations under the direction of Milton and Sargent Aborn, will be located at the same time in Boston, Brooklyn, Baltimore and Washington for the Spring season. Complete productions for all the operas presented will be transferred from one of these companies to the other each week, and principal artists will be interchanged in the same way, so that each role will be assigned to the singer best suited to it.

Two sets of principals will appear each week, so that each one will be required to appear at no more than four performances during the week, as each will be eight successive performances of each opera.

For the opening week, beginning Monday, April 24th, the company will present Puccini's masterpiece, "Madam Butterfly," with Dora Lee Phillippe Regina, Luciano, John, Henry Taylor, Morton, John, Rudolph Koch, Saul Roselle, Z. E. Fulton, Fred Chapman and others in the cast, with Carlo Nicoli as conductor and Edward P. Temple as stage director.

The second week will be given to "La Traviata," the third to the first production in English in this country, of Massenet's opera, "Thais," and the fourth to Puccini's "La Boheme."

There will be no matinee and two matinee performances each week, the prices for evenings and Saturday matinees being 25 cents up to $1.00, while those for the popular Wednesday matinees will be 25, 50 and 75 cents. The subscription books will be opened on Monday, April 14th, for those who desire to secure the same seats for a certain performance each week, and the regular advance sale for all performances will open on Monday, April 17.

Keith's Theatre.

A grand Easter week bill is the vanguard offering at Keith's Theatre beginning with Monday, the 17th. The program is extraordinary from many points of view.

Edward Ables and Company present their charming comedy of domestic life, "He tried to be nice." The story deals with a "couch" of a husband who reads an article in a morning paper which softens his heart toward his better half. The complications which ensue are really very amusing and there is a surprising twist.

Joseph Hirt presents his latest comedy and sentimental creation called, "A night in a Turkish Bath." This is full of humor and extraordinary situations, for scene taking place in a New York establishment, there being eight people in the cast, each representing a distinct type of metropolitan life. This is one of the best sketches that has appeared in vaudeville for many a day.

Miss Lillian Shaw secretly needs an introduction here. She is a young actress of unusual character type. Miss Shaw stands quite at the head of her class.

Occur Lorraine makes a welcome "variety" of character impersonations of the great comedians, not only as a variety, but as a masterpiece of the great musical life, to upon his violin, but drawing in the character of each one of the historic men in music. These include Josquin, Sebastian, Ole Bull and others of the first ranks in the world of melody. This is a feature that is sure to delight critics and business.

What may be regarded as the world's leading bicycle maker is the Aurora Troupe, recently imported after having attained well deserved fame in nearly every cap of Europe. These people do with easy grace feats that other performers in their line dare not attempt. This is truly a great aggregation of performers.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS.

CHAPTER I.

POUL PLAY.

It was a wild night in March. The great trees in Hushy park creaked and groaned and swept their bare arms through the air as if they were blind giants fighting invisible foes. The night was dark, for the sky was full of clouds, but no rain fell.

In Chestnut avenue no vehicles were to be seen, and Guy Lorrimer had met no one on his way from Hampton Court. He was just congratulating himself on escaping without a wetting when he suddenly stopped short in his stride. He had heard, and he knew it was the sound of the shot had come.

He had only gone about forty yards when he heard a cry. The sound came from his left, from the direction of the avenue, and almost at the same time he saw the figure of a man steal from under the shadow of the trees and dart across the avenue. Guy rushed after him and kept him in sight till he was swallowed up by the trees on the right side of the avenue. Here it was impossible to follow with any hope of success, for the fugitive had nothing to do but to step behind one of the trees and wait till the pursuer had blundered by. Besides, Guy thought to himself, if any one has been shot he must be attended to at once.

He ran back, shouted and waited for some answering cry. A woman's voice came clear and full, called out, "Here!" He ran to the spot and found a man lying on full length on the ground. A woman, whose face was covered with a veil, knelt at the man's side, supporting his head on her arm.

"What has happened?" cried Guy breathlessly. "He is not dead, is he?"

"No, he is not dead, but I fear he is dangerously hurt."

Guy started. This was a lady of some social position, if anything could be judged from the tones of the voice. What was such a woman doing here at such an hour?

"I will run for a doctor, if you will kindly wait here till I come back," said Guy. "By the way," he added, "were you here when the shot was fired?"

"No. I came up as you told me."

"Did you come from the Tiddington end of the avenue?"

"What business is that of yours?" The lady's tone was proud, contemptuous, menacing. Guy was certain that he had heard that voice before.

"Rather an odd thing for a lady to take a stroll in the park," Guy thought to himself, but he only turned to the lady and asked, "Are you conscious, my poor fellow?"

A man was the only answer.

"I am going for a doctor and a policeman," said Guy. "Keep up your courage. I shall be back presently."

"Take me home. Fetch a cab and take me home," said the wounded man, with more energy than Guy had thought he possessed. "There's no need for a policeman."

Guy set off without waiting to hear more, but he had gone only a few hundred yards when he met a park keeper, who told him that the man he was looking for was lying on the ground. It looks very much like an attempt at murder," said he. "But the first thing to do is to get the wounded man home. Get a cab as quick as you can and take him to the hospital. There's no need for a policeman."

Guy, answering for him, "Can you take him to a bed on a ground floor? I am afraid he cannot bear being carried upstairs."

The girl made no reply, but her white face became yet paler as she turned and led the way into the little sitting room. Out of this a bedroom opened, and, having made some hasty arrangements for the reception of the patient, she went back and helped the two men to carry him through the narrow passage and doorway.

No sooner was he laid on the bed than she fainted away.

"Have you any brandy in the house?" asked Guy, turning to the girl.

She fetched what was wanted and he managed to pour a little of the spirit down the man's throat with a spoon. After a minute or two the patient opened his eyes and looked wildly around him. His eyes fell on the girl, who had dropped on her knees at the side of the bed, and a softer expression came into his gaze.

"Nora, my girl, it's all up with your poor old dad," he said, and for answer she could only hide her face, while a dry sob burst from her lips.

"What's the matter, doctor?" said Guy in an anxious whisper. "It is too soon to give up hope. He may not be so badly hurt as he thinks."

"If so be that you could fetch a glass of brandy, I would be very much obliged to you," said the doctor, who was now pronounced Irish accent than he had yet used. Guy feared that this was a bad sign, but he got from Nora the best directions he could and sent the cabman for a priest, while he himself ran for a doctor.

The doctor luckily was at home. He returned with Guy, and when he had made a short examination of the wounded man he merely bowed to the wound in a superficial way and gave Nora some simple directions.

Then he went into the outer room, and Guy followed him.

"Can you see the man in a more pronounced Irish accent than he had yet used, but he got from Nora the best directions he could and sent the cabman for a priest, while he himself ran for a doctor."

the public had sufficient curiosity to be present. But there was one man who presented a striking figure and attracted Guy's attention at once.

He was an aristocrat, every inch of him, from his snarling trimmed grey hair to the tip of his patent leather shoe. He was dressed in a suit of the latest generation, but evidently retaining a keen interest in the present. His face was thin, white and well shaped; his eyes keen, bright and quietly alert. He wore the table of a lady, and you'll find a bit of a box. Open it and the key."

Guy obeyed, and at the bottom of the box, covered with a miscellaneous collection of shabby clothing, he came up on a packet in a large, stout envelope. It was addressed to "Nora Kildare," and immediately underneath the name were the following words: "To be opened by my daughter Nora after my death."

"Open it," said the sick man. Guy tore off the envelope, and there appeared a great mass of old writing and a second envelope containing papers. The old time Guy was giving his evidence the stranger kept his keen blue eyes fixed on his face, totally ignoring the contents of the envelope and then to stare him out of countenance.

When the revolver was produced the aristocratic looking stranger exerted himself to get a sight of it and make it was unusual.

"Now, will you do me and my little girl a great favor? Will you earn the blessings of a dying man?"

Guy said bluntly: "What is it you want me to do? I don't give any absolute promise till I know what it is."

"Then why make such a fuss about it?"

The dying man's eyes took on an expression of cunning which changed to a look of intense earnestness in one of regret and resignation.

"Sure, I intended that it would be a bit of a provision for the young girl till she could come by a husband and a home. I'm sure you'll find it useful. I'm too near another world to play with the devil again. So you take it and deliver it."

"But to whom?" The packet bore no name.

"Sure I'm after telling you," said the sick man fretfully. "On the third night from this at 10 o'clock you'll go to Hushy park, going in by the Tiddington gate. You'll find a man waiting and you'll meet a lady with a veil on."

CHAPTER IV.

THE TRYST.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock that night Guy entered Chestnut avenue by the Tiddington gate. It was a dark night, and there was some fog. The avenue was quite deserted. He walked on slowly, keeping to the right hand side of the broad highway till he had passed the spot at which Molly had told him the meeting would take place, and as yet he had met no one.

After pausing for a moment he retraced his steps, but the only person he passed was a stout elderly man wearing a short overcoat and a muffled about his neck. Again he turned and walked at a leisurely pace in his original direction, peering through the fog for the lady who, Molly had told him, would meet him. But no woman was to be seen. Once more he passed the trying place, and then he saw some one moving toward him. It was the elderly gentleman returning. Just as he approached Guy he stopped, and picking up something that was lying on the ground, he said in a courteous tone, "Is this your handkerchief, sir?" Guy felt in his pocket and answered "No."

"Then I suppose the old saw, 'Findings are keepings,' applies," he said, putting the handkerchief into his own pocket. "I did not expect to find you mixed up in an affair of this kind, Mr. Lorrimer," said the stranger.

"So far as I am concerned—between you and me, that is—it is so," he replied.

The elderly gentleman, whose attitude had suggested his moving on, immediately stood still. He and Guy looked at each other in silence.

"I did not expect to find you mixed up in an affair of this kind, Mr. Lorrimer," said the stranger.

The Field Club Auxiliary will meet next Thursday evening in the Club room. The members are all requested to be present as there is much business of importance to be transacted, among which are arrangements for the rainbow fair to be held May 6th. This meeting was postponed from the third until the fourth Thursday in the month, owing to the mistral show last night.

The Fire Company made a quick response to an alarm turned in from the vicinity of Parry avenue and Henry street last Tuesday. Fortunately, however, their services were not needed. Some boys were burning off the tall grass on one of the lots and, owing to the high wind, feared the flames would get beyond their control. They sent in the alarm and then returned to their task of burning out the flames and succeeded before the apparatus arrived.

A surprise party was given to Miss Beatrice Freed, of Morgan avenue, on April 13. Among those present were: Miss Beatrice Taylor and Miss Ellen Barnes, of Philadelphia; Misses Beatrice Hunt, Eleanor McCuen, Dorothy Sharp, Ida Wilbraham, Agnes Donaghy, Lorna Bates, Mildred Rogers; Messrs. Earl McCuen, Horace Reber, William Butler, Horace McConnell, Nathan Bailey, Irvin Donaghy, Robert Blackner, Russell Hargreaves, Louisa Rogers, Morgan, Harriet Freed, Harvey Rogers.

"Pioneers Night" was observed by the P. O. S. of A. on Monday by about two hundred members who were present to greet the original members who were the founders of this lodge eighteen years ago. Prof. A. S. Griffith made the address of welcome to the founders. A program was arranged of music and addresses on the good points of the Order, the progress that Camp No. 23 had made and the prominence it had attained on account of having the largest membership in the State. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Telephone Franchise Revoked. At the meeting of the Township Committee last Tuesday evening ordinance No. 74, revoking the franchise of the Burlington County Telephone Co., and ordinance No. 75, revoking the franchise of the Eastern Telegraph and Telephone Co., were unanimously passed.

Ordinance No. 73, providing for the construction of sidewalks on portions of Cunningham avenue, Columbia avenue and Highland avenue, was also passed.

A resolution was passed authorizing the Committee to establish a Shade Tree Commission under an act of the Legislature passed March 28, 1893.

The clerk was instructed to write to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Public Service Corporation, requesting them to keep down the weeds along their lines this summer.

A. J. Jurmed to meet April 22.

Field Club Minstrels. A full and generous applause greeted the annual minstrel show of the Field Club last evening in Morgan Hall.

The curtain first rose on the members of the circle as they stood to sing "King Chanticleer" and from that time until the end of the performance the audience showed that they were immensely pleased with the work. The songs deserve special mention as they were well selected and the voices had been carefully trained. The men made a hit with their jokes and the original topical songs brought down the house.

One of the jokes concerned the audience that Keith's is not able to secure as intelligent trained animals as Palmyra has living here. The sketches were better than usual, being full of mirth and interest all the way through. William Miller gave a singing and talking sketch, which showed ability along that line and was much appreciated. The duet by George and Vincent Brill, was well received.

Keith's Theatre. A bill of attractions which practically marks the close of the winter and the beginning of the summer season in Camden is the wonderful aggregation of talent which will be enjoyed at Keith's Theatre during the last week of the month, beginning with Monday, the 24th. It is a very strong program and one that is sure to bring crowded houses.

Amelia Stone, the well-known comic opera star, appears in a one-act opera, entitled, "Man Amour," written by Edgar Allen Wood, and presented in most sumptuous style. Miss Stone is assisted by the well-known composer and musical comedy star, Mr. Armand Kalisz. In New York recently, this splendid feature was received with the highest praises, more particularly on account of the charming music by Mr. Kalisz and the superb stage setting and costumes. As one New York critic said: "Miss Stone is to be heartily congratulated upon having achieved a genuine production of the highest class." It will undoubtedly make a big hit here as it has done elsewhere.

A new play that has been making a strong impression upon New York and Boston is presented by the Gordon-North Amusement Co. and entitled "The Son of Solomon," in which speaking horse comedically the eminent eccentric character comedian, H. H. Herbert, appears in most leading role, with the distinguished support of Miss Margot Williams and Mr. Thomas A. Everett. The playlet was written by the well-known author, Aaron Hoffman, and staged by Ben Teal, the veteran producing stage manager for Charles Frohman.

The weather doesn't stay put long enough for either the Weather Bureau or the goosebore to get any satisfaction out of the forecast.

Baptist Church Notes. Friday evening at 8 o'clock the Boys Brigade meets in the basement of the church for instruction and drill, under the command of Captain Royal Jones.

Friday afternoon at 3.30 the boys and girls meeting. This is a meeting of the children, for the children, led by the children.

Next Sunday morning at 10.45 o'clock the regular morning service of worship. Bi le School at 2.30 p. m. Classes to suit all ages and developments including the Thilow Baraca Class for young men of 16 years of age or over; the Thilow Baraca Class for all young women, taught by Mrs. Stager; the organ-d mixed class taught by Pastor Steinmetz and the Junior Baraca Class for all boys not connected with some Bible School between the age of 14 and 18 years; also the primary department where the children receive instruction under the care of Mrs. E. C. Hinkel and her corps of teachers; the cradle roll for all young to attend and the home department for those who cannot attend. This thoroughly equipped and well-organized Bible School invites you to be one of its members.

The evening service of worship at 7.30 consisting of a short inspiring song service followed by the regular preaching service.

Pastor Steinmetz will preach at both the morning and evening services.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the regular weekly prayer service of the church. You are welcome to all of the above services.

REV. SAMUEL STEINMETZ.

Christ Church, Palmyra.

At the annual parish election of Christ Church the following gentlemen were chosen to serve on the vestry for the ensuing year: senior warden, Herbert M. Morris; junior warden, Joseph W. Richards; vestrymen, C. C. Bushard, C. P. Falgouty, Milton B. Pounce, William H. Keen and Charles Durgin.

At the vestry meeting held subsequently Milton B. Pounce was elected secretary and William H. Keen treasurer.

Milton B. Pounce, J. Morris Thompson, W. C. Shinn, C. C. Bushard, H. M. Morris and H. C. Ghegan were named to represent the parish at the Diocesan Convention to be held at St. James Church, Atlantic City, on May 9 and 10.

Sunday next will be Low Sunday, the octave of Easter. At the morning service at 11 o'clock the Easter music will be repeated. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 8 a. m. Choral evensong at 8 p. m.

Points for the Motorists—How Tires should be Washed.

Washing tires and washing a car are two different propositions. Water alone should be used to wash tires and as little of it as necessary. After every run the tire should be wiped clean with a damp sponge or well-wrung cloth.

A common mistake made by motorists is to mix kerosene with the water. This may be advisable when washing the body of a car to remove mud and dust from the varnish, but it should never be done when washing tires because kerosene acts as a solvent.

This and many other phases of the tire question are intimately covered in the "Book of Bileadun" sent free to motorists upon request by the Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey.

10.30 a. m., litany and sermon by the pastor.

7 p. m., Christian Endeavor meeting led by Mrs. John Bauer. Subject "Sabbath Sanctity."

7.30 p. m., song service and sermon by the pastor.

You are all cordially invited to worship with us.

REV. P. S. MEINERT.

Palmyra H. S. Notes.

The Palmyra High School team opened the sea on last Friday at Moorestown, where they defeated the High School team 9-4.

Next Friday they will play the Philadelphia High School team on Friday at the Bordentown High, both games at Palmyra. There's good material in the team and as soon as the boys have played together a little they will make a splendid showing.

Too Cold For the Candle. It is a cold climate in which a flame cannot keep itself warm. One of the scientists attached to the Vesey expedition has personally told of the effect of intense cold on a wax candle that he tried to burn. The temperature was 35 degrees below zero, and the effects were felt not only by the members of the expedition, but even by the candle in question. It gave forth no cheery light such as might have been expected from it in other circumstances, and when it came to be examined it was found that the flame had all it could do to keep itself warm. The air was so cold that the flame was not powerful enough to melt all the wax of the candle, but was compelled to eat its way down, leaving a skeleton structure of wax in the form of a hollow cylinder. Inside this cylinder the wick burned with a tongue of yellow fire, and here and there the heat was sufficient to perforate the outer covering and leave holes of odd shapes which turned the cylinder into a tube of lacelike wax, through the holes in which the light shone with a strange, weird beauty.—St. Louis Republic.

The superior man is satisfied and composed; the mean man is always full of distress.—Confucius.

Led by the Nose. An analytical chemist was retained as a skilled witness some years ago where there were questions of analytical chemistry. There was one case where a farmer had bought some artificial manure, and he was being sued for the price of it. He related payment on the ground that the material had none of the qualities of manure at all. The expert chemist was one of the witnesses and had stated that, although the substance had the smell, it had none of the chemical qualities of manure. Under cross examination he was asked, if that was so, how did he account for hundreds of the best farmers having taken the manure for many years. "They must have been led by the nose," returned the witness.—Dundee Advertiser.

GOD, NATURE AND MAN

By Bishop SAMUEL FALLOWS.
At St. Paul's Reform Episcopal Church, Chicago.

In a beautiful allegory drawn from agriculture the prophet Isaiah in the twenty-eighth chapter of his prophecy shows the varied manner in which God works in the realm of nature and of humanity. He teaches the husbandman how to study the soil and the grain and adapt his methods to secure the most abundant harvest. He teaches man how to study the divine methods he adopts from age to age to make known his truth. These methods are as changing and multiplied as the unfolding needs and necessities of mankind demand.

The most impressive feature in the teachings of the prophet is the emphasis placed upon the tilling of the ground. The Jews of old were pre-eminently an agricultural people. The cruel treatment they have received through the so-called Christian centuries has made them almost aliens to the pursuit of their forefathers. We in the twentieth century can well afford to go back in thought to the time of Isaiah and learn some of the divine principles of husbandry and farming which the science of our age so fully establishes.

In the devout language of the prophet it is God that is man's instructor in making the earth bring forth its products. It has been the belief of nearly all nations that the divinities themselves invented and suggested the cultivation of the ground.

The Malthusian doctrine declares that population increases in geometrical ratio, while food increases in an arithmetical progression; hence the necessity of pestilence, famine, war and the like to sweep men from the globe; hence, further, the necessity and the duty to repress the growth of population—to commit race suicide.

The doctrine is utterly false if God is taken into the account. It is because the devil has been made to usurp his place that it has the semblance of truth. God never contradicts himself. He still teaches us as he did the Jewish people. "As arrows" is the hand of a mighty man, so are children of youth. Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them."

Thank God there is no necessity of introducing heathen teachings and customs into the modern world, or of this Moloch of political economy. But we must be obedient to the instruction of the Heavenly Father that there may be an abundance of provisions for all the children of men and human love.

Two blades of grain must be produced where there was but one before. Intensive agriculture must be carried on in scientific ways. The shamefully wasteful methods of tilling the soil in our own country must be ended.

The average yield of wheat to the acre in the entire country is a little more than twelve bushels. It can be and ought to be thirty bushels. We can make our cornfields yield more than a hundred bushels to the acre by proper care.

We must stop the further fearful waste of the downy mildew and repair the well-nigh irreparable damage already done by planting suitable trees in suitable soils. We must thus restore to the beds of former innumerable streams which are now as dry as summer dust the waters which once gave life and fruitfulness to the lands through which they flowed and filled the air with the music of machinery.

The selfish greedily few who have been the cause of this waste by spoliation of the earth must be forever prohibited from further wrongdoing. God comes to the twentieth century with a new message, with a new revelation. His watchword is conservation—conservation of all our natural resources, conservation of human life in all its myriad aspects.

He comes anew to proclaim through the inventive genius of the age, to meet the necessities of his children, the great truth of an adequate and just distribution of the earth's yieldings and the productions of man's skill and labor. The wisdom that cometh from above is needed to meet and master the intricate and perplexing questions involved in the momentous problem.

Let no man sneer at the thought that divine guidance is needed that injustice may not be done in determining the duties, the rights and the privileges of all concerned in this supreme subject of transportation. There will be food enough produced for every opening mouth if God's commands are obeyed.

How to satisfy the hungry with bread to be brought to him is an imperative demand. No more must corn be burned for fuel in Illinois when there are tens of thousands of men and women and children who are hungry for it in other portions of our land. Multiply the means of conveyance. Stretch out the parallel lines of steel in all directions. Let them penetrate to the remotest regions of our continent.

Let justice and fairness rule in dealing with their management. Let encouragement and not discouragement be given by the respective states and the nation. Develop our waterways to the utmost. Broad open upon those waters shall be found after many days.

Let religiousness, which is the deepest thing of our nature, be brought uppermost in dealing with all these matters so vital to human welfare. Have God always in all our thoughts and man's true interests will always be conserved.

Directions in London.

In London and throughout the tight little island of Great Britain "up" and "down" have a peculiar significance. In going to London from any part of England you go "up." In traveling in any direction from the capital you go "down." So in London itself everything goes "up" if it is in the direction of the bank—that is, the Bank of England—and going from that center toward any of the points of the compass is to go "down."

The word bank, which is not only always spelled with a capital "B," but is always uttered with an impressive tone, suggests an initial letter of the largest type, may be said to be in a sense interchangeable with city, in terms of equal dignity and value in the eyes of Englishmen and likewise invariably adorned with a capital "C."

The city does not mean London by any means. It means a certain limited section of London, the part where business is mainly carried on and where the great financial institutions stand.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. L. S. Linscott, D.D. International Newspaper Bible Study Club. (Copyright 1910 by Rev. T. B. Linscott, D.D.)

April 23rd, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. B. Linscott, D.D.) Jonah Repairs the Temple. 2 Kings xxi:1-16.

Golden Text—Then the people rejoiced, for that they offered willingly. 1 Chron. xxix:17.

(1.) Verse 12—To what extent may we trust the reasoning and deductions of a bright, and good boy, seven years of age, upon matters with which he is familiar?

(2.) What immediately preceding events had led up to the boy Jonah (Jehonah) being crowned King of Judah?

(3.) Verse 1—Who was Jehu?

(4.) Zedekiah was the father of the boy King Jehonah, but who was his father?

(5.) Verses 2-3—Is the statement here made that "Jehonah did not believe in the Lord his father," literally, or historically correct? (See 2 Chron. xxi:17-22.)

(6.) Take two men, both previously given in responsible positions of great trust, both having been religiously trained, one having a wife and other a good ancestry; one of them late in life becomes a bad man—on the law of averages which is it, and why?

(7.) Verses 4-5—What method or rule should we adopt in giving money to the church?

(8.) What is the relative obligation upon a man for keeping up his own house and the house of God?

(9.) Verses 6-8—What were the priests bidden by the king to do with the money which they carried out on their orders?

(10.) Why is it either wise or unwise for a pastor to be the treasurer of his church?

(11.) What is your opinion as to what these priests did with the money?

(12.) Which is the right, or better plan, to collect money for God's cause, and why, at the homes of the people or in the church?

(13.) Verse 9—If Jehonah had gotten up a series of concerts, or lectures, or bazaars, or tea meetings, or had set the women to making quilts and selling them, instead of asking the people to give their money direct, would it or not have been more in keeping with God's plans for financing His church, and why? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the class.)

(14.) What modern plan for paying money to the church, most nearly answers to putting it into a chest at the church door, and what is the advantage of the plan?

(15.) Verse 10—Many instances can be recalled of dishonesty in handling church funds, and how do they compare with the number you can recall of dishonesty in banking and other business institutions?

(16.) Verses 11-12—Ought a church, to gladly pay the regular market value, or should it expect to get work and material for less?

(17.) Verses 13-16—Should a Christian church spend money for style, or for spectacular effect, or for anything beyond that necessary for comfort?

Lesson for Sunday, April 30th, 1911. God's Pity for the Heathen. (Pledge Missionary Lesson.) Jonah iii:1-11.

April 30th, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. B. Linscott, D.D.) God's Pity for the Heathen. (Pledge Missionary Lesson.) Jonah iii:1-11.

Golden Text—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations. Matt. xxviii:19.

(1.) Verses 1-2—When did the Lord command Jonah the first time to go to Nineveh, and why did he not go?

(2.) What method did God adopt in speaking to Jonah?

(3.) What method does God adopt to-day in giving special instructions to individual men?

(4.) Verse 3—Where was Nineveh situated?

(5.) How long would it probably take Jonah to traverse the principal streets of Nineveh and deliver his message?

(6.) Is it probable that Jonah gave the message just as the Lord had given it to him?

(7.) Verses 6-9—What steps did the king and the people of Nineveh take to prevent their doom?

(8.) What effect does repentance, fasting and prayer have in these days in preventing the legitimate and natural consequences of sin?

(9.) Are God's rewards and penalties ever absolute, or are they always conditional, and why?

(10.) How would you distinguish between the natural and moral penalty incurred by sin?

(11.) Think of our national sins and their penalty, and say what would be the effect upon the latter, if the nation should repent, and fast, and pray?

(12.) Verse 10—How do you explain this verse which credits God with changing His mind?

(13.) What if any evidence is there that nature, so to speak, changes her intentions to inflict penalty, when man changes their conduct?

(14.) Chapter iv:1-2—Why was Jonah angry because God did not destroy Nineveh, as He had threatened?

(15.) Why, or why not, should a true Christian who is a physician, depending upon his practice for a living, be sorry because the people are all well?

(16.) Why should those of us who teach little children of sin and punishment for confirmed sinners be either glad or sorry, if in the future we learn that we have been mistaken?

(17.) Verse 3—What weight can you place upon a man's truth, or goodness, because he is willing to die in defence of his views?

(18.) Verse 4—Name some of the most mysterious circumstances, and say whether there are any in life, or death, that would warrant a man in being angry with God? Give your reasons.

Jonah Nineveh would be destroyed?

(19.) Would that Jonah was angry with the Lord who did God protect, and not destroy him?

(20.) Verse 7:1—Why is it sometimes necessary for God to cause us to suffer in order to teach us lessons of love and mercy?

(21.) Does God ever punish for the sake of vengeance alone? Give your reasons. (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the class.)

The First Pantomime.
The first pantomime introduced to the English stage was "Tavern Bill Bilkers" and was by John Weaver. It was in the year 1702. It was produced at Drury Lane. The great inventor of pantomime in England was, however, John Rice, who devised this form of entertainment in 1717. His first important success was in 1724, when he produced "The Necromancer, or, History of Dr. Faustus." So successful was Rice with his pantomimes that Garriek, Quin and others became exasperated. Rice lived to see pan-tomimes firmly established at Drury Lane and Covent Garden. He died in 1761.—London Stage.

Not a Bourgeois.
"Mother," said a six-year-old hopeful, "isn't it funny that everybody
calls little brother a bouncing baby?"
"Why do you think it's funny, William?" remarked his mother.

"Because when I dropped him on the floor this morning he didn't bounce
a bit. He only bawled."

A Mean Suggestion.

understand women is to get married.
Pierrot—And study the ways of his wife, eh? Pierrot—No. Listen to what she tells him about the other women.

Muscle Writing Made Easy.
Mlle. Belle was in the eighteenth century the most accomplished and fascinating balletuse at the famous French Opera. In addition to her own qualifications, she played and sang with extraordinary artistic skill and depth of expression. She once occasioned to Ramen, the noted musician,
that her ardent wish was to be able to compose and asked him to give her a few lessons in the art. "Nothing easier
in the world," Ramen gallantly replied. He handed her a sheet of paper ruled for music and asked her to write a routine lessoning in which holes in the lines wherever she thought proper. After the lady had completed her task Ramen took the sheet of paper, turned each puncture into a note,
determined its length, selected a suitable key, and the thing was done. This remarkable composition turned out a lively piece of dance music, which was afterward entitled "Les Sauvages dans le Jardin d'Alain" and was popular in France for a great number of years.

Macaulay as a Child.
Thomas Babington Macaulay could
perhaps have ranked with the authoritative geniuses, but it is true that his precocious gift was largely in the direction of literature. He read instantly from the age of three. At seven
he had composed a very fair compendium of universal history from the creation to 1800. At eight he had written a treatise destined to convert the natives of Malabar to Christianity.
As a recreation from this weighty
work he wrote in the same year a romance in the style of Scott in three cantos, entitled "The Battle of Cher-
well." A little later came a long poem on the history of Old Magnus and a vast pile of blank verse entitled "Fin-gals—A Poem in Twelve Books." But he declined to publish any of these poems. He was a prodigy, and did not pass his examinations in that school
this standing out among all child prodigies. His memory was such that he literally never could forget anything and after twenty years could repeat bits of poetry read only once.

Here's Something NewNo more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. No particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood idea
and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated,
at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range
without ornamentation or fancy nickel. "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Kaiser's Fast Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water jet or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the left side of the range. It can be furnished with fire either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute and cover is ordered an Improved Ash Pan is provided.At Least One-half of All Glenwoods, Are Sold

Method.
Method is the very hinge of business, and there is no method without punctuality. Punctuality is important because it subserves the peace and good temper of a family. Calmness of mind, which it produces, is another advantage of punctuality. A disorderly man is always in a hurry. He has no time to speak to you because he is going elsewhere, and when he gets there he is too late for his business or he must hurry away before he can finish it.

Siamese Tobacco.
The best tobacco in Siam is grown at Petchabun. It is planted in open fields near the town after the floods in September or October, and the first crop, or tips, which is considered the best quality, is gathered about February and the last about the beginning of May. The very best quality cannot be purchased, as it is reserved for the special use of the king and sent down to Bangkok, where it is smoked in the palace and distributed to the chief officers of state.

Never Learned How to Live.
There are people who go through life looking for lights, and they are necessarily miserable, for they find gratifications everywhere. One has the same pit for such men as for the very poor. They are the morally illiterate. They have had no real education, for they have never learned how to live.

Still in the Family.
Jack—My grandfather had a very fine collection of silver, which he bequeathed to my father on the condition that it should always remain in the family. Ethel—Then you have it still? Jack—Well—my uncle has it.

His Suspicious Argues.
Reggie—I hear you're broken. It all off with Edna Archie—I should say
so. That parrot of hers is all the time saying, "Kiss me again, Jack."
That isn't my name, you know.—Lip Lippincott.

Parts of Speech.
Teacher—Thomas, what are the parts
of speech?
Tommy Tucker (after an exhaustive mental effort)—It's the way a man
talks when he stutters.

The Better Balance.
"The man who knows just what he wants is bound to be successful."
"Not half so much as the man who knows how to get what he wants."
—Cleveland Leader.

A Married Rehearse.

At the age of sixty-six Mrs. Reynolds will found much time in life,
and, having retained all her faculties,
she felt that a few of the physical disabilities of her age were of small account and pertained nothing. Her nephew Thomas was a man of much worth, but of a certain timidity of speech, which always roused the ire
of his aunt.

A few weeks before the old lady's eighty-seventh birthday Thomas, who had been overworked with business
care for years, acquired on a trip round
the world which was to consume two years.

"I've come to say goodbye," he announced when he appeared at his aunt's house in a town fifty miles distant from his home. "I'm starting round the world next week, and as I'm to be gone two years and perhaps longer I thought I might not evermore, you understand, I wanted to be sure to see you once more."

The old lady leaned forward, fixing
him with her beaming eyes.

"Thomas," she said imperatively,
"do you mean to tell me the doctor
doesn't think you'll live to get back?"
—Youth's Companion.

Perpetual Motion.
Little Jimmy had arrived at the questioning age. He had just made an inquiry concerning perpetual motion
of his father.

"No," said his father; "nobody has ever discovered perpetual motion yet."
But Jimmy was not quite satisfied.

"What is perpetual motion like, dad?"
he asked next.

His father thought a moment. "Why,
it's just like the motion of a clock."
But Jimmy was not quite satisfied.
"What is something that goes on going and going forever. Here is an illustration. I once saw a woman in a train who had put on her gloves. She then tried to button her right hand glove, but she found that she must take off her left hand glove to do so.
She took it off and buttoned the right hand glove. Then she saw that in order to button her left hand glove she must take off her right hand glove,
which she did. Then she put on her left hand glove, buttoned it and put on the right hand glove again. But she couldn't button her right hand glove
with her left hand glove on, so she took it off. That, Jimmy," he said after a pause for breath, "is what perpetual motion would be like if you could get it."

A Remarkable Dinner Service.
The remarkable dinner service made by Joseph Wedgwood for the Russian empress, Catherine II., in 1774 consists of 602 pieces, and on each piece is painted a different view. The body is of a pale brimstone color, and the views are painted in a rich mahogany purple. As the service was intended to be used at the palace of La Gre-nouillere (meaning marshy place full of frogs), each piece also bears a green frog within a shield on the rim.

The views represent British
castles, abbeys, parks, bridges, towers,
etc. Several pieces are decorated with views of Hampstead, and there are several cups with views of Richmond
and some bowls with the scenery of Windsor park in many cases the views are the only pictorial records
left of the old buildings. Altogether
there are 1,282 views painted on the 602 pieces.—Chambers.

Accustomed to Luxuries.
Mr. Courting (jesting penitently)—
This handle is pure silver. What do you think of that? Little Girl—Huh!
That's nothing. Sister's teeth is on a plate of pure gold.

Undanted.
Nervous Employer—Thomas, I wish
you wouldn't whistle at your work.
Office Boy—I ain't working, sir; I'm only just whistling.

The Acme
Eradicator

By CORNELIUS BARRY

"George," said Mr. Skinner, "you're an excellent young man, but you have no business shrewdness about you.
When my girl marries I don't wish her to marry a man who is liable to slip up on providing. I wish her to have a husband who can make money. When I was your age my father gave me a thousand and told me to use it with my wife together. One of that thousand I've made $20,000. No, I can't give you Grace. You're not sharp enough."

"But I haven't a father to give me
$1,000," said George. "I haven't a father at all. There are a number of Brahmans, old and decrepit, called Kulan Brahmas, who go about with the object of hiring themselves out to be described the ceremony of the 'war-
en steps' with young girls upon being paid for doing so. After marriage they leave the country and never see their young wives again."

"In the United States there lived one of these rajpoot men who had a daughter
over twelve years old.
In the next house lived another family, in which there was one son, aged eleven. The two children had been brought up together, and their childish friendship had grown into love.
The parents of the youth were very proud of him and destined him to marry some girl who should be not only of high caste, but whose parents would be able to bestow on her great wealth."

"One evening after it was dark he was walking in the compound (garden) about his father's house when he heard a low call from the compound
of the next house. Going to the fence,
he described the crouching figure of his sweetheart, evidently suffering from
some great misfortune."

"What is it, dear girl?" he said,
springing over the fence and taking her in his arms. She was weeping.
"I am to die."

"To die?"
"Yes. Today a man—a horrible looking man—came to the house and gave me a letter from my father. He told me to go on an errand, doubtless that I should be away at the time and not hear what passed between my father and this man. But I had not yet got to the house when I saw that man. He was a man of high caste, but he was married, I would soon be made away
with in some fashion, though father and mother have tried to keep the secret. I have been thinking of the house I concealed myself behind a bamboo screen and heard every word."

She gave way to her feeling and wept bitterly. "I have been thinking of the house I concealed myself behind
a bamboo screen and heard every word."

"My father bargained with the man
for a hundred rupees to strangle me."
"Strangle me?"
"Tomorrow night father is to take me out for a walk by the river, when
this man is to come upon us suddenly and kill me. I can't escape. He has over it often said, and every time
I wonder more. If he fell the river would be on him and his rider before he could get up on his horse. Jack again, even if that were possible, if he became exhausted that meant
death too."

"Once, she says, she looked back to see what had become of her father and brother. She saw great trees hurling by a mad torrent against the rocky sides of the canyon. One sight
of such a scene was enough for her.
She tried to soothe her horse by speaking to him and putting him on the neck. Several times he had stumbled, but recovered himself, and she knew this was her greatest danger."

"Well, here I come in. I was a tenderfoot ordered by my doctor to come out here to breathe the mountain air.
At the time I was coming down
the canyon I was not aware of the light wagon in the opposite direction by a man I had hired for the purpose.
We heard a roaring; but, I being a greenhorn in the country and the driving being so slow, neither of us knew what it meant. The road was narrow.
Beside it was the waterway and on either hand the canyon's walls."

"Suddenly I saw up the gorge a horse
coming lickerly split and knew by fluttering skirts that a woman was on
him. He couldn't pass us at that gallop owing to the fact that we took up all about twenty feet of road. The woman seemed to recognize the fact,
for she slowed up of her own accord."

"Just before I reached my driver
seemed to catch the meaning of it all and, jumping from the wagon, he began to scramble up the side of the canyon. I, not understanding what was the matter, sat still till the girl came up. I had never seen her before, but I was up a spig like that picture. Her horse was white with foam; her hair had broken loose and was flying in the wind."

"A cloudburst!" she cried.
"I didn't know it was a cloudburst
was, but at that moment caught sight
of its forward edge and didn't need any one to tell me. I had come west in a sleeping berth all the way from Ohio and was weak as a kitten. My cowardly driver was taking care of himself, but paying no attention to me. The girl took in the situation.
She was trying to squeeze her horse
between the stone wall of the gulch
and the wagon, but had presence of mind to call to me to get on behind her. One glance at that coming death gave me all the strength I needed, and I was on Jack in a jiffy. Then she let him go again."

"We were a mile from her home, the horse was getting exhausted, and now
he had a double load. She threw well enough that she was halving her chances at taking me on, but we managed to keep ahead of the flood, and in a few minutes Jack moved the riding ground that led to his stable."

"And that," my host concluded, "is the 'gentle, feminine woman' you're talking about."

"She's that and a heroine besides,"
I supplemented.

Unpleasant Frank.
"Mr. Coldcut, I have come to ask for the hand of your daughter."
"My daughter, sir?"
"Yes, I can't live without her."
"Well, sir, finish your sentence."
"Finish my sentence?"
"Yes, you were about to say you
could not live without her income.
Let us be candid."

Unpleasant Fun.
"Hey!" exclaimed his uncle. "What are you trying to do—break my watch?"
"Yes," replied the innocent solemnly;
"I've 'trow' it into the 'Pew.'—But-fale Express."

Early and provident. Ear is the mark of safety.—Burke.

Medical Opinion.
"Doctor, how do you account for the existence of rheumatism?"
"The mind, my dear sir, created the disease to fit the word."—Chicago Tribune.

The best reward. After all, it is not the work one does for the most, but
the work one does for the most reward.—Henry Van Dyke.

Unpleasant.

you wouldn't whistle at your work.

REV. P. S. MEINER.

Shriners Celebrate.

The annual "Ladies' day" of the Order of the Mystic Shrine was celebrated at Trenton last Friday night by a ball and banquet.

The ball room in the Masonic Temple was beautifully decorated and the band, some of the ladies made the scene still more attractive. The evening's entertainment consisted of dancing and progressive euchre, followed by a banquet at the Hotel Sterling.

An automobile was awarded to Mr. Frena, of Trenton, who was the holder of the admission ticket with the lucky number, 783.

About 2000 Shriners were present, of whom nearly 200 were from Palmyra and Riverton.

Palmyra H. S. Notes.

The game last Friday between Palmyra High and the Moorestown Friends School resulted in a score of 7-5 in favor of the Palmyra boys.

On Tuesday the Palmyra boys won from West Philadelphia High 12-1.

The game for today, which was to have been played with Bordertown, has been cancelled by that team.

Next Tuesday the boys will go to Moorestown to play a return game with the Friends School.

The Cheltenham High School from Philadelphia will come to Palmyra next Friday and a good game is expected for they are a strong team, and of course want to take the game home with them.

Field Club Notes.

The Field Club was again unable to open their season last Saturday, but will make another attempt this week (if Jupiter Pluvius will call in his rain birds, and all indications point that we will have a nice warm day and a first-class game) as we line up against the strong Fairhaven A. A., of Philadelphia. You will no doubt recall that this team was one of our first rivals on the diamond and they are coming up to take the game home with them if possible. Come out and root for a home victory.

Game starts at 3.30 p. m. Admission 15 cents.

ROOTHER.

Thompson-Kinney.

A quiet home wedding took place last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Thompson, when Miss Nora J. Kinney, of Beverly and Mr. George S. Thompson, of Palmyra, were united in marriage, by the Rev. Samuel Sargent, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Miss Mary Zimm was bridesmaid and Mr. Arthur McCollough was groomsmen. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson made a trip to Atlantic City, and upon their return a reception was held at their parents home Thursday night.

Mr. Thompson has recently been promoted to the position of manager of Childs Grocery store.

Banquet.

The ninth annual banquet of the Ubers Association of the Epworth Methodist Church, was held Wednesday evening in the basement. The tables were arranged in the form of an E, and were tastefully decorated with the colors green and white.

Games and music were participated in, and several informal speeches made. Rev. Alfred Wagg, presiding elder, was the guest of honor.

L. O. R. C.

Man Condemned Convert to True to His Promise.

The following letter is self-explanatory and will probably dispel the doubts in the minds of those who harshly condemned this young man, who was a victim of circumstances and many erroneous rumors that were without foundation. This young man, who was a fugitive from justice, was brought to several meetings of the Meetings for Seven Nights which were recently held in the Central Baptist Church, and it was while attending these meetings that he was convicted of his sin and his need of a Savior. He repented and was converted and baptized Easter Sunday morning. Now he felt convinced that the next step was to go back and give himself up to the sentence as a Christian man, coming to the pastor and deacons for advice and explaining his case to the Baraca Class. He started back Sunday, April 18th. Since that time much doubt has been expressed by some stating that he was a professional criminal and had used this method to escape before. This is untrue as can be seen from the following letter:

Dubuque, Iowa, April 20, 1911.

S. Steinmetz,
Palmyra, N. J.

My Dear Pastor and Friends:

I have this day given myself up and received a sentence of from one hour to five years in the reformatory at Anamosa, Iowa, the term of service to be governed by my good behavior and at the discretion of the Board of Pardons I arrived in Chicago Monday night at 10.45 o'clock and the trouble that awaited me nearly drove me insane. My load was just doubled and if it had not been that I had a Savior to go to I don't know what would have become of me. I am informed that there were some hard, unjust and untrue things said of me after I left there and I am sorry that any of the boys should doubt me in the step that I took in giving myself over to My Lord and Master Jesus Christ. I am more firm now than ever before and keep growing stronger each day.

I have brought my wife to seek Jesus Christ as her personal Savior and she is the greatest joy of my life for she believes in my reformation, and no one else in this world does. If any doubts arise in the minds of those who have taken an interest in me write to me and I will explain anything that they don't understand in a very open, clear manner. Tell all those who know me that I will be glad to hear from them at any time they see fit to write but I will only be allowed to write two letters a month so you see I won't have many privileges. I will be allowed to go to church on Sunday however and that will be some consolation. It seems hard to be here but I have the comfort of knowing I am doing the right thing anyway and when I do get out I will be a free man and can look the world in the face again. I hope that all who promised me will write something encouraging and helpful to my dear wife in this her darkest hour of earthly trouble. Remember me to all of the members of the Baraca Class and may the good work of bringing sinners to Christ keep up for we have a great field in our home missions. I go to Anamosa Saturday morning to begin my sentence. I am firmly trusting in my Savior for deliverance, help and strength. Well, I will have to close for this time and when you or the boys write address me at Anamosa (Reformatory) Iowa.

With firm faith in my new life and with Jesus Christ to guide and keep me from temptation, I bid you good night.

Humbly yours
(Signed) S. A. BLANCHARD.

Il Trovatore.

For the second week of their Spring season of Grand Opera in English at popular prices, Melton and Sargent Aborn will offer Verdi's melodious "Il Trovatore," a favorite of long standing, which has not lost any of its popularity, but rather seems to increase in vogue by repetition. This opera has registered some of the largest audiences ever drawn in Philadelphia in the past, and when Messrs. Aborn inaugurated the system of voting by mailing cards, this opera was among the four or five works receiving the largest number of votes from Philadelphia music lovers; hence its selection for presentation next week.

The same adequate production with which this opera has been given in other cities will be brought to Philadelphia and another contingent of noted principal artists will come to fill the roles of "Il Trovatore." In the role of Leonora, Jane Abernethy and Blanche Re Edwards will divide the eight performances of the role. Louise Le Baron and Marie Louise Rogers will appear at alternate appearances in the contralto role of Azucena. The two tenors to appear in turn as Manrico are Leonid Samoiloff and Paul Bleyden. Harry Luckstone, baritone, will be the Count di Luna, and Conte Bozo Bozzan, the Ferrando at all performances. Hugo Riesenfeld, a conductor who formerly held the baton at Hummerstein's Manhattan Opera House, New York, will conduct at all performances, and Edward P. Temple will direct the staging of "Il Trovatore."

For the third week of the Aborn season, beginning Monday, May 8th, the offering will be M. Scent's most famous opera, "Thais," which is now being presented by the Aborn force for the first time anywhere in the English language. Messrs. Aborn announce this as one of the most important events of their career, and on account of this they have made an elaborate production of this work at the Boston Opera House. The entire equipment of scenery and costumes presented last week in Boston and this week at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, will be brought to Philadelphia intact, as will also the complete cast including Lois Wells, Edith Helms, Lila Robeson, Mabela Pereno, Giuseppe Picco, Louis Kreidler, George Bieleke, Laura Tenelli, Frederick Chapman and others.

The scale of prices for the Spring season of Grand Opera in English is as follows: evenings and Saturday matinees 25c to $1; Wednesday matinees, 25c to 75c.

Rainbow Fair.

The Field Club Auxiliary will give a novel fair Saturday afternoon and evening, May 6, in Y. M. C. A.

The colors of the rainbow are to be carried out in the table decorations; the tables to have on sale fancy articles, household goods, aprons, candy, cake and ice cream, there will also be an exceptionally well-supplied delicatessen table. For music, lovers, the world-famous "Mary Garden" and "Carnau" have been secured.

Tickets 10c, including ice cream.

Look out for something great on Wednesday evening, May 17.

There will be a public meeting with an address by the Grand Chief of New Jersey. An elaborate program is being prepared by the Castle and the Temple.

The Grand Chief will make an official visitation to Herald Castle, B. V. City, on May 11th and he desires that you be there.

Now then, all together with might and main, boost Palmyra Castle. You can. Will you?
