BIG CROWD SEES P. H. S. WIN

Harry Burns Stars in Defeat of Watts High of Burlington, 19-6

Palmyra High trimmed the Wilbur Watts High School, of Burlington, by 19 to 6, when they met in their annual football classic last Friday afternoon. The game, which was the big contest in scholastic circles last week, was staged on The Field Club grounds, before a crowd of nearly 3,000. It is said to be a record-breaking number for football spectators at the Park.

Harry Burns, the brilliant left end, was by far the individual star for Palmyra in the first half. He paved the way for both of the local touchdowns which came in the first period. The first session was well under way when Harry blocked a punt from Boyle, whose toe does most of the kicking for the up-staters, and ran twelve yards for the initial tally of the much-heralded fray.

A little later Burns again won many cheers when he came to the fore by recovering a fumble on Burlington's 30-yard line. A line buck was then attempted but only one yard was gained. This was followed up by a pretty pass from Kersey to Graham, who then took the oval over for the second tally.

The visitors made their lone touchdown in the second period. Palmyra had taken the pill far into the enemies' territory and made it necessary for Burlington to kick when Palmyra lost the ball on downs. Kersey expected Boal to take the ball and started a few feet in advance of him, so as to act as interference, but the oval dropped on Roy's back. Hutton, the Burlington end, appeared on the scene just in time to snatch the oval as it bounced off Kersey, and ran fifty yards for the lone visiting touchdown.

Palmyra had no real out-standing star in the second half. Every man was playing his best by this time, and were also playing together in a manner which does Coach Harry Ivory lots of credit. A few fumbles were made during the early part of the game but these soon became conspicuous by their absence.

Palmyra got its last pointers in the third session. Boal, who had been playing his usual spectacular game, in which he features with end runs, line bucking and perfect defensive work, made a wonderful end run on which he netted forty yards, bringing the ball within a few feet of the opponents' line. The heady little quarter then took the ball over on the next play. This was done with an off tackle plunge. Kersey then made a beautiful placement kick, giving the locals their last point of the game.

Burlington, with the aid of some passes that worked to good advantage ,gained considerable ground during the last few minutes of the game. They were within an easy striking distance of Palmyra's line when the final whistle blew.

Burlington's version of the game as given in a paragraph clipped from Saturday's "Burlington Daily Enterprise," follows:

"The team work of the Palmyra school was excellent. They left nothing uncovered, and it was next to impossible for Burlington to break through their line and get away with it. At the same time the Burlington line failed to hold, and the gains of the Palmyra gladiators toward the Burlington goal were seady and sure. The Burlington boys made several sensational individuals plays, and had their line beeen as strong as that of the heavier Palmyra outfit, there would have been a different story to tell."

Palmyra played a wonderful game and their team work was superb. Captain Palphreyman and Ehrlich played a strong defensive game on the line. Russ Davis filled the right end position with honors. Wood and Kersey are both showing a wonderful improvement, for each were big gainers and it was Roy who threw the pass on which Palmyra made one of her touchdowns. Graham and Burr also look good in the half back positions. Stackhouse continues to fill the full back job in a sterling manner.

Ivory not only has one good team, but he has a junior varsity on which every man is perfectly capable of filling his position on the first team like a veteran.

Palmyra won the game, permanent possession of the coveted Knights of the Golden Eagle cup and the Burlington County championship. No wonder the boys fought so hard with all of that at stake. The large silver cup was donated by the Burlington Knights of the Golden Eagle two years ago with the understanding that it was to become the permanent possession of the school which won it three times. The local bunch got the first two legs on it year before last. Last year Burlington won one game and the other resulted in a tie, so therefore the cup has been at Burlington during the past year. But now it comes back to good old Palmyra and will stay here.

The Palmyra cheering section was located on the north side of the field, while the Burlington rooters kept on the south side. Palmyra's newly organized corps of cheer leaders were on the job and greatly amused the spectators with their queer antics. The group consists of six boys and two girls. The boys, who are Edward Platt, Edgar Miller, William Colsey, Portland Merrill, Joseph Klingler and Howard Miller, wear white shoes, trousers and sweaters. They make a great appearance on the field. The girls, who are the Misses Ethel Galanter and Margaret Tomes, are dressed in the uniforms of the hockey team, which are red and white.

Palmyra again meets its rivals November 16. This time the game will be played on the Burlington field.

FOOTBALL

Riverton 19; Holmesburg Blue Jackets 0

Last Saturday the Holmesburg Blue Jackets were defeated by our local team 19 to 0. The visitors played a plucky game, but were no match for Riverton and at no time were they able to advance the ball consistently against the defense of the Riverton team. The two Riverton ends, Bowers and Holvick, and our star center, Jenkins, featured in their clean tackling and all-round defensive playing. On the offensive Anderson and Hollingshead gained through the visitor's line practically at will. During the second half the Riverton team put quite a number of new men in the lineup.

This Saturday, November 3rd, the Delanco football team will be Riverton's opponents at Seventh and Cedar avenue, Riverton. Game starts at 3.15.

Last year Riverton defeated the Delanco team, but from all accounts the locals will have to give the best they have to come out on the long end of the score this Saturday, as the Delanco team has been strengthened considerably by some new and experienced men.

HARTLEY FOR ASSESSOR

Will Run on Stickers for Election as John Shade's Successor

James H. Hartley, former township committeeman and long prominent in the affairs of Palmyra, has been prevailed upon by his friends to become a candidate for assessor.

John W. Shade, whose term as assessor would not have expired until next September, resigned last week on account of ill health.

The Mayor and Council have decided to wait until after election before appointing a successor to Mr. Shade and now have in mind appointing whoever receives the highest number of votes.

Assessor Shade's name is on the ticket as the Republican nominee, and Samuel Scott, a Republican, who received Democratic votes at the Palmyra primary, is on the ticket as Democratic nominee. Since Mr. Shade has resigned, the contest will be between Scott and Hartley.

Dreer's Peerless Minstrel Will Not Show This Year

Owing to the many inquiries for tickets and the date on which the Dreer's Peerless Minstrels will make their appearance this year, we find it necessary to make the following announcement:

We have for the past eight years staged from one to three minstrel shows a year in Palmyra and Riverton and they were all without question big successes, and we wish to thank the public for their cooperation and good patronage which played a large part in our success.

We are sorry that certain conditions this year will make it impossible for us to get our show together in time to give one this fall. We have, however, turned our usual Thanksgiving Night over to the Dreer's Beneficial Association, who will make use of the P. O. S. of A. Hall for the benefit of their organization.

The Super-Woman

The noble queen of womankind
I see her radiant stand:
The crown of wisdom on her brow,
Love's scepter in her hand:
Arrayed in robes of Purity,
So spotless, fair and white;
Adorned by Virtue's priceless gem,
So perfect, clear and bright.

Now by the light of Reason's lamp
She scans the ancient page;
Anew she reads the history
Of each long vanished age.
The "torch of science" guides her feet
To mountain peaks sublime—
To catch a glimpse of endless life
Beyond the bounds of Time.

Her lips are sweet with Charity,
No scandal stains her tongue;
And in her bosom "Faith in God,
And hope for man" are young.
Serene, she smiles at slander's darts
By puny mortals hurled,
And on her spotless banner writes:
"Defiance to the world."

None but a man of equal worth
Shall be her children's sire;
For only to such manhood true
Can be her pure desire.
She shrinks with loathing from the touch
Of all that's base and low;
She knows the future of the world,
She makes for weal or woe.

Consummate flower of Womanhood:
Heaven's richest gift to earth.
The toil and tears of ages past
Brought thee at last to birth.
Thy breath the world with fragrance fills—
Though few thy beauty see.
The present joy, the future's hope
Alike depend on thee.

Oh mother of a race divine.
Oh goddess brave and true.
We now would at thy stainless feet
Our knighthood's vow renew.
Who would not seek a prison cell—
Cheered by thy radiant eye?
To save thee from the powers of ill
Who would not gladly die?

—George Vail Williams.

FERRY BOAT IN PERIL

Peerless, of Tacony-Palmyra Line, Towed to Safety

The Peerless, a ferryboat recently purchased by the Tacony-Palmyra Ferry Company, was endangered by fire last Wednesday night. It was tied up at the yard of the Camden Shipbuilding Company, at the head of Fifth street, Camden, when a number of vessels lying near it was destroyed with fire. The ship belonging to the local company was cut adrift and later towed to safetly without any damage resulting.

Two old Delaware River excursion steamers which are well known to residents of this vicinity, the Twilight, which had just been reconditioned, and the Princeton, which was undergoing repairs, were both destroyed. The Columbia sustained slight damage to her superstructure. The Lyndonia, Cyrus H. K. Curtis' palatial yacht, was moored within fifty feet of the ill-fated Princeton, but was saved by vigorous battling of her crew.

The Peerless is undergoing repairs at the shipyard and will be put into service between Palmyra and Tacony some time during November. It was formerly the property of the Gloucester Ferry Company.

Camp 23, P. O. S. of A.

Next Monday evening will find Hallowe'en over, the goblins gone for another year and the big firemen's celebration ended, but that does not necessarily mean that all activities should cease, for they will not. Monday evening will find Camp 23 holding a big celebration and a class of at least twenty-five will be initiated.

Every member of the Camp is not only invited, but requested to be present in the Camp room at 8 p. m. There is a deep secret attached to this celebration, but we can say that there is a BIG surprise awaiting the boys. A quartet of local talent with Walter Jones, bass, as the leader, will help with the entertainment.

The Camp is looking forward to a big winter season with lots of activities. All meetings are very enjoyable, interesting and worth the little trouble necessary. Many of the members stay after the meetings and have a great time either pitching quoits or playing pinochle. Come out. Let's have a record breaking attendance at the big meeting Monday evening.

Lutheran Church News

The Rev. S. D. Daugherty, D.D., of Philadelphia, delighted a large audience on Sunday night with one of his usual fine sermons. It is a delight to have him with us, and we hope his coming will be often in the future.

Recently there was held a great world convention of Lutherans at Eisenach, Germany, where delegates representing 22 countries and over 80,000,000 Lutherans gathered to discuss a united Church, and unity in the work of our Lord, to further His Kingdom and hasten that day. It was a great convention, and results greater than expected were consummated, for the "Lutheran Church of the World" was projected and resolutions adopted whereby all of the various groups of Lutherans can work for a common end in missions and other works of the church. The day has come when lines of separation are growing narrower, and great things can be seen for the future of the Church when such great communions get together and decide on the same lines of future operations.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held Tuesday evening next at the home of Mrs. Wolfschmidt.

The Luther League is growing by leaps and bounds. It is the one place in the church which registers the activities of the young people. Come and see them grow. Miss McKee is the leader next Sunday. Subject: "A Church Psalm."

Thought for the Day.

The best way to get along with some people is to ask for more than you expect and then compromise on what you want.

Republican Ticket

CLIFFORD R. POWELL

J. LLOYD WRIGHT
CLARK B. ROGERS
For County Auditor
HENRY I. WORRELL

The Republican Candidates

ON November 6 voters of Burlington County will elect an Assemblyman, Sheriff, Freeholder, County Auditor and Coroner.

The Republican candidates for these offices are well fitted for the positions they seek to fill.

Clifford R. Powell, a Mount Holly boy, seeks re-election as Assemblyman. During the time he has held this office he has represented Burlington County faithfully and well. He has consistently voted "dry," and in the State Republican convention recently held, he voted against the proposal to incorporate in the platform a declaration for modification of the Volstead Enforcement Act.

Director of the Board of Freeholders J. Lloyd Wright, who is candidate for re-election, is a better official and more conversant with the important duties of his office than any new man who might be elected. He is a representative of the people, in truth. He holds himself ready to listen to plaints by his constituents and to spare no effort to correct conditions where they might profitably be improved. The Director is undeniably one of the strongest members of the Board of Freeholders. Those who are acquainted with the amount and character of work that he performs appreciate the fact that the county is fortunate to have such a clear-thinking, independent official at the head of the Board of Freeholders.

Joseph B. Fleetwood, the Republican nominee for Sheriff, through his long association with the office as Under Sheriff, unquestionably has a better understanding of the duties of Sheriff than any other man in Burlington County, and the voters will make no mistake in placing him in that responsible position. Mr. Fleetwood is the type of man, who not only knows his duty, but has the courage and honesty to carry it out.

County Auditor Henry I. Worrell has made a careful, conscientious official. During his incumbency of the office which he now holds and for which he is a candidate for re-election, he has saved the county thousands of dollars through his scrutiny and detection of irregular charges against the county.

Clark B. Rogers, of Bordentown, who made a rather remarkable run for the Coroner nomination at the late primaries, has an excellent record as a previous coroner of the county, to recommend him to the voters. There should be a Coroner resident along the upper riverfront and Candidate Rogers, living at Bordentown, is logically located.

The only possible chance of the Republican candidates being defeated lies in the apathy of their friends. This is what is mis-called an "off-year," and the vote will probably be light. As a matter of fact there is no such thing as an "off-year." It is important that every voter shall do his duty every year. Republican voters should see that the Republican majorities are maintained.

Democrats, counting on the apathy of Republican voters this year, are making a strenuous effort to elect one or more of their candidates.

They are concentrating particularly on their candidates for Assemblyman and Freeholder.

J. Lloyd Wright, the Republican candidate for Freeholder, won the nomination on his splendid record, and should now have the undivided support of his party.

There is a persistent rumor throughout the County that some of those who were not pleased with the result of the Primary Election are now working for the Democratic party. It is even said that this condition exists in this vicinity.

Such poor sportsmanship cannot but receive the condemnation of all fair-minded men and women, and the best way to show disapproval of such tactics is to turn out and vote for the Republican candidates.

They are all men fully deserving of your support.

County Republicans Meet

A meeting of the Burlington County Republican Committee was held in the Court House, Mount Holly, Monday night of this week, Chairman Charles R. Stout presiding. The attendance was large and plans were worked out for getting out a large vote on Election Day, November 6th.

It was decided to dispense with the tour of the County, which has been an election feature for several years, it being thought that better results could be obtained this year by personal work of members of the County Committee among their constituents, and by the publication of a large advertisement in the County newspapers. Credentials and badges for challengers were given out at this time. The meeting adjourned at the call of the chair.

Samson, of Burlington, was elected secretary and treasurer.

The business session followed a luncheon which was served at 1.30 o'clock. One of the features of the meeting was a talk given by A. G. Morse, of Riverton, who is well-known through the excellent addresses he has given before the Philadelphia Kiwanis Club and other organizations of that character.

Mr Morse told what the Red Cross had done in the past and what it purposed to do in the future. The address took him through the war period, in which every Red Cross unit in Burlington County shone to a fine advantage. The address was entertaining and full of information.

Mrs. Emma Brock, of New York, a field worker in the Red Cross organization, gave an interesting talk on Junior Red Cross work.

Louis A. Flanagan, chairman of the Red Cross Branch at Riverton, gave a report of the work done there and Miss Hannah H. Chew, chairman of the Riverton Junior Red Cross, spoke of the work of her unit.

The delegates to the annual meeting included Mrs. A. M. Ellsworth, Mrs. Datis Reed, Louis A. Flanagan, A. G. Morse, Riverton, Mrs. J. P. Macfarlane, Mrs. J. C. Hoepfner, Mrs. A. C. Hirsch, Mrs. A. B. Bauer, Mrs. Jacob M. Roberts, Palmyra; Mrs. Hannah G. Evans, Cinnaminson.

Champagne and Oysters — A Great Show, November 16 and 17 P. O. S. of A. Hall

Altogether "Champagne and Oysters" with added attractive features: Beatrice Flint Collin, contralto, and Dorothy Warner, interpretative dancer, will be one of the most unusual entertainments offered in this locality for some time.

Plot of the play is "excruciatingly" funny. The cast is an able one, directed by Margaret M. Williams, and is headed by Mr. Frank Mathews, Jr., whose ability needs no introduction to the community as an amateur performer of skill. The audience will be swept into gales of laughter as he, in the roll of the Rev. Herbert Maitland, endeavors to disentangle himself from difficulties, into which Deacon Hezekiah Linnet (Mr. Chas. Cook) inadvertently more deeply plunges him. Mr. George Wentling, as Lawyer Roebuck, instead of (as he should in that capacity) unravelling the tangle, adds only to the difficulties.

Others of the cast who are essential to the structure and funmaking of the plot are: Helen C. Warren, Minnie G. Colsey, Sallie G. Hoepfner, Frances Hartley, Stanley Green and Wesley Huyett.

Boscul Gives You A New Start

Your first pound of BOSCUL COFFEE opens a new vista of Coffee delight. That is the invariable experience of those who say for the first time to their grocer, "Give me a pound of BOSCUL COFFEE—yes, in that red Boscul vacuum tin." Once you try BOSCUL COFFEE, you will have no other, and unless you have tasted it you can't imagine what a really remarkable difference there can be in even high grade Coffees.

For your own sake the next time you're buying Coffee, get a pound of BOSCUL COFFEE in the vacuum tin, and prove to your own satisfaction what a perfectly balanced and uniform blend Boscul is, how much smoother it tastes because the bitter woody chaff has been removed; how absolutely uniform and fresh it keeps in vacuum, fresh and flavory as the hour it's roasted.

Five Reasons Why You Should Vote the Republican Ticket

1—The Republican Party is the Party of Achievement. It DOES Things.
2—The Republican Candidates are all experienced in the offices for which they have been nominated.
3—The Republican Ticket is one of the best ever placed in nomination in Burlington County.
4—The Republican Party pledges itself to give a DOLLAR IN VALUE FOR EVERY DOLLAR OF THE TAXPAYERS' MONEY EXPENDED.
5—The Republican Administration of County Affairs is the most efficient and the most thoroughly systematized in the history of the County.

The ticket presented for your consideration comprises the choice of the rank and file of Republican voters as expressed at the party primaries in September. It is the people's ticket—Made by the Farmer, the Laboring Man, the Mechanic, the Professional Man, the Housewife, and the Woman who occupies other fields of usefulness. And these are the people who are expected to help carry the Republican Ticket through to Victory on Tuesday next.

Every nominee, whose picture appears below, is tried and true. His experience, his capability and his fidelity are above challenge. These short sketches and the accompanying half-tone etchings will give you a closer insight into the record and the personality of the five candidates for whom your vote is asked.

J. Lloyd Wright For Chosen Freeholder

Born in Medford Township, Mr. Wright has resided there all of his life. Until his election to the Small Board of Freeholders three years ago, he was engaged in farming. Since then he has devoted his entire time to the duties of his office.

As Director of the Board of Freeholders and as head of the County Department of Finance, he has made a splendid record. His knowledge of public affairs is surpassed by no other man in the County. Reforms instituted by him in the county's banking system and in the raising of money, have saved the taxpayers thousands of dollars within the past three years and still greater saving may be looked for in the future due to the same sound business principles applied by Mr. Wright.

He is fearless and independent in the performance of his public duty and, all in all, one of the most level-headed and valuable officials who ever occupied the Directorship of the Board of Freeholders.

His re-election is a matter of vital interest to the taxpayers of Burlington County. His splendid record in office entitles him to the support of all fair-minded voters who appreciate faithful service.

Henry I. Worrell, For County Auditor

He first saw the light of day on a farm in Southampton township and lived in that neighborhood until a few years ago when he came to Mount Holly to enter the employ of the County. During the most of his life he followed farming. He is married and has a family of grown children.

He gives his undivided time to the performance of the duties of his office and has won an enviable reputation for attention to business. Mr. Worrell can be found at his office every day, where he keeps in close touch with the matters coming within his official jurisdiction. Mr. Worrell believes that public office is a public trust and the man who holds it is a servant of the people. That is his attitude toward the public and he aims to discharge that obligation to the taxpayers by giving a full measure of service. As Mr. Worrell administers the office, the County Auditorship is one of the most important departments of county business. His re-election next Tuesday will assure the people of Burlington County a continuation of efficient service in the audit of all bills presented to the County for payment. Be sure to vote for him when you prepare your ballot on Election Day.

Joseph B. Fleetwood, for Sheriff

The Republican nominee for Sheriff was born in Burlington township and lived there until he came to Mount Holly, with his father, the late Joseph S. Fleetwood, who had been elected Sheriff. He served successively as Deputy Sheriff under eight administrations, his services being recognized as so highly satisfactory that even a Democratic Sheriff asked him to remain during his term of office, which he did. There is no detail in connection with the conduct of the jail and the administration of the Sheriff's duties with which Mr. Fleetwood is unfamiliar. Efficiency is his middle name. Coming through two strenuous primary campaigns he emerged without a flaw having been discovered in his public or private record. He is known as one of the most popular men in all Burlington County and enjoys a remarkably wide personal acquaintance, all of which explains in part his fine run at the late primary. It is characteristic of him in his everyday life, that notwithstanding the heat of the race for the nomination for Sheriff, Mr. Fleetwood maintained his poise and good humor, staunchly refusing to say aught against his opponent and the latter's backers, carrying his case direct to the people instead. That is the way he is pursuing his canvass of the County as the Republican nominee for Sheriff. He is willing to be judged by his record, and that means that the voters of the County are bound to give him a splendid vote of confidence. His administration of his responsible duties as Sheriff is bound to meet with public approval. Nothing else could be looked for in a man who proved to be such a capable Deputy that for a number of successive terms, the incoming chiefs of the office urged him to remain as their aide. Mr. Fleetwood is married. Elect him next Tuesday and have a capable Sheriff during the next three years. It is like business insurance.

Clifford R. Powell, for Assemblyman

A native of Lumberton, where he was born on July 26, 1893. He is a member of the Burlington County Bar and of the law firm of Palmer & Powell, of Mount Holly. He is married and has three children.

Served in the World War in which he was twice wounded in aerial combat and was decorated for bravery. He was a lieutenant in the aviation service.

He has served two terms in the House of Assembly, during which period his committee assignments included the important committees on Appropriations, Municipal Corporations, Agriculture, etc.

Assemblyman Powell enjoys the very unusual record of never having missed a session of the House during his two years of membership of that body. He has been active in securing good roads, legislation for conservation and development of our natural resources, and for law and order. Through his instrumentality Burlington County secured several miles of State Highway which otherwise might not have come to it.

He has also been active in aiding the passage of laws for forest protection. He sponsored legislation placing the National Guard upon a more efficient and economical plane.

He pledges the same conscientious service for Burlington County and for the State at large that he has rendered in the past, devoting his best efforts and energy toward efficiency and economy in the administration of public affairs. He is committed to good roads, the speedy completion of the Delaware River Bridge and the further development of State institutions—educational, agricultural and corrective.

Assemblyman Powell has made an exceptionally active and industrious representative of the people of Burlington County. He deserves your support.

Clark B. Rogers, for Coroner

He was born in Bordentown, in which city he has been engaged in business as a funeral director for the past thirty years.

The office of Coroner is not a new one nor are the duties unfamiliar to the Republican nominee for that office, he having served in that capacity some years ago, with signal credit. He stands high in the community of which he has been a life-long resident. As a vote-getter he has demonstrated his popularity on more than one occasion. He is located where geographical conditions make advisable the stationing of a Coroner, there now being one in Moorestown and another in Mount Holly. In Mr. Rogers we find a candidate combining efficiency, experience and personality. He will serve the people well, as he has in the past. Be sure to vote for him when you go to the polls on Tuesday next.

PECTIN EXTRACT HAS MANY COOKING USES

Lemon or Orange Best for Making Clear Amber Jelly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many fruit juices that do not ordinarily make successful jelly may be jellied by the use of pectin extracts. Lemon or orange pectin extract is better to use than apple pectin extract when a clear amber jelly is desired from such juices as pineapple, orange, lemon or grapefruit. Even with rhubarb, apple pectin extract often produces a dark, cloudy jelly instead of the transparent, brightly-tinted product which may be secured by the use of the practically colorless orange or lemon pectin.

Thick-skinned oranges and lemons are best to use for this purpose. The fruit should be washed and wiped dry; and the outer yellow rind, which would impart an undesirable flavor, should be carefully pared off, using a silver or glass knife, or a steel blade which does not stain. It is easier to remove this rind before the fruit is cut than afterwards.

After the yellow skin is removed the white peel is cut off in as large pieces as possible, care being taken that none of the fruit pulp adheres to it. If as much as one-half pound of peel is collected at one time, the extraction of the pectin may be made at once. If, however, the peel is collected from time to time in small amounts, it can be dried and kept either until there is a sufficient quantity to make the process of extraction practical, or until the jelly is to be made. It must be so carefully dried that all discoloration is prevented, otherwise the flavor will not be good.

Put the fresh peel through a meat grinder, using the coarse blade; then place it in a granite saucepan large enough to permit rapid boiling, cover it with the water and allow it to stand for one or two hours. Just before beginning to heat, measure the depth of the material in the pan, by standing a silver knife or spoon handle upright in it. Boil rapidly until the volume is reduced to a little less than one-half of the original, measure the depth as before. Strain through four thicknesses of cheesecloth and allow to stand until dripping is complete. The dripping may be hastened a little by pressing the mass lightly with a spoon.

Two more extractions are made in the same way, adding two quarts of water to the pomace each time. It is not necessary, however, to allow the pomace and water to stand for an hour before heating, as it was in making the first extraction.

Mix the three extractions together. If the peel has been cooked according to the directions given, a little less than one pint of strained liquid should be obtained as a result of each extraction, and the total amount from a pound of peel should be about two and one-half pints. The lemon pectin extract obtained in this way is sufficiently concentrated for use. Better results are obtained with the orange pectin if the combined extracts are concentrated by boiling until the yield is reduced to two pints. Stir the liquid constantly during the boiling, since there is considerable danger of scorching.

The extract from lemon peel is a thick, somewhat syrupy liquid having a pale sediment and no very pronounced flavor. The extract from orange peel is thinner in consistency. Pectin extracts should always be shaken before using, as the sediment contains much pectin.

Citrus-pectin extract prepared in this way does not always keep so well as does the more acid apple-pectin extract. Process in a steam pressure cooker at 10 degrees for 10 minutes. Small containers are advisable, so that when a jar is opened all of the contents may be used at once and none need be lost by spoilage.

How to Foretell the Weather.

A reliable weather indicator may be found on the breakfast table; if you hesitate to call up Forecaster Conger. The bubbles which rise to the surface of a cup of tea after a lump of sugar has been dropped in are influenced by the atmosphere, and their behavior will indicate the weather for the day.

If, when a lump of sugar is dropped into a cup of tea or coffee, the bubbles accumulate in a mass, which in a short while disappears, fine conditions may be expected. When the froth lingers and spreads over the surface of the liquid, settled weather is unlikely. If the bubbles range themselves against the sides of the cup and remain it is probable that there will be rain in a few hours.—Detroit News.

His Sarcastic Fling.

"I don't like to invite Mrs. Newrich to my bridge party, and yet she's a sure loser and a good pay."

"I don't see how you are going to get her money without her company," said the sarcastic husband. "What do you expect her to do, frame your invitation and send you a check?"

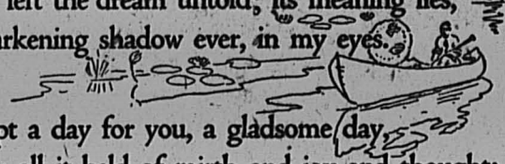
A Wasted Day

by Grace E. Hall

I kept a dream for you, a splendid dream,
And in it life and hope were very sweet;
We drifted in the sunshine down a stream
Where fringing pine-tops lean across and greet;
And o'er the heart peace lingered like a mist,
And tender as the lips you one time kissed;
You left the dream untold; its meaning lies,
A darkening shadow ever, in my eyes.



I kept a day for you, a gladsome day,
With all it held of mirth and joy and thought;
Its spirit with the throb of life was gay,
It held rare promises that Love had brought
From out the treasure-house of sacred things—
And words to thread like pearls on silver strings—
Words that were just for you—and songs unsung;
You left the heart-strings silent, the pearls unstrung.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

WORLD-WIDE PROHIBITION—WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

LESSON TEXT—Ps. 101:1-8; Prov. 23:29-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—"I will set no wicked thing before my eyes."—Ps. 101:3.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Effects of Alcohol.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fight Against Lawlessness.

I. Principles of a Righteous Life (Ps. 101:1-8).

This is a psalm of David the king, and therefore shows the conduct of a ruler. It is divided into two sections—the first, verses 1-4, refers to personal conduct, and the second, 5-8, to the government of others. This part of the lesson can only refer to the destruction of the saloon in the sense that all evil is to be uprooted and destroyed.

1. Personal Conduct (vv. 1-4). (1) Kindness and judgment (v. 1); (2) wise behavior (v. 2); (3) all malice put away (v. 3); all wickedness put aside (v. 4).

2. Government of Others (vv. 5-8). Only as one is right in his own heart and life is he fit to rule others. As a righteous man he will be against (1) the slanderer (v. 5). He will not tolerate such in his presence. (2) The worker of deceit (v. 7). The deceitful man and the liar are to be removed from his sight. (3) All workers of iniquity (v. 8). It is the duty of rulers to see that all workers of wickedness of all kinds be cut off. The manufacturer and seller of liquor should be regarded as notorious workers of iniquity. Those who blight manhood for sordid gain are grossly wicked.

II. The Awful Ruin Wrought by Strong Drink (Prov. 23:29-35).

1. Woes of Those Who Indulge in Wine (vv. 2, 30). (1) The awful pain which causes one to cry out, "Oh!" Many, indeed, are the pains which men suffer because of strong drink. Bodily ills innumerable can be traced to its evil influence. (2) The bitter remorse, which causes one to cry out, "Alas!" Many are the expressions of bitter regret which daily come from the lips of the drunkard. (3) Contention—strife and quarreling. Much of the fighting among men is directly caused by their passions being inflamed by strong drink. The drunken man is always ready to take offense, as well as to give it. (4) Babblings and complainings. The winebibber complains of everything—ill luck, loss of friends, of fate and of God. He sees everything wrong but himself. (5) Wounds without cause. These are wounds from fights in which a sober man would not have engaged, and from accidents which are purely the result of intoxication. (6) Redness of eyes. This has reference to the blood-shot eye of the tippler which dims his vision. All these woes come upon those who tarry long at wine.

II. The Attitude Enjoined (v. 31).

Look not at it. Do not put yourself into the way of temptation. The only safe attitude toward strong drink is total abstinence, and the only way to total abstinence is not to even look at it.

III. The Drunkard's Bitter End (vv. 32-35).

1. Acute Miseries. "It biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Strong drink, like the poison of a serpent, permeates the whole system and ends in the most fatal consequences.

2. Perversion of the Moral Sense. This excitement causes the eyes to behold strange things. This denotes the fantastic images produced on the brain of the drunkard. Even when delirium tremens does not result, there are awful fancies which are beyond the possibility of realization. Then does his heart utter perverse things. His moral sense being perverted, his utterances partake of the same. He tells lies; his words cannot be relied upon.

3. He Is Insensible to Danger (v. 34). He is foolhardy, even as one who would lie in the top of a ship's mast, where there is the greatest danger of falling off.

4. He Is Insensible to Pain (v. 35). The drunkard is utterly ignorant of what happens to him while under the influence of strong drink. Many bruises and wounds the drunkard has which he cannot account for.

5. His Abject Bondage (v. 35). After all his sufferings, sorrow and disappointments, he goes on as a bond slave in the ways of sin.

6. Hell at Last. No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of heaven (I Cor. 6:10).

Whole Sum of Human Life.

Of the whole sum of human life no small part is that which consists of a man's relations to his country, and his feelings concerning it.—Gladstone.

Prospects.

If you will show me the style of a man's amusements and recreations, I will tell you what are his prospects.—De Witt Talmage.

ADDED TO VALUE OF RADIO

Galena Detector Said to Have Made Concerts Practically as "Clear as a Crystal."

Radio has brought new life to the worn out phrase "clear as a crystal." In the early days of the radiophone it was difficult to get a tube set which functioned without annoying the listener with scratches and sandy noises. This difficulty has partly vanished, due to better design or receivers and more tuning knowledge on the part of the radio public. Perhaps the first person who heard a flawless radio concert rushed out immediately afterward to broadcast the information to his friends. If so he probably described the reception by saying that it was as "clear as a crystal!"

He referred to the old meaning of the phrase, which likens the object, compared to the perfect lucidity of a soothsayer's glass ball or crystal. Many amateurs have used the phrase in its old meaning, and it is only lately that the newer application has been understood. In a reflex receiver, where vacuum tubes are used in connection with the galena detector, the reception is remarkably distinct and free from annoying tube noises. The galena detector is responsible of course, and when a radio enthusiast says his reflex receiver is as "clear as a crystal" he means it.—New York Times.

Strange Experience.

Not long ago I was visiting at my sister's home. Her little boy, a child of two years, was playing in the living room one afternoon when the rest of us were in the sewing room. Suddenly I called him very sharply. "What's the matter?" asked my sister. I blushed. I did not know why I had called him. I had no reason at all, for the child was not doing anything naughty. "I don't know," I answered her, trying to think of some reason for the sharp summons. In the meantime the little one ran to me. He had no sooner reached my side than the ceiling of the room in which he had been fell. Everything in the room was either broken or badly scarred. Had the baby been there he would certainly have been killed.—Chicago Journal.

AIM AT GAME LAW HARMONY

HIGH POINT PARK MUSEUM

Commissioners, Aided by Colonel and Mrs. Kuser, Arranging for Its Establishment—State Purchases Land for Game Farm.

Trenton.—For the purpose of presenting matters it deems of common interest, the New Jersey Federation of County Boards of Agriculture has requested a hearing by the New Jersey Fish and Game Conservation League, and it is probable that a joint conference of representatives of the organization will be held within a week or so.

The federation action ostensibly is the outcome of a legislative conference of organized agricultural groups under the leadership of the county boards body and the State Grange, which was held at Trenton, September 21, last. At that session a committee was appointed to confer with the sportsmen with a view to harmony on a legislative program.

It is probable that subjects for consideration will include the question of an open season for doe deer in South Jersey, the trespass problem and the matter of permitting farmers to allow their dogs to run at large on their own property at any time. A legislative measure covering the last-named privilege failed to pass at Trenton this year, as also did one to permit the killing of does in certain southern counties. The league took a neutral stand on the latter bill, though it pointed out that to remove the ban on does would increase the hazard to human life.

One of the prime factors in the organization of the league was the hope that through it the differences that exist between farmer and sportsman be ironed out. Its activities from the beginning have indicated its sympathy with the farmer's problems. One of its first official acts was the authorization of a standing reward for the conviction of any person wilfully damaging private property while fishing or hunting, and its trespass law, carrying a penalty of $500 or six months' imprisonment for such an offense, is still fresh on the statute books.

Incidentally, the activities of the Federation of County Boards of Agriculture are reputed to have been responsible for the trespass law of which the measure enacted last year was an amendment. The old law raised a storm of protest from the hunters and anglers.

State Museum at High Point

The commissioners of High Point Park, with aid and suggestions of Colonel and Mrs. Anthony R. Kuser of Bernardsville, who donated the park to the state, are arranging for a state museum on the main floor of the manor house. Colonel Kuser has furnished a set of rare books on pheasants, prepared by Professor William Beebe, curator of birds of the New York Zoological Park and an international authority on bird life. The books are dedicated to Colonel and Mrs. Kuser, and, according to John J. Stanton, member of the commission, there are only three sets in New Jersey.

The commission will secure a large collection of minerals from the New Jersey Zinc Company mines, state curios, mounted birds, native animals, pictures, a collection of ancient and modern firearms and deer and moose heads.

Plans are being made by the commissioners for improvements at the park next year, which will include the construction of three or four lakes on the different streams running through the reservation, the building of an automobile road to the top of the Point, completion of the road around Cedar Swamp, erection of rustic seats and picnic tables at convenient points in the groves, finishing of the road around Lake Marcia, establishment of parking spaces for automobiles, widening of the road from the entrance to the manor house and the cutting out of the old trails through the wooded section for horseback riders.

The commission also has under consideration the establishment of permanent camps for the different welfare organizations in the state.

A herd of fourteen deer has been discovered in the opened sections of the reservation and an effort will be made to corral the animals and place them in the inclosed sections, together with those to be furnished from the Fish and Game Farm at Forked River this winter. James E. Fuller, father of Caretaker Morris Fuller, has reported that he sighted a black bear one day recently on the shores of Lake Marcia, opposite the manor house. A lookout is being kept for the animal and an effort will be made to get it inside the inclosure for exhibition.

The Fish and Game Commission will try raising pheasants next year on an open tract in the reservation. A cottage on the park grounds is being made ready for the representatives who will have charge of the breeding.

Warren Game Farm

Negotiations have been concluded for the purchase by the State Fish and Game Commission of the Lyman B. Delliker property near Hackettstown, and it is now being put in shape for its future use as a game farm. By spring it is expected to be running full blast.

The purchase adds 144 acres to the state-owned land under the jurisdiction of the Fish and Game Commission. About forty acres of the new property consist of timber land and the remainder is under cultivation. Two brooks run through it, as does the Morris Canal also, and there are several springs. The price involved in the deal was $11,000.

Duncan Dunn, superintendent of the State Game Farm at Forked River, will be in charge of the new farm, while his son, Malcolm, will remain at the Ocean county establishment.

Coon Hunting Popular

Protection given raccoons under state game laws a few years ago, which prohibit hunting of these animals except between October 1 and December 15, has resulted in an increase in the numbers of Davy Crockett's traditional quarry, which at one time were facing extermination in New Jersey, and coon hunting is winning renewed popularity as a fall sport among men who seek variety in their outdoor recreations.

Like many other animals of the woods, the raccoon of the present day has learned from generations of cautious ancestors, the habit of hiding during the day time and venturing forth only at night to stalk his dinner. Coon hunters must hunt the game when the animal itself is hunting and the frosty evenings of late autumn have therefore come to have an important place in the sportsmen's diary.

Ferocious when cornered, the raccoon is a worthy antagonist for any dog. Hounds are specially trained for this sport. The increasing popularity of coon hunting has made an active market in New Jersey for well-trained coon hounds and several fine packs have been organized for the sport this fall in those sections of the state where conditions afford the raccoon a protective environment.

Sportsmen Back Anti-Pollutionists

Any proposed state legislation growing out of national conferences recently held to consider methods of checking stream pollution is promised the backing of an array of New Jersey sportsmen as allies to the health and civic authorities of those communities which find it necessary to defend their portable water supply. Thousands of sportsmen are interested in the campaign to preserve the streams from what they decry as criminal carelessness that poisons the waters and destroys fish life that otherwise would provide a great food asset to the public.

New Jersey has been hard hit by the water despoilers, both along the coast and in upland streams. Oil wastes from ocean steamers and garbage from New York, dumped at sea, have created conditions along the bathing beaches that menace the pleasure of millions of vacationists, at the same time endangering fish and shellfish industries representing millions of dollars of investment and the seafood supply of many states.

Legislation Affecting Children's Health

Legislation to improve conditions affecting children will be proposed by the League of Women Voters at the next session of the legislature. Mrs. Ignatia Rittenhouse, chairman of the child welfare committee of the league, in outlining her legislative program, declared: "New Jersey laws on the subject are pretty good, as far as they go."

"Principally," she added, "we want to see that no little children under fourteen are selling things on the streets—not even papers at night. My program takes the form of suggestions to the local leagues for work. The league is interested in a higher standard of citizenship, and we shall work for the following:

"Clinics for feeding children and medical care where needed.

"Adequate institutional provision for the mentally deficient.

"Judges to be asked to hear juvenile cases privately to avoid unnecessary humiliation of children.

"Co-operation with organizations supplying milk to the undernourished school child, also hot lunches, especially in the rural districts.

"The appointment or election of at least one woman to boards of education and health.

Child Labor Law

"All local leagues to have a child welfare committee to be responsible for the enforcement of the child labor law and to report children doing work in the home and selling on the streets that our laws do not reach.

"Local leagues to make a careful study of the child hygiene program as demonstrated by the State Department of Health and to support the request of the bureau for enough money to properly operate throughout the state."

"Women are responsible for all laws on sanitation and proper housing," asserts Mrs. Rittenhouse, who believes the number of crippled children and mental deficients might be reduced if child hygiene work is extended to cover the state.

"If the people will see to it that they get an appropriation from the state, for state-wide co-operation, it will lessen taxation.

"There will be no need for institutions for the mentally deficient and the crippled if nurses are sent to the rural sections, if mothers are given prenatal care and if clinics are provided for the proper care of mothers and children."

Children are among the most beautiful springtime decorations of the national capital.

The freshness of these human flowers is something that never grows old. They are among the decorations that are with us always.

With this prelude here is another anecdote of Sonny.

When he was about two years old, just walking nicely and talking a bit, he was invited to a party given by a young lady of about the same age. His mother took him and left him there, then went away to return for him later.

After the children had played, the "eats" were served. Even the smallest ones were given a little ice cream. Sonny enjoyed his thoroughly.

Then he turned to his hostess.

Ideas of Recreation.

One idea of rest is to do nothing, another is change of occupation and environment. Most people find it difficult to do nothing, and in recreation seek complete change, thus exemplifying the philosophy of living.

Why Ozarks Were Popular.

Some think that the chief reason why prehistoric man settled in the Ozarks was because the housing was so good. The high hills are full of caves. Prehistoric man and prehistoric bears fought over their possession. No doubt some of these fights would make good historic literature, but being prehistoric, there was no history. Besides plentitude of shelter, which the Ozarks furnished man 1,500 years ago, the food supply was superior. If he could not outrace and slay a bear with his club and turn it into bear steaks, the streams were full of fish and the hillsides full of blackberries. He and the bears fought over the blackberries, probably as furiously as they did over the caves. They were creatures of similar tastes.

END IN SIGHT

"I am not going to talk this evening," said the speaker. "I've been cured of that. The other night I was making a speech when a man entered the hall and took a seat right in the front row. I had not been talking an hour when I noticed he was becoming fidgety. Finally he arose and asked:

"'Shay, how long you been lecturin'?'

"'About four years, my friend,' I replied.

"'Well,' he remarked, as he sat down, 'I'll stick around; you must be near through.'"

America's Marvels

NATURAL AND OTHERWISE

By T. T. Maxey

"THE LITTLE CHURCH AROUND THE CORNER"

So fittingly descriptive and yet at the same time so unusually appropriate is the legend "The Little Church Around the Corner" that its long-continued usage in referring to this quaint and honored landmark in "Little Old New York" has all but blotted the real name of this house of worship from the memory of the hordes of pilgrim visitors who, annually or more or less often, journey thither to "pay their respects."

"The Little Church Around the Corner," squatty, broad-spread and set well back from the narrow and busy thoroughfare, is none other than the Church of the Transfiguration. Its exact location is No. 5 East 29th street, just around the corner from Fifth avenue.

The story of how this unusual name came into being, and which arose in a perfectly natural manner, is indeed interesting. It also serves to illustrate how, through a mere turn of fate, fame sometimes unexpectedly attaches itself to an object—in this case a religious edifice.

A noted actor had died. He had no church connection. As he was widely known, his family and friends felt that a public funeral was a necessity. The curator of a neighboring house of worship was requested to conduct the funeral service. He promptly declined, adding that "perhaps the rector of the little church around the corner might be willing to serve." History records the fact that the funeral was held at "The Little Church Around the Corner."

Following in the wake of this incident, The Church of the Transfiguration was adopted as the Protestant house of worship by the theatrical profession. Since that time, this little church has been the scene of countless christenings, weddings and funerals. The church and its present and past pastors have so endeared themselves to all who have come into direct contact with them that, recently, when the present rector celebrated his silver jubilee, letters, telegrams and gifts from all sections of the country, especially from actors and newspaper men, flowed in to express the "Many happy returns of the day" spirit in the hearts of the senders.

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

DANGER AREAS IN THE HUMAN HEAD

When there is a large development in the head at the top of the ear—the region of destructiveness—many characteristics automatically follow the growth of the brain in that area. If the upper forehead and front top head are not well developed, where lie benevolence and honor, the man with large destructiveness is a danger to civilization.

Poison, murder, revenge, brutality and anger generate in destructiveness. When the higher faculties call out mental interests in an individual with such development, he is a great force for good, but when they are missing in his forehead, top head, a loveless mouth, deceitful, half closed eyes, and a pointed ear at the top, he is the man who fills the jails and creates vice.

Many people have a particular talent for swearing and cursing. They take to it as does a duck to water from their earliest childhood days. The next time you hear an individual cursing for two minutes without a single repetition, look at his head at the tip of the ear. You will find it well developed, and the top head at the center, veneration, will be low.

If destructiveness is well developed, but other faculties, such as constructiveness or good reasoning powers, combined with adaptability, are also present, the individual makes a powerful worker in the business world.

THE NEW YOUTH

By Robert Stewart Sutliffe.

"WHERE is my wandering boy tonight?" a mother used to ask, as Bill would vanish from her sight, when done the evening task; a fear of trouble filled her mind, the gay life's lure was strong, she prayed some guardian angel kind would keep her lad from wrong.

In his own home perhaps for Bill, was little wholesome fun, the boy showed nothing vicious, still, he felt when day was done the call of youth, of youthful friends, of pranks—the youth's delight, the thrill that freedom often lends the lad who's out at night.

But life at home has moved along, we've more thought for our boys, we furnish right to kill the wrong, we join them in their joys; and, Bill no longer "hangs around," the home's no longer slow, good entertainment there he's found, we have the radio

SHORT CIRCUITS

The operation of high-frequency medical coils is included in the regulations governing the use of radio transmitting apparatus. Unless connected with a grounded shield such apparatus will disturb and interrupt radio communication for great distances.

Keep the distilled water in your storage "A" battery just above the level of the plates. If you do this the top part of the plates will remain "active"; if you do not, the portion above the waterline will not generate any current and you will have lost part of the ampere-hour capacity of the battery—it will not last as long for each charge.

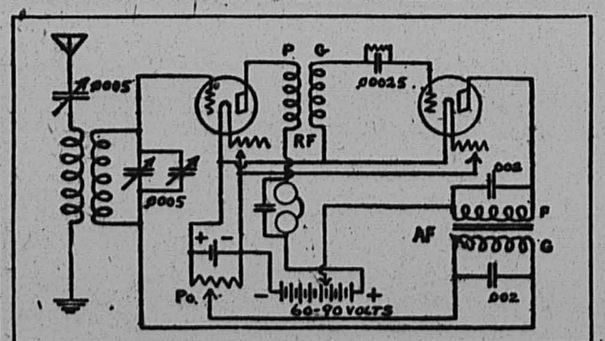
HOOK-UP FOR THE REFLEX CIRCUIT



The hook-up shown is for a reflex circuit employing two tubes. A vacuum tube is used as the detector in place of a crystal as is the case in many reflex circuits. A "soft" tube operates best as the detector. The tuning is done by a vario-coupler, honeycomb or spiderweb coils and by the secondary condenser with vernier attachment. The by-pass condensers across the phones and audio frequency transformer windings are extremely important. The potentiometer across the "A" battery should be about 400 ohms resistance. The second tube should be an amplifier. All wires should be as short as possible and none parallel or close together. The mica fixed condenser across the phones is .002 mfd.

Scotland's Famous Church.

St. Giles church, Edinburgh, is a great cruciform church, flanked by long aisles. The main building is 206 feet in length and from 76 to 129 feet in breadth. At the east end is a new window representing the Crucifixion and Ascension. Above the new west doorway, outside, are statues of John Knox, Bishop Forbes, Henderson the Covenanter and others. There is a magnificient organ. The windows have been mainly filled with stained glass in accordance with a settled plan, illustrating Bible history. The steeple dates from the Reformation and was built in 1648 about the summit period of Presbyterianism, the decade of the Westminster confession. It rises 161 feet from the ground and is topped by a beautiful openwork stone crown.

City Project Pays.

Los Angeles has purchased a thousand-acre farm and disposes of its garbage by irrigation. The sewage is treated, then used with the water for irrigation. Five hundred and fifty acres are now under cultivation and exceptionally large yields of potatoes have been produced. It is said that the sale of the water for irrigation will pay for the plant and leave a profit for the city.

Combating Pinyon Jays.

Pinyon jays, inhabiting Rocky mountain states, are birds of the same family as crows and about half their size. Between nesting seasons they rove in large flocks, often containing hundreds of birds and cause serious damage to grain crops. Successful experiments in methods of control of these birds when attacking corn were made by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture in west-central Colorado, and a leaflet containing directions for using a simple but effective poison formula has been distributed in that territory. During the wheat harvest control measures are not so successful, and in large fields, where the birds can find ample food, the use of poisoned baits is not found profitable.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SULPHUR CLEARS A PIMPLY SKIN

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

IN DISPUTE OVER J. H. FOLEY

NO POWER SAYS GOVERNOR

Governor Silzer's Secretary Writes Rebuke for Demand — Should Know the Law—State Sealer Has Not Been Found Guilty.

Trenton.—Guns of another Republican legislator were turned on Governor Silzer here in reply to his attack on the 1923 legislature. The governor, through his secretary, came right back at Senator Blackwell of Mercer, the latest to take a fling at him, adding a little more spice to the battle of words that is being waged.

Mr. Blackwell wrote the governor "in behalf of an outraged public" to remove from office immediately J. Harry Foley, state sealer of weights and measures, who was arrested in New York a week ago "in the million dollar beer scandal." The governor's reply states that he has no power to remove or suspend Mr. Foley.

In addition, Mr. Blackwell put out a statement in which he said that in view of the manner in which the governor had been attacking the Republican legislature of last year he thought it was about time the executive cleaned up his own backyard. Because the governor did not suspend or oust Foley, the senator says, "one is almost compelled to think he intends to protect Foley out of gratitude to Senator Edwards for retiring from the Presidential race in his favor." Mr. Foley was secretary to Senator Edwards when the latter was governor.

"Then, too," said Mr. Blackwell, "the constituency of Hudson county, where Foley and Edwards hold great influence, must be kept in line. These are the only reasons I can assign for keeping a man of Foley's type at the head of our Department of Weights and Measures.

"Governor Silzer now gives the 1923 Republican Senate and Assembly no credit for having the courage of their convictions; he talked quite differently last winter. Now he takes a position which implies that he is never wrong. Let us see how he reacts in this Foley affair. As Senator Frelinghuysen truly says in a recent statement: 'We must insist on honesty on the part of public officials; we must drive from public life not only the grafter but all who would directly or indirectly protect him.'"

Says Senator Should Know Law

In his reply, Mr. Pearse said to Mr. Blackwell that "it is to be presumed the ordinary citizen knows the law, but certainly a state Senator ought to know it, especially before he writes a public letter demanding the Governor to take some action." If "you had taken the trouble to find out what the law is," Mr. Pearse wrote, "you could have easily ascertained . . . that there is absolutely no power in the Governor either to remove the state sealer or to suspend him with or without pay."

Mr. Pearse assumes, he wrote, that the Senator "is perfectly sincere in this matter" and has not been actuated by political motives. If so, Mr. Pearse goes on, it is "your" duty to write to the public and say that upon investigating, it is found the Governor has no power and that "your outraged feelings have been appeased."

Further, Mr. Pearse says, "it is not only the law, but the sentiment of our people, to give every man a chance to be heard in his own defense, and I feel assured that you would not want to condemn him without a hearing."

And then, says Mr. Pearse, "speaking of the outraged public," may I suggest that you indicate to an outraged public that you have had a change of heart on the divorce bill which bore your name last winter and which has become a law over the Governor's veto to the great disgust of the electorate of New Jersey." The Governor's secretary further suggests that Mr. Blackwell bend his efforts toward the removal of this "vicious statute."

For State Prison Guards

With a view to obtaining a desirable type of men for guards at the state prison and the Leesburg farm, additional inducements have been offered. These include increased salary schedules, improvement in working conditions, including recreational facilities, and provision for providing lunch for prison employees.

Announcement of these changed conditions has been made by the Civil Service Commission, which has prepared a schedule of revised qualifications and salary rates, which are now available for distribution. Civil service examinations will be held November 15 at the State House in this city, the Newark and Jersey City city halls and the Paterson and Elizabeth court houses.

The schedule of compensation for prison keepers or guards was increased by the civil service commissioner at the request of Principal Keeper Joseph S. Hoff, to make it comparable with that in the Police Department of this city. The commission has established physical qualifications comparable to those in uniformed city departments.

With these changes it is believed the work of prison guard will be rendered more desirable and it is the hope of the prison authorities and the Civil Service Commission that a large list of eligibles will result.

One list will be established for guards at the state prison and another for guards at the prison farm and on road assignment. Those wishing to take the examination for outside guard should have some knowledge of roadbuilding, road maintenance or farm work.

Negro Migration South

Migration southward for the winter by transient negroes in Newark and other cities in New Jersey was the cause assigned by Miss Sarah Higgins, clerk in charge of the postal savings bank, Newark, for the slump in postal savings balances for September in Newark, Jersey City, Atlantic City, Elizabeth and Bayonne.

This one item did not account for all of the decrease, but was responsible for a substantial part of it, Miss Higgins said. The reports received at the local office from Postmaster General New showed that more than $500,000 was added to the accounts over the country during September, but indications are that the New Jersey total has dropped off.

The depositors' balance for Newark September 30, as compared with August 31, shows a decrease of $8,775, leaving a balance of $1,341,506. This leaves Newark in twelfth place among the cities of the United States in amount of savings balance. Jersey City remains eighteenth in position, with a decrease of $9,324.

Passaic shows an increase of $4,486, and jumped from twenty-sixth to twenty-fifth place. Atlantic City dropped from thirty-eighth place to Forty-third place, with a loss of $39,687, Paterson going from sixty-fourth to sixty-third place, and Camden showed small gains, while Elizabeth and Bayonne showed losses.

For White Plague Camp

Establishment of a state camp for tubercular children at High Point, the Sussex county park recently given to the state by Col. Anthony R. Kuser, was advocated by Dr. B. S. Pollock, president of the New Jersey Tuberculosis League at the opening session of the organization's annual meeting in the Stacy-Trent Hotel. The meeting was attended by about 400 representatives of the various counties and municipalities of the state.

The plan received general support, particularly by Dr. Samuel B. English, superintendent of the sanitorium at Glen Gardner. Speaking of the activities of many municipalities against tuberculosis, Dr. English said that 40 per cent of the children sent to shore resorts and to camps by civic organizations and municipal bodies do not gain a single pound in the period they are away.

He declared that such methods of attempting to cure and prevent tuberculosis are commendable from a sentimental viewpoint, but that they "are a mighty expensive way of expressing sentiment, as tuberculosis cannot be arrested in two weeks." Upon his motion the league named a committee consisting of one representative from each county unit to work with the executive committee in advancing the plan for a camp for children.

Bishop Pares Functions

Church circles here deeply resent an order issued by Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Philadelphia, enjoining the Rev. Charles H. Elder, chaplain at the New Jersey State Prison, from performing marriage ceremonies and officiating at funerals.

Dr. Elder was pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church here for nineteen years, retiring two years ago to become chaplain of the prison. He is one of the most popular clergymen in the city. When he severed his connection with his church many of its members continued to have him officiate whenever there was an occasion for religious services.

State Guard Athletic Contests

In furtherance of the present policy of encouraging athletic contests in the military service, General Quincy A. Gillmore, commanding the Fifty-seventh Infantry Brigade, has issued a recreational bulletin stating that the encouragement of athletics is of the greatest help in increasing morale and the interest of members of the brigade.

For the purpose of athletic organization, each regiment in the brigade will form its unlettered organization as a fourth battalion. Regimental, battalion and company athletic officers will be appointed.

The bulletin direct organization of a basketball team in each company and regimental commanders, through their athletic officers, are directed to see that battalion championships are decided by January 1 next and regimental championships by March 1. The brigade championship will be decided on a neutral court in March. A. A. U. rules will govern all contests. A trophy has been donated for the brigade championship which must be won on three different occasions, not necessarily consecutive, for permanent possession. Suitable individual awards will be given members of the winning team, not exceeding eight in number.

Inclusion of other branches of the National Guard and the naval militia in the playing schedule is authorized if they desire to participate.

Indoor track and field meets will be held in the armories at Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Paterson, Camden and this city. These meets will be open to all members of the National Guard and naval militia, also to pupils, boys and girls, of grammar and parochial schools, high and preparatory schools, the American Legion, state and city employees, industrial establishments and civic organizations.

COOK BEEF AND CALF HEARTS

Should Appear Occasionally on Family Menu Because of Variety and Economy.

Beef and calf hearts are most palatable when properly prepared, and, for the sake of variety as well as economy, since they are among the less expensive meats, they should occasionally appear on the family menu. Beef hearts are tougher than calf hearts, and must be given long cooking. calf hearts may either be cooked very quickly, as when they are sliced and fried, or given long, slow cooking, in the same way beef heart is prepared.

For the latter dish, wash either kind of heart thoroughly inside and out, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Stuff it with a mixture of broken or crumbed bread from the center of the loaf, butter or other fat, salt, pepper and chopped onion. About one cupful of bread to one small onion is a good proportion, and sufficient to stuff a beef heart. As calf hearts are so much smaller, several will be needed, and the same amount of stuffing can be made to do for two or three hearts. Sew up the opening. Cover the heart or hearts with water and simmer until tender, or boil for ten minutes and cook in the fireless cooker for six or eight hours. Remove from the water about one-half hour before serving. Dredge with flour, pepper and salt, or sprinkle with crumbs, and brown in the oven. Serve with a gravy made from the water in which the meat was cooked.

SIMMERING MUTTON IS BEST

Important for Cook to Remember That "Boiled" Meat Should Never Come to Boil.

An important thing to be remembered is that "boiled" meat should not boil, but simmer, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Prepare a leg or shoulder or lamb, or mutton, for cooking. Have ready a large kettle containing enough boiling water to cover the meat. Lower the meat into the water, taking care that it is entirely submerged. Bring the water again to the boiling point, then place kettle where water will simmer, as shown by continued motion on one side of the kettle. Continue the simmering until the meat is tender, from an hour and a half to two hours for lamb and from two to three hours for mutton. While cooking add to the water salt, pepper and any other seasonings liked.

"Yes, mum."

"Seems high."

"Did you ever try picking a quart?"

"No, I never did."

"I advise you to try it."

Defined.

"Dad, what's a monologue?"

"A monologue is a conversation between husband and wife."

"I thought that was a dialogue?"

"No; a dialogue is where two persons are speaking."

—A masquerade social will be given by the Philathea Class for its members and friends at the home of Mrs. F. N. Johnson, 514 Morgan avenue, Palmyra, Thursday evening.

—Mrs. and Mrs. A. Harry Rudduck, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Jewett and Miss Horner motored to Woodbury to witness a big Hallowe'en parade held there last Saturday evening.

—Roy Hardy continues to be the Tilden of Palmyra. Roy annexed the tennis championship the other day for the fourth consecutive time by defeating Lons Bonsal in a brilliant contest.

—The Calder Bible class will hold its business meeting and social this Friday evening, November 2, at the home of Mrs. Way, 136 West Fifth street. A good attendance is requested.

—The monthly business meeting and social of the King's Daughters Bible class will be held Tuesday evening, November 6, at the home of Miss Nora Carpenter, 325 Cinnaminson avenue.

—Miss Martha Nauman, of Mt. Airy, spent several days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Seel, Jr. On Saturday night the Misses Seel entertained a number of their friends at a masquerade party.

—Mrs. Gilbert Lees gave a masquerade party in honor of her niece, Mrs. Marcey Lyons, of Morgantown, W. Va., last Saturday evening. Mrs. Lees also gave a party for a number of the friends of her little son, "Chubby," early in the evening.

—The homes in the three hundred block of Leconey avenue were without water from Friday night until Saturday noon. A truck backed into a fire plug in front of Frank Howell's home and broke the connection so that the water in the entire block had to be turned off in order to make repairs.

—A surprise masquerade party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hansen, of Broad street, Palmyra, in honor of their daughter, Mrs. S. Stokley. Many guests were present from Riverside, Merchantville, Riverton, Philadelphia and Palmyra. Mrs. Stokley and son left on Monday morning for Oakland, Calif. She will be remembered as Miss Bertha Hansen.

—Maurice MacCrosson narrowly escaped being seriously injured when he was forced off the Colestown road and side swiped a bridge in order to avoid a fast approaching machine with headlights that blinded him. The rear axle was broken and the housing somewhat damaged but no one was injured. The car was brought to Palmyra early Sunday morning after Bill Prisco, Rutschman's popular mechanic, had spent hours repairing it.

—Professor A. S. Griffith, supervising principal of the Palmyra schools, reports Leonard R. Baker has donated six heavy rubber rain coats and hats to be used by the members of the Safety Patrol in bad weather. Mr. Griffith is very grateful to the donor of this gift and is sure that these presents will greatly aid in preserving the health of the youngsters who are on duty at the railroad crossings and Cinnaminson avenue before and after each school session. The coats and hats are to be kept in the school and will only be worn by the boys while on duty.

GLAD TO BE AN AMERICAN

Dr. Dorizas Tells Men's Club of World Conditions as He Saw Them

The Men's Club listened attentively to one of the most interesting talks ever given before the organization when Dr. Michael Dorizas addressed the meeting in Christ Church parish house Monday evening.

Dr. Dorizas, whom everybody was calling "Our Mike" before the evening was over, is the famous Greek athlete of the University of Pennsylvania, who broke many records in weight events, was a champion wrestler and all-round athlete, having earned three letters in his career in University sports.

Dorizas has just returned from a 16-months trip around the world, during which he visited some of the remotest parts of the earth and underwent many interesting and sometimes dangerous experiences.

At one time, during a South American Revolution, so many bullets entered his hotel room that all his baggage was damaged. While in China he was captured several times by bandits. In Mexico he ate real "hot dog."

Dr. Dorizas summarized conditions in the countries he visited and explained what each needed most.

Mexicans need education, a good honest government and, most of all, should shake off the curse of "pulque," the native strong drink.

Other South American countries were discussed in order, then Dr. Dorizas turned to Europe.

In Germany he found the plight of the common people very bad. There was much suffering, discontent and immorality, while the captains of industry were living high and cashing in on conditions resulting from the war.

In France he reported that conditions in general were fairly good, but that all the people felt the need of security in the future and dreaded the time that Germany might become strong again.

France, he said, was not sure that the occupation of the Ruhr was coming out well, but planned to ruin Germany if France herself was ruined.

In Italy, the Fascista, who now have control, were called similar to the Ku Klux Klan.

In all parts of the world Dr. Dorizas found difficulties and suffering. It was only in the United States that the great masses of people are happy, prosperous and contented.

Nothing can make a man so glad to be an American, he said, as to see at first hand how poorly the rest of the world is making out.

At the conclusion of the lecture, Mrs. Ellen Griffenberg Parker gave a much enjoyed reading, while the ladies of St. Agnes' Guild served refreshments.

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION

Palmyra Residents Celebrate in Costume and Many Prizes Were Awarded

Palmyra's first community Hallowe'en celebration proved a huge success.

The crowd almost equalled that of the Old Home Day celebrations and was estimated at several thousand, while the maskers were numbered by the hundreds.

The parade was a big event of the evening. Even George Wimer donned a clown suit, covered his face with calsomine and vermillion and became one of the most stalwart and impressive harlequins in the procession.

With Frank A. Mathews as Napoleon and Ed Roberts as court jester, Mr. Wimer led the march up and down Broad street. It is impossible to mention all the splendid costumes and the judges had a hard time in awarding the prizes properly.

The palm for best dressed man and best dressed woman went to Mrs. F. A. Snover and Mrs. M. R. Blackwell, who appeared in full dress of the Colonial period.

Andy Pfaff carried off honors for most comical man and Mrs. L. Sloan as Sis Hopkins, was voted the most comical woman.

The best dressed girl was Helen Schmidt, of Elm avenue, and the best dressed boy was a lad in kilts who slipped away before his name was obtained.

Ben Torbett's Sourkrout band won the group prize. "Buck" Truman was most unique man, with roller skates and a lit-up nose.

The most unique woman probably was the big hit of the parade. "She" was Miss Palmyra and turned out to be Ed Black. He was garbed in dusky tights, bountifully overstuffed, over which was worn a scanty one-piece bathing suit. Miss Palmyra carried a bather's parasol and performed dances along the street.

Special feature prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. Kooker as Uncle Sam and Goddess of Liberty; Albert and Charles Schuck, one of whom was a big baby in a coach, pulling at an immense bottle of milk; Mr. and Mrs. Sohlke; the Salvation Army girl and convert; the Gold Dust Twins, who were Catherine Curry and Anna Yerkes; and Charles Simons and "Bus" McAllister, who were the monkey and organ grinder.

Y.W.C.A.

The first fall meeting of the Y.W. C.A. was held on Tuesday evening, October 30th.

The president, Miss Ruth King, delegate to the Silver Bay conference, gave a full and extremely interesting report of the ten day's attendance.

The report included several amusing incidents that happened en route; and an animated account of the procedure of the conference from beginning to end.

The meeting closed with singing "Follow the Gleam."

The meetings will be held regularly every Tuesday evening at the Porch Club. We hope to see all former members and many new ones.

All are cordially invited to come and express a choice of classes, which are about to be formed.

NEW FIRE PUMPER ARRIVES

Demonstration Given at Pensauken Creek—Celebration Will Be Held Saturday Afternoon

Palmyra's new Seagraves pumping fire engine arrived in town Wednesday noon and was immediately taken out to the Pensauken creek at Harris' coal yard to demonstrate what it could do.

The pumper soon had two powerful streams hurling a storm of water across the creek.

The machine will throw four streams at once, or will combine all its power into a deluge strong enough to tear down walls.

The capacity of the pumps is 750 gallons a minute. The engine is of 75 horse power.

A big celebration has been arranged for the dedication of the rebuilt firehouse and the housing of the pumper this Saturday afternoon.

Fire companies from all over the county will send delegations and apparatus here to join in the parade. Many desirable prizes have been offered. These awards are now on display in Buohl's drug store window. Special prizes have been ararnged for the best decorated business places and residences along the route of parade.

K. OF C. MASK BALL

Autumn Frolic Is Big Success; Fifty Prizes Awarded

One of the largest and most entertaining affairs held in this community for sometime was the Mask Ball given by the local K. of C. on last Monday night. The hall was jammed and the costumes were beyond description.

The judges, Messrs. Weart, Wimer, Bennett, Wright and McChesney, had the difficult task of awarding over fifty prizes, but they handled the situation to the Queen's taste, while J. Hughes as floor manager, was the busiest man in seven counties.

The hall was tastefully decorated in autumn colors, and with the aid of an immense spot light the assemblage gave an impressive and grotesque appearance. It showed careful planning by the committee in charge.

The prizes were awarded as follows

Fancy costume, men—first—J. Ford, Riverton; second, C. Hardeman, Palmyra; third, H. Burkhardt, Riverton.

Comic costume, ladies — first — M. Hearny, Delanco; second, L. Miller, Westmont; third, M. Waters, Riverton.

Character, ladies—first—M. Jones, Palmyra; second, M. McChesney, Moorestown; third, Mrs. Kellie, Riverton.

Original, ladies—E. Hughes, Camden.

Original, men—H. Blow, Riverton.

Comic couples—A. Pfaff and M. Sloan, Riverton.

One of the most spectacular events of the evening was the group contest which was won by the Palmyra group, representing the Wooden Soldiers. The costumes were most artistic and tasteful. The group was composed of C. Hardeman, captain, Mrs. F. Mathews, Mrs. B. Miller, Mrs. D'Autrechy and Miss E. Rogers, soldiers.

WALLACE CATCHES BURGLAR

Mystery of Robberies During Last Six Weeks Cleared Up When Thief Confesses

Charles Jones, colored, of Clarkville, Va., was arrested by Officer Nelson Wallace, of Palmyra police force, about six o'clock Tuesday morning after he had attempted to enter Curtis Stavely's home on West Charles street and had broken into the home of William Spuck, of Pennsylvania avenue.

The police had been notified of the attempts at robbery and Officers Wallace and Joseph Rodgers had scoured the town for the man. Wallace was on his way home when he discovered the man on Public road carrying a suit case. He arrested him on suspicion. In the valise were found a brace and bit, a flash light and a pair of field glasses.

Jones was later questioned by Chief of Police C. Morris Beck and Officer Rodgers. He admitted being the man who had entered a number of homes in East Riverton and Riverton. He denied having stolen a roast in Riverton, but admitted he had been in the house, declaring someone else must have followed him and "swiped" the meat. It was the only charge he did deny.

He was committed to the county jail at Mount Holly by Justice of the Peace William L. Fichter without bail. He is suspected of being implicated in a number of robberies which have been committed in Camden, Merchantville, Delair, Moorestown and Delanco.

Jones says he left his home in the South about six weeks ago and immediately came to this vicinity. It was about that time that the homes in these towns were first broken into. Jones hardly behaved like the usual run of law breakers, for only in one instance did he deny a charge and seemed to be perfectly willing to answer any questions. He seemed to be of the slow witted type who become sneak thieves rather than work and would not harm anyone unless cornered.

The case is now in the hands of County Detective Ellis Parker, who will look up the man's record in the South and investigate the charges made in Burlington and Camden counties.

This was the man's first visit in Palmyra and will probably be the last, even if he is freed of the other charges.

NEW FORD PLANT

Water Power Will Be Used at Big Factory on Mississippi

Detroit, Mich., November 1 — All major decisions covering the construction of the Ford Motor Company's plant to be erected along the Mississippi river between Minneapolis and St. Paul have been made and details just announced here give the first information regarding the magnitude of the new Ford project.

Hydro-electric plant, steam plant and manufacturing and assembly plant constitute the three important buildings with interest centering chiefly about the hydro-electric development since it represents the company's most extensive undertaking of this kind.

The dam where the power will be developed is 547 feet long and was completed by the government in 1917. When the Ford engineers started work it was discovered that modification of the power house substructure built by the government was necessary in order to take advantage of improvements since made in water wheel design. More than 6,000 cubic feet of concrete work was torn out and the changes are now nearly completed. They will permit installation of modern turbines and besides improving flow conditions will effect the highest efficiency.

The power house will be 160 feet long by 74 feet wide and 48 feet above the foundation. Four water wheels of 4,500 horse-power will be installed, which, in conjunction with four vertical generators, will under normal conditions produce approximately 18,000 horse power.

Within a short distance of the hydro-electric plant, and on the river bank, it also is planned to erect a steam power house to supplement the water power in case of emergency.

The immense manufacturing and assembly plant will be erected on an imposing site on the bluff 100 feet above the water-level. It will front on the Mississippi River Boulevard and will be faced with stone on three sides and so designed as to present a most attractive appearance.

Needlework Guild of Riverton

From what I heard lately, I am inclined to think there are many people in Riverton, who have not heard of the Riverton Branch of the Needlework Guild.

This organization is just a wee branch of the National Needlework Guild and was started many years ago, in 1894, in fact, by Mrs. Edward H. Ogden for the purpose of collecting, once a year, new household linen for home or institutions, or new wearing apparel for men, women and children.

A Branch has officers and directors, whose duty it is to gather in these new garments or linen, as stated above, from ten or more people—besides her own.

Thus we have in Riverton about 35 directors, who collect from their members (though some donate the whole 22 or more themselves) many warm, useful garments for distribution to our own charities and elsewhere.

Each director must have one money member, and any man, woman or child can become a member. We have about a dozen institutions on our list, giving a large number of articles to our own relief committee, to the Cinnaminson Home and, of course, to special cases in our vicinity.

We are required to send in a substantial sum of money to the National organization, and can only keep a small amount for trifling expenses for ourselves, the balance going to help some charity in our midst.

Our annual meeting and exhibition of garments will be held in the Porch Club on Monday, November 12th, at 2.30 p. m., when Miss Margaret S. Haines, of Burlington, will talk to us on the "Charities of Burlington County."

Won't you all come and drink a cup of tea with us then, see our collection and become interested in this good work? And how many of you before that date will send two new garments to any of the undersigned, or to a director, and thus become a member? We need you all, and your help badly.

President, Mrs. W. A. Hendrickson.
Vice Presidents, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Miss Amelia R. Coale.
Secretary, Mrs. Richard D. Barclay.
Treasurer, Mrs. Henry Ashburner.

Yours for a good cause,
MRS. ROB'T BIDDLE.

Open Letter from the Cinnaminson Home

The Board of Managers of the Cinnaminson Home wishes to take this opportunity to express to the people of Riverton and Cinnaminson, its appreciation of the many kindly feelings concerning the work of the Home, which were expressed during the week of the collection of funds for three neighborhood charities, and for its very splendid share in the proceeds.

While the Home receives many patients from Philadelphia and even northern New Jersey, its first desire is to serve the people of its own community.

Anyone from Burlington county desiring admission is given precedence over even a waiting list of patients from other sections; and regulations are often disregarded in favor of neighborhood people. For instance, while the custom is to keep patients two, or at most four weeks, one elderly guest from Riverton, who was found in very needy circumstances, stayed happily at Cinnaminson for eight months until a satisfactory permanent home could be found for her.

The patients are all made to feel that they are in a real home and not an institution, and many letters from grateful women constantly testify to the beautiful spirit which is found to prevail.

The Cinnaminson Home is entirely non-sectarian and patients of every creed are welcomed. They form one big family, each enjoying equal privileges and each sharing in the daily life.

On Sundays they all gather for a non-sectarian service, and on week days, they join in good times of every kind, often voluntarily planning ways to help the Home.

Anyone desiring admission can secure all information by applying to Mrs. Herbert T. Smith, Burlington Pike, Cinnaminson. Telephone: Moorestown 268-R.

The Cinnaminson Home needs the help of the community and gratefully acknowledges the constant interest and support of its many friends, and it is also hoped that the people of the community need the Cinnaminson Home and will turn to it as a haven in time of trouble, sure of finding sympathy and help.

MRS. ALEXANDER C. WOOD, Jr.
Secretary of Board of Managers.

Christians Awake.

People don't appreciate preaching as they used to. Two centuries ago John Rudge of Trysull, Staffordshire, England, left $5 yearly to pay a man to keep the congregation awake and the dogs outside the church. Richard Dovey of Claverly in Shropshire left $3 a year for the job. It would take more than that to keep people awake in some churches in these expensive days. Dogs seemed to have disturbed the congregations both at Chislet in Kent, and Peterchurch in Herefordshire, for in both these places there are legacies to secure their exclusion. At Wolverhampton it was not dogs, but boys that disturbed devotions, and it was hoped to keep them quiet for $1.25 a year.

Where Dancing Lands Husband.

In Zululand in Africa the dance is the first and last consideration when it comes to match-making, courtship, and finally, to marriage. In fact, dancing is a specific requirement for a girl who wishes to find a husband. And it is the dance which gives the young natives of this wild country a chance to make up his mind which of the Zulu girls he prefers. The young men, bedecked with feathers and plumes, and the young women, resplendent in all the beads on which they can lay their hands, line up on two sides, the men on one side and the girls on the other, as for a Virginia reel. Each man selects a girl. It is her ability to dance which attracts him and for which he selects her as his wife.

Odd Fellows

A well attended meeting of Cinnaminson Lodge was held last Friday evening, October 26. Almost a revival of good old times to see again some of the faces of yester-year.

Besides the pleasure of renewing old acquaintances and the re-hashing of noble deeds of "them was the days" we also had as a feature of the evening "radio night." Or should I say "radio morning," for the wee small hours came—and almost went before the spell was broken by someone saying "Gosh! there goes the milkman."

The coming meeting Friday, November 2nd, also promises to be a hummer. The winter's activities of the Lodge will be in full swing with the renewal of degree work in full form. With the revival of the interest taken in our team, rated as second to none in New Jersey in days gone by, and with our class of prospective novitiates steadily growing, it looks like busy times ahead.

The radio bugs also have something up their sleeves for us, promising plenty of recreation following the work of the evening. C.C.S.

Palmyra YMCA Held Get-together Last Thursday Evening

The Palmyra YMCA Board entertained on Thursday evening, October 25th, about seventy-five men and boys at their first fall get-together meeting in the YMCA hall, Broad and Garfield avenue. The speaker of the evening was Henry F. Stockwell, noted lawyer of Moorestown. Very appropriate talks was also given by various members of the Palmyra Board. Guy C. Hendry's newly acquired orchestra also gave several musical numbers and assisted with the singing, which was led by S. B. Jones, Jr., leader of the Calvary YMCA group. The evening was very appropriately brought to a close by the ladies serving refreshments.

The boy's group will meet for reorganization Thursday evening, November 8, at YMCA hall. All boys between the ages of 12 and 16 who wish to sign up with a group may present themselves at this time.

FLOATING LAND IN HOLLAND

Turf Is Transported From Marshland to Add to the Area of an Existing Town Site.

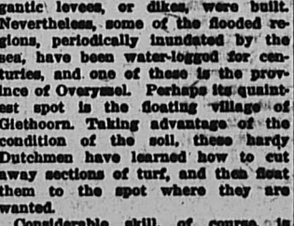
Of all countries of Europe, Holland affords, perhaps, the best example of how the topography of a country affects the habits of its people, and influences their lives. A considerable portion of the low country lies below the level of the sea, and it was to resist its cruel invasions that the gigantic levees, or dikes, were built. Nevertheless, some of the flooded regions, periodically inundated by the sea, have been water-logged for centuries, and one of these is the province of Overymel. Perhaps its quaintest spot is the floating village of Giethoorn. Taking advantage of the condition of the soil, these hardy Dutchmen have learned how to cut away sections of turf, and then float them to the spot where they are wanted.

Considerable skill, of course, is necessary to escape a ducking, because the footing is uncertain and slippery, and the marshland deceptive and treacherous. Poles, about 12 feet in length, are employed to shove off the floating home sites, which are cut away beyond the village limits and then guided to town. Some eight or ten men follow this work exclusively, and, naturally, are very adept in the handling of their poles and the "islands" in their charge. Giethoorn has been built up in this manner.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Whippoorwills Work at Night.

Nighthawks and whippoorwills work chiefly at night, when most of other birds are off duty, and at daybreak their good work is taken up by the swifts and swallows, says Nature Magazine. These birds are provided with big snapnet mouths, and as they swing through the air over wide areas of country, they scoop up almost unbelievable numbers of insects. Six hundred were taken from the stomach of a single Arkansas nighthawk.

Homing pigeons probably are closer to the human family than any other form of winged life. The birds have remarkable intelligence. They mate in pairs and the female of each union has exercised her right of suffrage to the extent that the male helps her in hatching out the eggs and in caring for and feeding the young.



HIS CHOICE.

"What do you like best about going to school, Johnny?"
"The coming home."

Can't Kill That.

A thousand years
From now, I know,
They'll still be saying:
"Ain't it so?"

His Estimate.

"Dad," said the young hopeful, who was thinking of branching out in the world, "whadda you think of the chicken business for me?"

"Well," said the wise one, "I dunno, son. It costs a lot to feed 'em. And if you ever start using taxicabs you'll go broke."

Profundities.

"Do you understand this new Chinese game?"

"No," replied Miss Cayenne, "but I like to trifle with it. It helps to take my mind off the Einstein theory."—Washington Star.

She Was Their Half-Aunt

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Florette dashed down the garden walk, wearing her grand air the least bit askew. To the girl studying herself in a hand mirror, she hissed softly: "Poor Esme-Samson! The Philistines are upon her, just as she has bobbed her hair. And there's not a Delilah of excuse for it."

"Well, what of it?" Esme-Samson asked, yawning faintly. "She can't do any more or worse. Already she has cut me off with one poor dollar in her will."

"But today she seems relenting. Anyway, she has come to take us on an all-day ride, and the hamper breathes of richness even afar and through its sole leather," Florette expounded.

"I love your imagination," Esme said, rising laggardly. "The hamper cost so much she never feels she can afford to put anything in it except bread-and-butter sandwiches and jam crackers, with the jam mostly left out."

"This time is different. Listen!" Florette flung back. "There's to be somebody else—double somebody else, in fact. Two men—actually. That means eats on top of eats. You know how Maria cottons to trousered beings as well as that she knows men have to be fed if you expect or wish to see them ever again."

"Ahem! This grows exciting," Esme answered, reaching both arms above her head for a specially choice yellow rosebud. It was no more golden than the hair straying mistily above the smooth forehead, no more enticingly curved than the slightly parted lips. They said languidly, "Names, please. I'd hate my expectations to get a crick in the neck." Then, after the least pause, "Names don't really matter so—if only the bank rolls are big enough—and the noses not too big."

"Fate sought to conceal them by naming them Smith—their mother did more and worse by making them Joseph—Jesse and Joseph."

Florette groaned, pretending to hide her eyes in sympathy, though they danced to match the leaves overhead. "But that isn't all nor even the worst," she went on. "They are known to each other, hence to all their familiar world, as Jee-Jesse and Jesse-Jee. Additionally—they are twins—of the very worst sort—liker than even two peas."

"Can heaven suffer such things?" Esme apostrophized wildly.

"It can—and we must," Florette returned. "Because our succoring Philistine Maria told me after reciting these things that they were so awfully girlishy she'd forgive us all our sins of omission and commission if we'd manage even to bring one of them to the altar—and, of course—the halter."

"It will have to be 'both or nothing.'" Esme sighed. "Since they come double-barreled needs must we take 'em so. I wonder how we'll ever know which is whose?"

"We may have to resort to branding," Florette began. Esme clapped her hands. "There Pat Parker will come in well—he knows all about such things," she cried.

"But not on such stock," Florette dissented, adding after a nice balancing upon one tiny foot: "Come along and make ready for the sacrifice."

"We're no kin at all," Florette explained three days later to a twin Smith—she was not sure which, "Maria resulted from my grandpa marrying Esme's grandmamma—when both ought to have known better. So she's our joint half-aunt. That excuses our irreverence—we can each lay all we don't like about her on the other blood."

"What is it you don't like?" the twin asked, giggling softly.

"Her luck," Florette answered shrugging. "You see, she married money—millions of it—and served only six months of the life sentence that went with it."

"And she won't try the game over—bad scran to her!" Pat Parker interjected over the girl's shoulder, pretending to frown. "Heartless, I call it—kapin' the illegant three av us clane out av our unconstitutional rights. The guv'mint should sit up and take notice at wanst."

Pat was no more Irish than his attempts at brogue, but liked to be thought so—it excused some of his audacities. Hence the foreshortening of his baptismal Kilpatrick to a single syllable and maltreatment of the commonwealth's English. "Say," he hailed the other twin Smith now approaching with Esme: "Now about makin' medicine—makin' it right. Supposin' the three av us go at Maria, in battalion, wan by wan—proposin' to her in the self-same hour—what d'ye reckon would happen?"

"The police—on a riot call," Esme laughed. "Our half-aunt is so canny I'm sure she was born with her eye-teeth cut. She may not know what she wants—but she certainly does know how and when she wants it."

"Lady—logic—is irresistible," Pat returned, bowing.

The new-come Smith looked thoughtful. "Granddad says, any woman will marry—except a dead one," he said. "I fthat's true—there's a risk—" pausing with eyes fast on Florette—who cried at him stormily: "Shame on you! Flo and double flo! We thought you had at least some sporting blood—we know Pat and Mr. Other-Smith are dead game."

"You really want us to try?" from Mr. Other-Smith. Florette nodded, Esme shook her head, but the gay chorus from the three men overrode her protest. The group broke up, with a promise to gather and hear the returns before tennis that afternoon.

The girls were over-prompt—nothing masculine greeted their eyes as they strolled toward the courts. But disconcertingly, Maria, the Philistine half aunt, was in evidence, yet luckily, in a dissolving view. She called over her shoulder: "Remember, girls—we are due for a long drive after it" and went away high-headed—a small upright figure that stepped so decisively there was distinction in her movement. Esme looked after her saying: "She might have married fifty times over—but for the money. It makes her suspect everybody—" "No wonder," Florette interrupted. "Dad says she was an ugly duckling instead of a joyous surprise. So she was nagged and picked at as long as her parents lived. Enough, I say, to ruin any disposition."

"Our Argonauts are late," Esme said, glancing down at her watch.

"Coming! I see them in the offing—but they approach like beaten hounds," Florette answered, scanning the distance, where three laggard figures made haste very, very slowly toward them.

When the trio were just well within hail Maria shot from an ambush of shrubbery, saying mellifluously: "Well met, young people! Just what I was hoping for. I have news to tell—thanks to render—a weighty choice to make. You have all known how I thought of myself—a pill, so richly gilded some were willing to swallow it—only because of the gilding. Today I have been shown my mistake—three times over by these noble young fellows. The morning paper told how my riches had taken wings—at least, after I die. My husband's executors have dug up a residuary legatee, a husky grandson nobody dreamed existed. Yet—these three straightaway proposed to me, one after another—"

"And you accepted all three! I know it!" Esme shrieked with a convulsive giggle.

"Gratitude forbade anything else," said Maria. "Though, of course—I have a preference," laying a possessive hand on Pat. "But I do hope you girls will be wise enough to realize that my leavings are almost as good as my havings."

There she broke into the most real laugh of a lifetime, her eyes shifting from one to another of the blank faces fronting her. Pat came up first, saying with a hard breath: "Oh, ma'am—I renege—because the game was crookit from the start, belave me—besides, I don't deserve ye."

"Indeed," said Maria, trying to purse her lips but failing—they were so full of giggle—then to the Smiths: "And you. Still in the game?"

"I am," said Jee-Jesse. Jesse-Joe looked at Esme: "You—you've got the say for me," he muttered.

Again Maria laughed happily. "She may have you and welcome," she said, "because, you see, the lawyer-person who took away my fortune insists that he did it solely in order to give me a better one—his own."

$100,000 a Month

Nearly $100,000 worth of switchboards and other Central Office equipment is being added to the Bell System in southern New Jersey every month this year.

Included in the construction program—the greatest ever undertaken in the state—are most of the Central Offices in this territory.

Construction is costly now? Yes, but telephones are needed. They are needed now. Next year or the year after won't do.

We are building now, because the demands for service are with us now.

A BUSY YEAR

Brief Resume of the Activities of Many Parent-Teacher Associations throughout County

The following brief extracts taken from detailed and most interesting reports of their work submitted by Parent-Teachers and Home and School Associations in Burlington County will give some faint idea of their varied activities and the many fine things they are accomplishing. This condensed report was read at the State Convention of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations held in Trenton last week (October 31, November 1 and 2,) by Mrs. Walter L. Bowen, Chairman of the Burlington County Council.

"With a membership of 3000, representing 40 associations, it is a difficult task to report fully the activities of each association in the alloted five minutes.

"The big work done as a County this year has been the founding of The Burlington County Educational News, a monthly newspaper, containing 28 columns or 560 inches of news published ten months of the year, containing all home and school news, school news from kindergarten to high school; namely, athletics, field days, commencements, school plays, legislative news, affecting the schools, etc. This paper will also be a means of financing our two scholarships at the State Normal School. Just to illustrate what this paper will mean to the County Association, all the local reports will be published in full in the Burlington County Educational News.

"Another County activity is the voluntary collection taken at each County Meeting, making it possible to have physical defects corrected for the children in our schools, who are otherwise financially unable to have the work done. This corrective work is carried on under the direction of the County Attendance officer.

As a token of the appreciation of the many fine things she did to better the condition of the school children in the County, the Burlington County Council presented Miss Elva Hughes, a former Attendance Officer, with a bulb Radio Outfit, that she might enjoy the good things of the world, even though confined to the house through illness.

The local associations contributed money that their County Council Chairman, Mrs. Walter L. Bowen, might attend the National Convention at Louisville, Kentucky, in May, at which time a former New Jersey State President, Mrs. A. H. Reeve, was elected National President.

LUMBERTON Association reports a mid-summer meeting, at which time representatives from five nearby associations were present. Ideas were exchanged and plans laid for the coming year. During the year the following equipment was purchased: pictures, covers for piano and table, playground equipment, clothing for school children, financed two educational trips for the pupils. A committee has been appointed to rid the school ground of sand burrs, and they soon hope to have a "school beautiful."

RIVERTON purchased a set of stereopticon pictures to be used in the school for educational purposes. They award each month, to the grade having the largest percentage of mothers present, a Victrola record, with the idea of stimulating a spirit of musical appreciation. They have also established a Department of Life Membership in the local association, at $3.00.

PALMYRA collected for the Children's Home in Trenton, games, toys, and books for Christmas. The association purchased a velour curtain for the new high school auditorium, at a cost of $648. A course of lectures on Social Hygiene, under the direction of Dr. A. J. Casselman, was given.

MOUNT LAUREL had a community day. Men brought tools and teams and with the larger boys of the school worked all day in improving the school grounds. A hot lunch was served to the workers by the association. In September a canning day was planned, at which time a number of the members donated tomatoes and came to the school and canned 132 jars, to be used in the hot lunches during the winter.

MEDFORD reports through the efforts of their association, the train that carried the high school pupils to Mount Holly, was changed so that they would not be late. By the aid of their association a small boy in need of an operation for tonsils and adenoids, received treatment at the Burlington County Hospital.

VINCENTOWN had a community day, the purpose of which was to level the school grounds. The women kept the men thus engaged in good humor by serving a hot dinner both days they worked. They installed electric lights in the school and on May 30th served a dinner to the few remaining veterans of the Civil War and their wives.

HAINESPORT furnished sanitary drinking cups for the school. The Hainesport report says: "Our school has been overcrowded for sometime past. We have worked faithfully in trying to get a new one, but at the present time we have nothing definite in view. Given a new school and with the spirit of our very active members, we feel that we could give our children an up-to-date lunch room and playground, which are badly needed."

STANWICK installed electric lights throughout the school building and provided a platform to be placed in the school for entertainments.

PEMBERTON pledged $100 toward the maintenance of a car for the Public Health Nurse. They furnished the musical program for the community Christmas Tree and contributed $145 toward a fund for a curtain for the high school auditorium.

TABERNACLE holds two meetings a month, one a business meeting, the other being a community social affair. Also contributed $10 to the Children's Home in Mount Holly.

RIVERSIDE aided the Summer Playground Association. Had dental work done for pupils. At Christmas they distributed 46 baskets of provisions to needy families.

FIELDSBORO purchased new shades for the school, scales and sand tables.

SHEDAKER, our youngest association, has planted evergreen trees and flowers to beautify the school yard. The farmers sent teams and trucks to fill in the school yard, which was below grade. This association also bought bowls, cups, tables and benches to make the lunch room more attractive.

MOUNT HOLLY supplied milk for undernourished children, furnished clothing and shoes, eyes were examined and glasses provided for a needy child. A stereopticon machine was purchased and they helped to purchase equipment for the summer playground.

DELANCO pays rent for a room used for the baby clinic. Furnished free milk to the children, donates to the fund for spreading Christmas cheer in the town.

SPRINGSIDE got added equipment for the teachers' rest room, had eyes examined and bought glasses for two needy children.

FARNERVILLE sent the fourth grade children, who graduated from that school, to the zoo, in June. Helped finance free milk for the undernourished children of the school.

FARNUM furnished the teachers' rest room, assisted in getting a new curtain for the auditorium and electricity was installed through the efforts of this organization.

LENOLA made 48 Christmas bags for the Church Federation, also made and donated eiderdown hoods with capes for the sanitorium at Fairview.

CROSSWICKS held its annual Mothers' and Daughters' meeting, which proves more popular each year. Through their efforts the school has had electric lights installed.

MARLTON. Pennies were collected for every rainy day and the amount sent to the National Child Welfare. Had an illustrated bird lecture—prizes given to the boy and girl for the best essay on birds following the lecture.

MOORESTOWN had a get-together luncheon, served by the Domestic Science Class of the High School.

BRIDGEBORO furnished a kitchen and lunch room in the basement of the school and serves milk to the undernourished children. Gave a free banquet at the close of the year to the members, to show their cooperative spirit was appreciated. Their visiting committee raised enough money to make themselves self-supporting and sent to sick members the following: 5 quarts grape juice, 1 dozen eggs, 6 infants' baskets, 4 pair bootees, 17 potted plants.

BOUDINOT, Burlington, petitioned the Board of Education and secured fire escapes and window ventilators for the school. Provided individual drinking cups for each room.

MOORESTOWN MOTHERS' CLUB reports an increase of 35 in membership. This association brought Thornton W. Burgess to Moorestown to give an illustrated lecture for the children. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, he was greeted by a packed house, three quarters of the audience being children, with whom he left a real message of love for our birds and animals. About a hundred of his books were sold and the net income was $31.69. The outstanding thought of our program for the year was adolescence, and this subject was discussed with the members by Dr. Anne Tompkins Gibson, who spoke on the Adolescent Age, and Mrs. Janet Payne Whitney, on Religion and the Adolescent.

CINNAMINSON HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION had speakers on dressmaking, and story-telling for children.

This association again conducted the summer school for children of Italian migrant families. 34 pupils were enrolled between the ages of one and eleven years. In this work the Association was assisted by the Women's Council for Home Missions.

Community Chest Collection

It is gratifying to be able to report to the citizens of Riverton and Cinnaminson Township that the Community Chest Collection has been successfully completed, and the results are as follows:

The amount we started out to collect was $4000.00 to be apportioned: one-half to the Visiting Nurse, one-fourth to Burlington Co. Hospital, one-fourth to Cinnaminson Home, first deducting from the total amount collected the amounts that were specially contributed to the individual institutions.

The total amount collected was $4,172.37, divided as follows:

Riverton	406 contributors	$3,205.17
Cinnamin.	207 contributors	967.20
Total	613	$4,172.37
Expenses—printing		21.00
			$4,151.37
Less contributions for spec. institut'ns
Nurse	$291.00		758.00
Hospital	334.50
Home	132.50
			758.00
Amount to be pro-rated			$3,393.37

So that the three institutions will receive the following sums:

Nurse	½ of $3,393.37	$1,696.69
	Spec. instructions	291.00
			$1,987.69
Hospital	¼ of $3,393.37	$ 848.34
	Spec. instructions	334.50
			$1,182.84
Home	¼ of $3,393.57	848.34
	Spec. instructions	132.50
			$ 980.84
Total			$4,151.37

It is probable that there will be a few more contributions which may increase the total somewhat.

There were seven teams working in Riverton with a total of forty-three workers, and twelve workers in Cinnaminson. The number of contributors was increased by ten over the number contributing last year to the same collection. The total amount contributed last year was $4218.10.

While we have a number of large contributions which have been very helpful, the collection owes its success to the solid backing of the entire community and we feel that this method of soliciting funds has helped to draw the attention of the community to these institutions, and will enable them to be of still greater assistance in the future.

FIRE COMPANY CELEBRATION

Twelve Companies Join in Ceremony to Celebrate Housing of Palmyra's New Pumper. Prizes Awarded

Independence Volunteer Fire Company No. 1, of Palmyra, housed its powerful new Seagraves pumper and dedicated the rebuilt firehouse with celebration and ceremony fully worthy of the occasion last Saturday afternoon.

The parade was the big feature of the afternoon. Twelve companies were in line, with large delegations of firemen in full uniform and with their apparatus shined up to the acme of perfection and decorated to a queen's taste. Three bands and a fife and drum corps furnished lively music for the march and topped it off with a concert at the firehouse.

George N. Wimer headed the line as marshal, followed by the Borough Council and other dignitaries. Companies in line were Riverton, Parry, Delanco, Riverside, Bridgeboro, Beverly, Masonville, Mount Holly, Florence, Burlington, Bordentown and Palmyra. The Red Cross ladies entered the parade, followed by the ambulance.

One humorous touch was the Fish House Company and its apparatus, consisting of a broken down Ford, painted in varied hues and with its radiator emitting clouds of steam all along the route.

Then there was the Palmyra Hook and Ladder apparatus of 1887, a one-horse wagon with awkward ladders and swinging buckets. In this equipage rode two of the four surviving original incorporators of the Independence Company, John S. Schnabel and Charles M. Cooper, Sr., the latter still being an active member. George W. E. Hall and Levis Wallace who joined the company shortly after its incorporation, also rode in the contraption.

There were many big and powerful pieces of apparatus in line, but Palmyra's huge Seagraves loomed biggest of all.

Exercises at the firehouse were opened with an invocation by the Rev. C. W. Williams. William F. Cramer, president of the Burlington County Firemen's Association, then spoke, followed by Mayor Killam E. Bennett, of Riverton. Mr. Bennett lauded the Palmyra company for its activity and growth and praised the spirit of cooperation with which all the neighboring companies were conducted.

J. Horace Finney, president of Council, presented the new apparatus to the fire company, and a speech of acceptance was made by T. Winfield Land.

Mayor Weart then read what he claimed was an address written by a member of the company. He described the progress made by the organization in the 37 years of its existence and prophesied that another 37 years would find the new apparatus of today as obsolete as is the hand drawn hose cart and man-power pumps used forty years ago. In a humorous way he predicted that the apparatus of 1960 would fly in the air and that when an alarm was sounded the firemen would hook onto the nearest rain cloud instead of a fire hydrant.

Prize awards were announced by Frank A. Mathews, Sr., as follows: Best appearing apparatus: first, Mount Holly; second, Riverton. Best equipped: first, Riverside; second, Relief Company of Mount Holly. Best band: Lyric, of Camden. Best feature: first, Fish House fire company; second, Palmyra ambulance. Tallest man, Thomas Randel, Mount Holly, 6 ft., 4 in.; smallest man, Arthur Hughes, 5 ft., 1 in.; best decorated business place, Hahn's Bakery; best decorated residence, Mayor Weart.

The exercises were closed with a benediction by the Rev. Fred B. Morley.

Afterwards all the visiting firemen were treated to tasty sandwiches and coffee prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Independence Company.

On Sunday the pumper was given a test from the last fireplug on West Broad street and disproved contentions that the plugs could not supply enough water. Two powerful streams were thrown.

Monday the pumper was called out to extinguish a fire in the woods back of the ball park. The source of water used was the 80-gallon tank carried on the apparatus. Half of this water was hurled through the small hose with great effect.

Five drivers also were instructed in the operation of the machine.

LONG TERM FOR THIEF

Jones, Arrested by Officer Wallace, Gets 18 to 28 Years

Charles Jones, colored, the 31-year-old sneak thief arrested in Palmyra last week by Officer "Bucky" Wallace, was sentenced on Thursday to from 18 to 28 years in the State prison.

Jones pleaded guilty to fourteen robberies he had committed in Burlington county during the past few weeks, and passed "thirteen others which he said he could not positively remember" though County Detective Ellis H. Parker had them charged against him on account of the similarity of the operations. Sentence was fixed on four of the outstanding robberies—at the home of E. D. Spence, Beverly; William Spuck, Palmyra; Ezra Marter, Edgewater Park, and William Watkins, Riverton. In the other cases admitted by Jones, sentence was suspended.

Jones had been giving Detective Parker and other officers a merry chase for a long time before he was arrested. He has a nine year's record in Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia, and four in Richmond, Va., penitentiary. His operations in this section extended into Camden county, and one of his victims was Mayor Victor King, of Camden.

What do the political parties and advocates of government ownership and increased regulation of private and industrial activity promise the people that would equal, or in any way compare with the ideals which Washington and Lincoln struggled to maintain? Think it over.

THE ELECTION

Republican Candidates Capture Every Office in County By Large Majorities. Jordan Cuts Into Wright's Vote

With the returns all in except from one district, the majorities of the Republican candidates are as follows:

Powell	7112
Rogers	7608
Fleetwood	6042
Wright	3788
Worrell	7513

While Mr. Wright's majority was severely reduced, it is considered he made a remarkable showing in view of the high standing of his popular opponent, and the renegade tactics, which are said to have been employed against Mr. Wright, which do not seem to have been used against any of the other Republican candidates. The fight in the primary election was bitter, and the bitterness seems not to have been abated by the decision of the voters in September—as it should have been.

As it was, in Riverton the Democratic candidate for freeholder ran 20 behind the vote of the Democratic candidate for the same office last year, 11 behind in Palmyra, but gained 6 votes over the Democratic vote for freeholder last year in Cinnaminson Township. In the primary in Riverton this year, Mr. Jordan received 16 votes and 106 in the general election. In Palmyra it was 57 in the primary, and 196 in the general. Cinnaminson Township gave him 34 in the primary and 116 in the general election.

As usual the vote was light. The number of voters registered and the votes polled were as follows:

	Reg.	Polled
Riverton
First District	414	166
Second District	665	255
Third District	454	200
Palmyra
First District	742	245
Second District	446	157
Third District	596	229
Fourth District	534	252
Cinnaminson
First District	595	162
Second District	326	103

Elsewhere in this issue is published a table showing the vote in detail in Riverton, Palmyra and Cinnaminson Township.

A TRIM touring car it was, so very attractive that Mart Culley gazed admiringly while he pondered the question so suddenly hurled at him.

"The park rules prohibit automobiles. I've had to stock up the toolchest the third time, just from trusting garage help too far. If only you'd let us leave the machine for the afternoon?"

Mart's reputation was the opposite from that which the request would imply. Stingy, disobliging, a grab-all landlord. To own an automobile was a dream he had kept secret for a decade. To allow one to stand in his back yard as if his especial property—what would the neighbors think?

"Yes—come on in!" The words were out before he knew why. "That's a beauty! Would you be willing to show me how to steer it?"

"That's easy. It's all in handling this little wheel, after you get your power set." Ellis Whitmore flourished the keys and switches before him, the auto puffing and snorting—forward and backward—till the missus and the four youngsters uneasily began to cling to their seats. "Perhaps you'd like a ride?"

"Really? Well, now! You may leave it here in the back yard, and welcome. The park's not much good after half-past five, so you'd better wait with my part of it till you come back. The animal cages close then, you know."

From a window across lots a pair of eyes watched curiously the motionless automobile. Mart Culley's granddaughter, Grace Keith, a coy small lady not yet out of the teens, regarded the discovery as something extraordinary. A word over the telephone gave Ralph Stratton, unwillingly penned during business hours, very much to think of and a little to say. He agreed to come over, just as soon as the store closed.

Grace forgot her books, her embroidery rings—everything, as affairs progressed in grandfather's back yard. The man and the three boys had returned. Camping paraphernalia materialized from the depth of the auto; a frame was hoisted and a tent canvas spread over it. Folding cots, swinging cots—soon a supply of quilts and blankets was spread on the grass and over the apple-tree limbs for an airing. The new neighbors seemed very much at home.

At last she saw grandpa coming leisurely enough at first. His pace quickened little by little. He was measuring off the marathon by the time he had reached the front gate.

"What you think you're at?" he demanded. "I didn't lease you the premises, did I?"

"Oh—come now, neighbor!" Whitmore knew the easy tongue thoroughly. "We keep these things right with us, in case of a breakdown or a puncture. We thought you wouldn't mind if we'd take a corner of your yard. I promised you a ride in the machine. If you are ready, hop in!"

Mart hopped in, but not so briskly as the word might imply. All to himself he was raving, seething. The auto had begun to shake itself into tune with the engine. Whitmore knew how to manage folks—that was evident.

Grace dared not wave a good-by; she was too well aware of grandpa's sense of resentment. She called at least a half-dozen over the 'phone—her father, her brother, a couple of cousins and two of her grandfather's best-paying tenants. Ralph would appear soon; a small army must be awaiting his arrival.

They came, every one, as quickly as the day's cares could be locked away in store, shop or office. Grace assembled the company on the piazza.

"Now," she began, "what do you think of that? Grandpa won't promise us the rent of a house"—the engagement was an open secret—"yet he will let a stranger tent under his best trees regardless of damages."

"We'll have to forbid those boys climbing like that. And yonder's the girl in the garden. Great snakes!"

Ralph was coming. The army was a willing one. He winked slyly, by way of tipping off his companions, and scurried forward.

"Get out of there!"

"Who are you?"

"I'm the fellow who says get down." The boys began a retreat toward earth. "Here, madam," he directed, "Pack up those pans and kettles! Put out that fire!"

The tent collapsed, from the pulling of a peg or two. His helpers cleared the limbs and lawn of furnishings, tossing the supply into a heap. The invaders were herded into a group, in the midst of camp-stools and frying-pans.

"We are Mr. Culley's kinfolks," informed one of the cousins. "Keep quiet! We'll settle with this Whitmore when he brings our grand-dad back."

They did accomplish something, actually. The auto backed out as it had puffed in, with the over-confident stranger at the wheel.

When the auto had lost itself amid the scores along the highway Mart Culley cast a grateful glance at Ralph. Grace caught its import. The pair slipped away to a corner, to plan the setting up of something more durable than the tourists' tent.

ODD SEA ANIMAL

Soldier Crab and His Habits Described by Writer.

Is a Terrible Glutton and Desperate Fighter—Will Battle to the Death for Home.

Of all the queer creatures that live in the sea, there is none stranger than the hermit crab, or the soldier crab, as he is sometimes called, says Mary Dudderidge. The second name is better than the first, for the hermit crab is neither pious nor dignified, as a hermit should be, and he does not live alone, as we shall see later. He is, on the contrary, a terrible glutton and a desperate fighter; for he lives in a world of hungry creatures, all anxious to eat and not to be eaten, and he does not intend to be eaten if he can by any means avoid it.

And in order that he shall not be eaten, it is first of all necessary that he shall get himself a house. Nature has been rather unkind to him, for, while all his cousins of the crab family are clad in coats of mail, and many of his neighbors in the sea are able to build themselves strong and beautiful houses, he has no tools with which to build and no armor except on the front part of his body. So he is obliged to take refuge in a strong tower that some one else has built, and in his search for it, he does not trouble himself much about questions of right and wrong. If no one has a claim on the house that he wants, well and good; but in any case, he must have a safe place to live in. If, therefore, he finds any one in possession of the coveted stronghold, he does not scruple, if the unfortunate tenant is weaker than himself, to pull him out and make a meal of him. If this tenant happens to be a brother hermit, there is sure to be a royal row. The pair sometimes fight to the death, and the victor may devour the vanquished. In many cases, however, it has been observed that the upshot of the fracas is simply an exchange of shells, the defeated party taking possession of the abandoned fortress of his enemy. And after all the fuss, the victor very likely finds that the new house does not suit him and he must look for another.

The hermit crab has a great fancy for the shell of the whelk; but in case of necessity he will take up with anything hollow, even an old pipe or bottle. When shells are plentiful, however, he is as particular as any housekeeper looking for a flat. When he finds an apartment that appears satisfactory, he examines it very carefully, holding it off at arm's length, turning it around and poking his claws inside. Having finally decided that it will do, he comes out of his old shell and darts into the new so quickly that it is almost impossible to see him do it, for he has no mind to expose his soft body to the dangers of the sea. He hangs onto his old shell till he is sure the new one will do, and often changes his abode several times before he is satisfied.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

More Women Enter U. S.

For ten years there has been a steady increase in the proportion of women to men among the immigrants from all parts of Europe. Last year, for the first time since immigration statistics have been kept, there were more women than men admitted to the country. The proportion is partially explained by the fact that immigrants of former years have prospered and are now sending for their mothers, wives and daughters to join them. Despite the increasing number of women coming in there is no apparent relief for the household help problem. A trifling proportion of these women take up domestic work. Many of them enter factories. Statistics show that of the women immigrants comparatively few are trained for any kind of employment. The same condition is found among the men. A large proportion of the immigrants are classified under "no occupation." There are fewer laborers coming in than at any time in twenty years.

Boscul Gives You A New Start

Your first pound of BOSCUL COFFEE opens a new vista of Coffee delight. That is the invariable experience of those who say for the first time to their grocer, "Give me a pound of BOSCUL COFFEE—yes, in that red Boscul vacuum tin." Once you try BOSCUL COFFEE, you will have no other, and unless you have tasted it you can't imagine what a really remarkable difference there can be in even high grade Coffees.

For your own sake the next time you're buying Coffee, get a pound of BOSCUL COFFEE in the vacuum tin, and prove to your own satisfaction what a perfectly balanced and uniform blend Boscul is, how much smoother it tastes because the bitter woody chaff has been removed; how absolutely uniform and fresh it keeps in vacuum, fresh and flavory as the hour it's roasted.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Six to Eight Hour Storage Battery Recharging Service

Again, we are installing equipment in our shops so that the automobile and radio owners will be better served. Realizing that the old method of four to six days battery recharging service, with its consequent rental battery charges, is very unsatisfactory to the majority of storage battery owners, we are replacing our present equipment with the most modern and quickest battery charging equipment that can be purchased.

The equipment is being rushed to Palmyra and by November 15th it will be in operation.

Simply call Riverton 110 and we will call for your battery, recharge and return it in six to eight hours.

We are sure our patrons and other storage battery owners in Riverton and Palmyra will take advantage of this service, thereby affecting a saving and eliminating a big item of expense in the operation of their cars or radio sets by not having to hire rental batteries.

Please try this service after November 15th.

TERHUNE DOG DIES HERO

Pet of Author Loses Life to Save That of Tramp Canine From a Train's Onrush.

Many of the heroes of the stories of Albert Payson Terhune, author of "The Comedy Kid," says the Designer, have been dogs—Scotch collies. You will remember Lad, and his harum-scarum son, Wolf—Wolf of the understanding eyes. Wolf is dead. He died like a thoroughbred. From the Terhune home town in New Jersey comes this story:

"Wolf had constituted himself warder of the Terhune lawns and custodian of the driveways. When motoring parties came in and endangered the lives of the puppies playing about the driveways, Wolf, at the first sound of the motor, would dash importantly down into the drive and every puppy would scurry out of harm's way.

"Every evening it was the habit of Wolf to saunter off on a long walk. The exercise, it seems, prepared Wolf for sleep. One night recently Wolf ambled away and—

"Down in the darkness at the railroad station some of the folks were waiting to see the Stroudsburg express flash by. It was a few minutes late. A nondescript dog, with a hunted, homeless droop to his tail, trotted on to the tracks. Far down the line there came the warning screech of the express. The canine tramp didn't pay any attention to it.

"The headlight of the express shot a beam glistening along the rails. Wolf saw the dog and the danger. With a bark and a snap the son of Lad drove the stranger to safety. The express was whistling for a crossing far past the station when they picked up what was Wolf and started for the Terhune home."

Force of Circumstances.

"How did you happen to go into politics?"

"I wanted to serve my country," replied Senator Sorghum; "and, besides, there didn't happen at that time to be any regular line of business in which I had sufficient experience to be in demand."

An Exacting Fit.

"Brown is marrying again, I hear."

"So they say, and from all accounts his second wife will make rather a lively stepmother for the children!"

"Oh, a sort of watch-your-stepmother, I suppose."—Wayside Tales.

Inherent Possibilities.

By DOROTHY KNIGHT

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"DO YOU mean to say there is no train out of this deserted village for five hours?"

"No, madam," replied the agent.

"Isn't there any possible way of my getting to Vernon before that?"

The agent shook his head.

The "deserted village" was Harris Junction, and it or its counterpart will be familiar to anyone who has ever traveled in the Middle West. There was a small hotel labeled "Junction House."

"There is an automobile in front of that house. Do you think its owner would drive me to Vernon?"

"Well, you can ask him," said the agent, doubtfully.

She crossed the dusty street in the glaring sun, leaving four other travelers, who were also waiting for the five-hour-old train.

One of these was a very attractive young woman, who showed great sympathy with the older woman when she came back from her animated talk with the man across the street, with a slightly dejected expression.

"Oh, I'm so sorry you were not successful."

The older woman's face brightened at this sign of friendliness. She introduced herself as Mrs. Black, from New York, and started to tell her troubles.

"Well, of all the obstinate men! Would you believe it, Miss—," she hesitated.

"Mrs. Carlton."

"Would you believe it, Mrs. Carlton? That man actually refuses to budge out of this junction unless he is called on a case. He is a doctor and has located here because it is the center of his district, and he feels it his duty to be always on call. I offered to pay him most liberally. It is only 35 miles to Vernon and he wouldn't be gone forever."

"Is it awfully important that you should get there at once?"

"Well, I am very anxious to do so. Of course, it's not a life and death affair, but I am going to visit my mother, and I haven't seen her in years. It is to be a complete surprise. She has no idea I'm coming, and it's such a bore waiting here. I think the doctor might make an exception in my case, even if it is his rule never to leave except on a case. By the way, are you going in my direction?"

"Yes, to Winston, the next station beyond Vernon."

"Oh, I have an idea. Why don't you tell the doctor you are going to visit a sick relative? I'm sure he would go for anything important, and then I can go along, too. Will you?" She paused expectantly.

Mrs. Carlton blushed in embarrassment and perplexity. It was plainly to be seen that she did not want to do it, and yet she hated to refuse.

"Oh, well, if you have a New England conscience, you are excused."

"Well, I am from New England, but I'm afraid my conscience isn't that variety, for it was not inborn, as the good old New England conscience should be."

"That sounds interesting. Won't you tell me about it?"

"Why, it's my whole life story, but perhaps I can tell it briefly. I always went through life in a careless, happy-go-lucky way. I never thought I was exactly selfish, and I don't think my friends did, either. But I always wanted to do as I pleased without restrictions.

"Naturally, when the war came, and Jim and I were married, I thought I had to be permitted to go to France, where I would be able to see him whenever he could get a leave of absence, although I knew that there was an iron-bound rule against soldiers' wives going overseas. So I got across, and soon after, Jim came. But as fate had it, I never saw him once. He was wounded in his very first battle and invalided home.

"I learned I was only one individual cog in the universal machine, and important as my affairs might seem to me to be, they were really insignificant.

"I made a vow then and there that I would play the game strictly according to rules after that, and never claim exemptions from inconveniences, responsibilities or actual hardships."

Just as her story ended, they were startled by cries from the road, where there had been a slight automobile accident. The doctor rushed from his side of the road and Mrs. Carlton rushed from hers. The others, fearing they would be in the way, stayed where they were and watched anxiously as a woman was being carried into the doctor's house. The others were uninjured.

Soon Mrs. Carlton came back.

"Nothing serious. One woman was bruised a little and we bandaged her up. But she has a very weak heart, and the shock might have proved fatal had there been no doctor present to give the proper stimulant. But as it is, she is all right."

Mrs. Black turned pale as she realized there would have been no doctor present if she had had her way.

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory and their friend, who was hurt, are from Vernon, so you will have a chance to go by machine, after all, and you will still save three hours."

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory? Why, they are friends of—." Then, in a frightened voice, "Who was the woman with them?"

"A Mrs. Walker, I think."

"Mother!"

Lower Berths for All.

Spaciousness and comfort both day and night, and a lower berth for everybody, are provided in an ingenious new design for sleeping cars proposed by M. C. Krarup, consulting engineer, and described in Popular Science Monthly. Two rows of seats, of the design of armchairs, are proposed for each side of the car, these doubling its seating accommodation in the daytime but without crowding. At night, partitions similar to Venetian blinds divide the car into compartments and the chairs are converted into berths by lowering the back cushions and extending the seats. Each compartment would contain comfortable headroom, a wash basin and a large mirror.

Figures Were Not There.

The class had been told to draw a picture of a river with two figures sitting on the bank. Going round the class the teacher came to a boy who had finished his drawing. She looked at his paper and was surprised to find only a river.

"Why, Jack," she said, "where are the two people I told you to draw?"

"Well, you see, miss," he answered, "I'm not very good at drawing people so I put up a notice: 'Trespassers will be prosecuted.'"

Dignity Respected.

Among the less familiar stories about Charles M. Schwab is this one: "Mr. Schwab, who is very fond of farce comedy, one day bade his secretary get him two tickets for 'Charlie's Aunt.' Summoning the office boy the secretary said: 'Go round to the theater and get two tickets for "Charlie's Aunt."'

The boy hesitated anud said: "But hadn't I better say Mr. Schwab's aunt, sir?"—Boston Transcript.

One-Man Railway for Roof Workers.

The Seattle Daily Times has installed on the top of its six-story newspaper building a small "one-man" railway for the convenience of workers on the roof. A little car located on the roof carries a 200-pound counterbalance, which circumnavigates the roof. A man, standing on the platform suspended from the car, can reach all cornice lights on the building.

TOO PERSONAL.

"My personal property was greatly over taxed this year, was yours?"

"Yes, the doctor told me I had a severe case of over taxed nerves."

Mysteries of Credit.

A man whose credit is n. g.
Is sure to pine and fret;
With too much credit, soon he'll be
In grief because of debt.

Long Skirts.

"I hope the women won't let their skirts mop the sidewalks."

"Sh! Don't irritate 'em. First thing we know every wife will wear a street train, and every husband will have to quit work to carry it."

BELL MANY CENTURIES OLD

Connecticut Community Has One That Was Cast in Spain as Early as the Year A. D. 815.

One of the most ancient and interesting bells in the country is in Moodus, Conn. It stands on a stone platform near St. Stephen's church, where it is examined curiously by many visitors.

This bell was originally hung in some old Spanish church, for which it had been cast. When Napoleon sacked Spain this was part of the spoil of the French army. After the defeat of "The Little Corporal" it fell into English hands, by some means not altogether clear; and, according to tradition, it was brought, in 1834 or 1835, to this country for use in American churches.

William Wyllis Pratt, a New York ship chandler, whose wife was the daughter of an East Haddam man, purchased the bell and presented it to the church in Moodus. When the present church was built the old bell was preserved and placed where it now is. The inscription cast in the bell, in Spanish, reads:

"The Prior being the Most Rev. Father Miguel Joseph E'Stivan. Corrales made me. Made in year A. D. 815."

The year 815 is a good way back, when you come to reckon it up in the calendar.

MUMMY IS WELL PRESERVED

A perfectly preserved mummy, believed to be that of an Inca chief, has been unearthed from a hill in the province of Salta, Argentina, near the Chilean border.

It was brought to Buenos Aires, together with a large number of implements and artistic carvings and art objects of stone, copper, earthenware and onyx which were buried with it.

The discoverer, Senor Leonardis, said he found the mummy sealed in a large earthen jar after he had carried out excavating work to a depth of six feet.

The teeth, the nails and most of the hair of the ancient chieftain are in a perfect state of preservation, as are the vital organs, indicating a method of embalming that may be superior even to the Egyptian.

The art objects include serpents, fashioned in copper, and also copper receptacles, carved heads of cats, monkeys and other animals, parrots and serpents. The method used to unite the different parts of the implements suggest handiwork like that of the Egyptians.

Aristocracy of Trade.

The East India trade (including, in the popular meaning of the word, the China, Manila and Java trades, as well as that of British India) enjoyed a greater prestige than any branch of Boston commerce since the northwest fur trade died. An "East India merchant" in ante-bellum Boston possessed social kudos to which no cotton millionaire could pretend, unless previously initiated through federalist commerce. To have an office on India wharf, Boston, or to live in the India row that comprised the fine old square-built houses of many a seaport town conferred distinction. Among sailors the man who had made an East India voyage took no back wind from any one, and on Cape Cod it used to be said of a pretty, well-bred girl, "She's good enough to marry an East India cap'n."—From "Maritime History of Massachusetts."

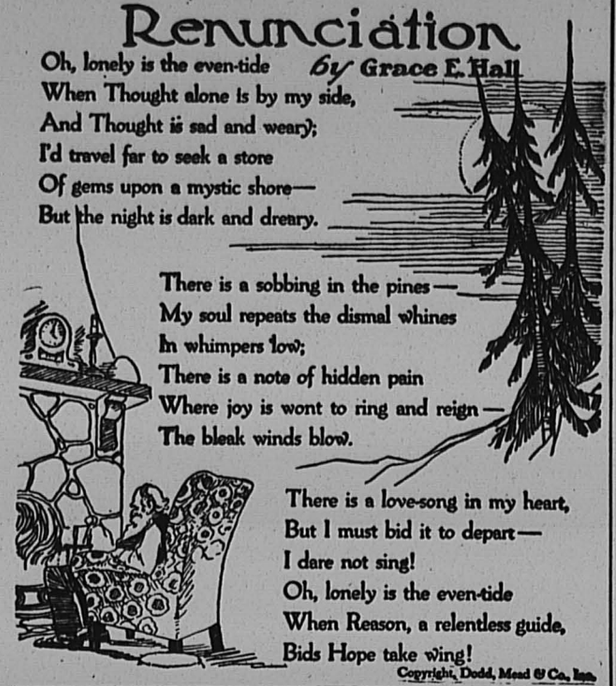
Renunciation

by Grace E. Hall

Oh, lonely is the even-tide
When Thought alone is by my side,
And Thought is sad and weary;
I'd travel far to seek a store
Of gems upon a mystic shore—
But the night is dark and dreary.



There is a sobbing in the pines—
My soul repeats the dismal whines
In whimpers low;
There is a note of hidden pain
Where joy is wont to ring and reign—
The bleak winds blow.

There is a love-song in my heart,
But I must bid it to depart—
I dare not sing!
Oh, lonely is the even-tide
When Reason, a relentless guide,
Bids Hope take wing!

Out of the Storm

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The wind's demoniac shrieking brought a swift pallor to Ellen's cheek. It was rawly chill, despite a sultry noon, a scorching afternoon. At sunset had come almost a cyclone, with thunder crashes, lightning like fire through premature blackness, and over all heavy ice-cold rain filled with big battering hail.

Hail had stopped falling, but through broken unshuttered windows Ellen saw by lightning flares that storm water had made drifts and mounds of it, wherever the lawn sloped, no matter how gently. She had faced the powers of the air gallantly at their onset—now terror laid hold on her. Not for herself, but for the many folk caught unawares in its heart of fury.

She had watched, rather wistfully, the stream of cars, filled with laughter and shouting, headed for the point-to-point race, the climax of the hunt's meeting.

The point-to-point came last on the card—the start had been delayed—so much she knew through neighborly use of her phone. Old Squire Willis, ninety, yet still a sportsman, had kept his small grandson running back and forth to find out any and everything—the horses, jockeys, scratches, added starters—and of course the odds.

The squire had planned to be among those present, but his third helpmate, a giddy person of sixty, had set her face against his risking the journey—and not unreasonably, seeing that both his pension and the fat annuity so many envied or grudged him hung by the precarious thread of his life.

Ellen agreed heartily with Mrs. Willis—since she had sold herself to senility wasn't she entitled to the price? Still, she had been sorry enough for the squire, the piteous age-wreck of unscrupulous success. Hence news gathering had not galled her—indeed, it had been rather absorbing, since she herself had more than a drop of sporting blood. And the very last message from the track had been thrilling. It ran:

"Black Shirt wins—by a length. Keeble fell—broke—" there the coming storm had drowned all other sounds.

It came so swiftly, so fiercely, the crowd had had no chance of escape. Ellen thought, shuddering, of cars lifted, overturned, ditched in the swift-falling pall.

The heaviest, solidest vehicle would be but a toy for the power that had lifted the big barn, overturned it, and whisked it across the highway. Trees four feet through had been twisted off and for half a minute held upright as though still rooted. What man-made thing had any chance against such might?

But the interrupted message? "Keeble fell—broke—" lay heaviest on her consciousness. Keeble had been her comrade all through his yearling form—then after he was sold to the rich Audleys he had escaped their paddocks and homed straight for the humbler meadows of his birth. Otherwise—there even in thought Helen paused. She could only let herself feel the rest—that she owed him touch with the man she so loved, young John Audley, his rider in the big race.

Telephones were dead—not a light glowed along the mile of highway Thistleden house commanded. The name stuck, from the careless days of Ellen's grandfather, who had reveled and rioted with Willises and Audleys and at last come a cropper, vital and financial, at a five-barred gate.

Then his son-in-law had taken over the place and redeemed it by relentless, gripping thrift. Slim Ellen, her mother's only child, was no favorite with him—he fancied reproach in her big, dark eyes, when truly there was only wistful appeal for love. The younger brood, loud, lusty, red-cheeked, red-haired like their mother, awoke in him paternal pride.

Therefore he had taken them upon a ten-day excursion—Ellen, invited grudgingly to go along, had known better than to accept. Utterly fearless, she relished the thought of having the house to herself.

Bill Jackson, head tenant, was within easy call, and his wife, a kind person, would come at any need. They had gone to the course, along with the bulk of the Thistleden workers.

Ellen knew it rested with her alone to help—if help were possible. The wind had broken to short savage gusts—she could stand against it, in the intervals. Methodically she equipped herself—waterproof, rubbers, flashlight, matches, a lantern, a long candle and flask of the peach-and-honey, distilled fifty years back by her grandfather. Her father had kept it for its age in spite of virulent teetotalism. Memory of it made Ellen smile. "Providential—maybe," she murmured half aloud, as she skittered toward the garage, where happily the car had escaped harm.

Roads were too perilous—in three minutes she was guiding the car along field-ways and across grass, holding the wheel hard as she bucked hail-drifts, or shot through storm-water half-hub deep. She ran parallel to the main road, knowing she would find nothing on it for the first five miles. After that—well! many might have tried to get away. She would find out and help if help were possible; if not she would run on into untouched country, and tell it of what had happened.

It grew lighter. Reflected sun rays joined to a rising moon, showed increasing wreckage. Presently she heard cries, groans, wild shrieks for help. Answering them, she saw all and worse than she had imagined—cars tossed and piled on one another, bodies crushed beneath, survivors piteously trying to hold heads above rushing roadside rain-torrents, or striving more piteously to rescue the wounded. What succor she gave them words cannot speak. Lantern light was salvation often; competent counsel brought results the dazed men and women might never have achieved. She stayed briefly, going on, for better help was imperative.

Until she had brought it, until ready hands were set to do whatever was needed, she held sturdily away the dread eating her heart.

Around midnight, with a white moon riding in mid-heaven, she began to tremble. Every drop of peach-and-honey had long ago vanished. Suddenly she realized that she was cold, wet, mud-grimed, bloodstained, and alone afoot, miles from home.

The car had carried loads of hurt folk to the town hospital. It would not come back before daylight, nobody knowing its owner's need of it. Staggering to a pile of muddy cushions, she sank down, put her head upon her knees, and let herself sob—just twice.

For at the sound of distress somebody came from amid the few who lingered—somebody tall and masterful, with graying hair, and one arm in a rude sling. The sound arm helped her to her feet, as a deep kind voice said, "Don't cry, young lady—after all your bravery. Instead—tell me what I can do for you?"

"Oh, tell me about Keeble. Was he hurt—or his rider? The phone said he broke something. Then the storm came and stopped it," Ellen quavered.

The tall man smiled tenderly, his voice was not quite steady as he answered, "Luckily, only his girth. The fine colt and his rider escaped unhurt, though if the girth had held—but never mind the rest. Now I can only tell you a trap had been set for them. You must be Miss Lacy—my son John has told me how you loved the yearling we bought of your father. Keeble's a splendid thoroughbred, but, my dear, let an old fellow say, he belongs henceforth and forever to a finer one."

All the world agreed to that when it heard the full story. Young John Audley especially, who never tired of telling it, extolling his sweetheart—her rare and ready bravery, her presence of mind—most of all herself.

Half the county was asked to the wedding and all of two counties stopped long enough to send waves of sympathetic good will. And the Audleys are living happy ever after, if one may trust their eyes and gossips' tongue round about them.

COMBS OF WOOD

Women of Ancient Egypt Used Boxwood Ornaments.

Prof. S. J. Record of Yale University Describes Various Kinds of Wood Used Centuries Ago.

The tresses of a pharaoh's daughter were dressed with combs of wood, says Prof. S. J. Record of Yale university, who recently made a study of the different kinds of woods used by the ancient Egyptians. These combs were made of boxwood, which was much used for carving by the early Egyptians, and they were not greatly dissimilar to some of the combs which adorn the women of the Twentieth century.

"As one wooden object after another from the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen has been described and pictured in the public press, many questions have arisen," writes Mr. Record. "What kinds of woods are these? Whence did they come? What preservatives have kept them sound for thousands of years? How can these woods be identified today?"

Professor Record's studies included the woods representative of the period from 2900 B. C. to 1200 B. C. Wood played an important part in the lives of these Egyptians and it had to be hauled very long distances. Cedar he found to be one of their most prized woods, the most famous species being the cedar of Lebanon, which is no myth, as some are inclined to believe.

The Egyptians used cedar extensively for coffins, boxes, large effigies and for such general purposes as we use white pine. They also used cypress, another wood of great durability. The gopher wood used in making the Ark of the Covenant was probably cypress, according to Professor Record.

The yew, a tree noted for its durability as the cedar and the cypress, was used by the Egyptians in the making of bows, carvings and small implements. Sycamore was used for mummy cases, but the sycamore of the ancients was a fig, an evergreen timber tree sometimes called a fig mulberry.

These species were employed where large sizes were demanded, while in the manufacture of smaller articles the Egyptians used such local growth as was available, which apparently was limited to tamarisk, alder and other minor species. The Egyptians were skilled woodworkers, cabinet makers and wood carvers.

Wood veneering is not an ultra-modern accomplishment, but it is in fact a practice of venerable antiquity. It was developed by the Egyptians several thousand years before the birth of Christ. Professor Record found an admirable example of this craftsmanship in the coffin of the monarch Nephthyo from Meir, displayed in the Ninth Egyptian room of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

That these woods used by the Egyptians have endured the centuries, Professor Record attributes to the dry climate of Egypt and not to any preservatives employed. Professor Record identified the different woods by subjecting them to intensive study under the microscope and comparing their cell structure with that of the species as found growing today.—American Forestry Magazine.

Across Empty Continent.

Two explorers, seventy-year-old twins, by the bye, have just crossed Australia from south coast to north coast and back, covering nearly 6,000 miles in 67 days with three motor cars. The explorers passed through vast stretches of country without sign of man or beast, an experience, Captain White considers, which most strikingly justifies the late Lord Northcliffe's lament over the folly and menace of the "Empty Continent." Mr. McCallum, one of the two brothers, says he was amazed at the abundance of fertile country through which they passed in the interior, and mentions one plain, 150 miles long and extending east and west as far as the eye can see, consisting of splendid alluvial soil. They passed through superb pastoral areas with many rivers available for huge irrigation schemes, but the development of of these lands would be absolutely dependent upon the building of a direct north-south transcontinental line.

Well Covered.

An old gentleman saw an unfortunate motorist crawling from under his wrecked car.

"My poor fellow," he said, "are you covered?"

Hallowe'en Parties

The third grade celebrated Hallowe'en with a party. Suitable games were played and the children provided refreshments for each other. Baskets which they had previously made served to hold these.

The Kindergarten celebrated Hallowe'en with a party. The children masked or wore queer costumes. The funniest was a little boy dressed as a policeman. They played games and had lots of fun.

In the second grade they had a little party, too. The children all masked and wore funny costumes. They played all kinds of Hallowe'en games. The most interesting was a peanut hunt. For refreshments they had popcorn, candy and nuts.

ANOTHER LINCOLN STORY

In 1862 an intimate friend of President Lincoln visited him at the White House in Washington. He found him rather depressed in spirits as a result of the continued reverses which the federal troops were then suffering.

"This being president isn't all that it is supposed to be, is it, Mr. Lincoln?" said his visitor.

"No," the president replied, with a faint twinkle in his eye. "I feel sometimes like the Irishman who, after being ridden on a rail, said: 'If it wasn't for the honor of the thing, I'd rather walk.'"—Judge.

Lacked Slavic Tongue.

The oculist was examining a patient and had requested him to read the top line of a test card, the letters of which ran H P R T V Z D F H K. When some moments elapsed, the specialist said: "Do you mean to say you cannot read letters that size?"

"Oh, I can see the letters all right," replied the patient, "but I can't pronounce Russian."

Something in a Name.

"There's nothing in a name," said the ready-made philosopher.

"Mebbe more'n you think," answered Farmer Corntossel. "We've cleared out the hayloft and expect to rent it to summer boarders simply by calling it a sleeping porch."

Necessary.

"Every boy should have a dog."

"Yes, and every boy should have a mother willing to have a dog in the house."

Life of Leisure.

"How did you spend the summer?"

"Mostly," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "in listening to mother and the girls figure on where we'll spend the winter."

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

A PSYCHOLOGICAL RAILWAY

The late L. A. Vaught, master character analyst, built his pupils a psychological railway to impress upon their minds the location of faculties.

The road starts out from amativeness in the back neck, for this is the region of polygamy, and he therefore named it Salt Lake City.

In front of the ear is the faculty of alimentiveness, the region of digestion, and fondness for eating, and he named the station Milwaukee.

constructiveness—invention, designing, manufacturing, are the work done by this faculty, and Pittsburgh is its appropriate station.

Boston represents the intellectual region where memory, comparison, causality and observation lie in the forehead. The intellect has no emotion, nevertheless it is the big filter, or understanding, where all emotions must pass for cool judgment and application, and if it is weak, while the other faculties are strong, the efforts of the individual will not be directed or carried out with foresight, and are sometimes more dangerous than useful.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 11

SOME MISSIONARY TEACHINGS OF THE PSALMS

LESSON TEXT—Ps. 47, 67, 100.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Let the people praise Thee, O God, let all the people praise Thee."—Ps. 67:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Everybody Praising God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Everybody Serving God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—All Nations Called to Serve Jehovah.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Missionary Hymns of the Old Testament.

The Jewish people were called to be missionaries to the other nations. The Psalter, their hymn book, is saturated with the spirit of God's grace to the world. Its dominant note is the call to come back to God.

I. A Call to Recognize God's Power (Ps. 47).

Man's first sin was to cast off God. Such abyssmal darkness followed that the race has gone on in ignorance of its Creator and Benefactor. The first and primary need of the missionary is to get the heathen to know God. They must come to know Him not only as a mighty King, but as a personal, tender-hearted being, looking out over the world with compassion, desiring to save and bless man, His only creature in His image and likeness. Oh, that the heathen knew God as their true and great King whose mighty power He desires to use in salvation and blessing to all! Let us make this known to the ends of the earth!

II. A Call for the Nations to Return to God (Ps. 67).

The central theme of this psalm is the universal diffusion of God's grace. The order of thought in this psalm is that which shall be carried out by the Lord in the completion of His work of grace in the world.

1. God's Blessing Upon Israel (vv. 1, 2). This blessing is necessary in order that Israel may be fitted to make known God's way to the nations. This grace will be poured out upon Israel in the full coming of Pentecost. When this grace is poured out there will be such missionary activity as has hitherto been unknown. When Israel, like her national representative Paul, shall go forth in such power of the Holy Spirit in witnessing for Christ, truly nations shall be born in a day. That which shall be manifested by Israel for their God-appointed task is needed by the church in her witnessing. She needs the Spirit of God to fit her to preach the gospel to the heathen.

2. The Conversion of the Heathen (vv. 3-5). Thanksgiving will be given for salvation offered and accepted. Not only this, but there will be rejoicing in the experience of salvation. They will rejoice in the fact now that the great and righteous God rules the earth. The new-born soul rejoices in knowing that a dispensation of justice tempered with mercy has been ushered in. What gladness will be in the hearts of men in the day when Christ reigns!

3. Restoration of Blessings Upon the Earth (vv. 6,7). When man cast off God a curse was placed upon the earth which limited its fruitfulness. Immediately upon man's return to God this curse will pass away from the earth. The supreme obstacle to prosperity is man's rebellion against God. Let the nations return to God and He will send His blessing upon them. The only way to bring back peace and prosperity is by the preaching of the gospel. Man must be called back to God. The supreme need of the world is not a league of nations, but a return to God; because God will remain separate from the nations as long as they are in rebellion against Him.

III. A Call to Recognize the Goodness of God (Ps. 100).

Praise should go up to God because He is God. Being God He created us, sustains us and saves us. For His unchanging mercy and goodness praise should be continually ascribed to Him.

What Life Consists Of.

"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." In these words Jesus strikes at the popular error of all ages—the belief that life consists in things. For nothing are we under deeper obligation to Christianity than for this, that it corrects our easy views of life. Since the first man started heavenward, there have been two conflicting ideals of life; one teaches that life's values are in the things we get and keep; the other holds that the chief end of man is to develop his highest powers, to live in fear of that which is beneath him, and in reverence for That which is above him.—Rev. O. O. Albertson, D. D.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffing, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Ouch! Aching Joints, Rub Rheumatic Pain

Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right into your sore, stiff, aching joints, and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness and stiffness. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. "St. Jacobs Oil" is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Railroads The Promoters of Progress

The Hall Mark of Service

THE HERALDS OF PROSPERITY

Did it ever occur to you how necessary the Pennsylvania Railroad System and other railroads are to your well being?

How essential to the convenience and comfort of yourself and family?

Did you ever stop to think of what the railroads have done to facilitate your business prosperity or enhance the development and growth of your community, in its relations to other sections of the country?

Did it ever occur to you, that every dollar expended in the purchase of transportation is an interest-paying investment, yielding abundant returns in better railroad service, greater prosperity, growth, and development of every interest?

As the irrigation of the ground makes fruitful the soil, so the success of the railroads radiates progress and prosperity.

What Your Co-operation Means

Railroads cannot expand alone. They require your help, your co-operation, your friendly attitude to attain the aims they have in view—to achieve the best results for the people—the highest type of transportation service.

Without your co-operation, progress is shackled and the best efforts of the railroads come to naught.

BLAME FAILURES ON POOR TEACHING

AN INSPECTION IS URGED

Failure of Pupils Is Laid to School System of State—Too Little Time Is Devoted to Observation in Field, Board Informed.

Trenton.—Glaring shortcomings in the efficiency of the educational system of the State were charged against the school system at the meeting of the State Board of Education. An attack upon the State's educational methods was made by John P. Murray of Jersey City, one of the members of the board, and was based upon the fact that 35 per cent of the eighth grade pupils failed in the examinations last June for admittance to the high schools.

Such a condition, Mr. Murray declared, stands out as an indictment against the system and indicates that something is wrong in the elementary grades. The school system of the State, Mr. Murray charged, is turning out children who are but superficially trained and the explanation of this condition lies in the fact that the schools are crowding too much into their curricula.

Commissioner Murray was asked by Commissioner of Education Enright for a suggestion as to some means of remedying this defect and he said that an improvement could be brought about by making it possible for the four assistant commissioners of education to devote their entire time to actual inspection work in the field, which was the original intention of the law creating these officers.

Cites Little Field Work

Records of the department, Commissioner Murray said, show that during last month one commissioner devoted but half a day to field work, another one day and a third two days. The remainder of the time was given over to conferences and teachers' institutes.

Ultimate solution of the problem presented by the wholesale failure of high school graduates to qualify for entrance to State Normal Schools is to be found in co-operation between the normal and preparatory schools for the purpose of determining upon means of more effective preparation for normal school study. This is the conclusion reached by State Commissioner Enright in a special report to the board.

The normal schools, Dr. Enright suggested, should first define what is standard preparation for normal school entrance and then the preparatory school should provide such preparation. If the public school has any obligation to the public it is that of preparing prospective teachers, Mr. Enright said, after remarking that nearly two-fifths of all young women graduates of the public schools enter the teaching profession.

Commissioner Enright insisted that no system will produce lasting results in the fundamentals unless the work is begun early in the grades and pursued year by year. Arithmetic, as well as English, he argued, should be taught in high school. He declared that a few weeks' review in the twelfth year will serve only to show deficiency in early training and will do very little to remedy efficiency.

It was the contention of the commissioner that in the preparation of candidates for the normal school there are considerations other than proficiency in placing the decimal point or in the use of the relative pronoun which measure the ability and worth of prospective teachers.

Urges Certification Standard

He stated that all curricula of the public school are not on the same level and that normal schools are bound to receive a variety of talent so long as they accept pupils from a variety of curricula. Since it would be hopeless to attempt to unify these courses, Mr. Enright said their differences should be recognised. He suggested establishing a standard of certification similar to the system or recommendation to other higher institutions.

Commissioner Enright submitted to the board the nomination of Louis D. Deyo, principal of the Bound Brook High School for the past five years, as county superintendent of Somerset, and also the nomination of Miss Elizabeth Woodward of Freehold as county attendance officer of Monmouth. The Somerset County superintendency is now being filled by Assistant Commissioner of Eudcation Strahan owing to the refusal of the State board to confirm the nomination of E. A. Reuther.

Erection at the earliest possible date of a normal school in Hudson County was urged upon the State board by City Superintendent Edward Murphy of Jersey City and Superintendent M. F. Husted of North Bergen. A site for the school already has been purchased.

At present, Mr. Murphy said, 452 of the teachers of Hudson County are graduates of normal schools of other States. He referred to this condition as poaching upon the educational institutions of other States, a practice not creditable to New Jersey.

Urge Old Age Pension Bill

The next New Jersey Legislature was urged to adopt an old age pension bill by Judge Thomas O'Donnell of Kansas City, Mo., speaking at a mass meeting in the home of Elizabeth Aerie No. 667, Fraternal Order of Eagles. The bill introduced in the Legislature last year passed the House, but failed to be reported out of committee in the Senate.

Judge O'Donnell told of the spread of the old age pensions plans, in the interest of which he is touring the country. He announced that the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the present membership of which he placed at 900,000, has as its goal 1,000,000 members by 1925.

High Rents Handicap

High rents, coupled with the frequent selling and reselling of houses, forcing families to vacate, continue to be a handicap to the State Board of Children's Guardians, according to the twenty-fifth annual report of that organization. High rents serve to complicate the situation, frequently making it impossible for families to pay for sufficient accommodations in which to maintain children placed by the board. The placing of infants also has become a problem, many between the ages of one and nine months having been turned over to the board within the last year.

The report shows that at the close of the last fiscal year there were 9,686 children under the care of the board, this being an increase of 657 over the previous year. More than $1,000,000 has passed through the treasury of the organization. Of this amount $480,605 was collected from counties for the maintenance of dependent children placed in foster homes and $563,250 from counties for payment of relief granted by the courts to widows under the widows' pension act.

The number of children committed shows an increase of eighty-two more than last year. Of the 911 committed, 485 had been adjudged dependents by overseers of the poor, three came from juvenile courts as delinquents, 370 from the courts under the child welfare act and fifty-three under the act to promote home life for dependent children.

Weights Officials Warned

In a letter sent to weights and measures officials in all parts of the state, J. Harry Foley, state superintendent of Weights and Measures, advises them to exert every effort to see there are no "short" fuel deliveries this winter.

In a bulletin accompanying the letter, Mr. Foley points out that in the checking of 30,817 fuel deliveries through reweighings last winter, 401 were found incorrect. One hundred and eleven coal dealers were prosecuted, points out Mr. Foley, and they paid fines aggregating $3,796.55.

Following is Mr. Foley's letter:

"It is common belief that the fuel situation during the coming winter will not be greatly improved over last year; from the standpoint of price it will undoubtedly be worse.

"I would, therefore, impress upon you the fact that it is incumbent upon weights and measures officials to exert every effort to see that conditions with regard to full quantity being delivered in all cases are kept satisfactory.

"Public opinion has been aroused as never before over the coal question, which in itself prompts the urgency of our carefully checking up on deliveries everywhere and taking proper remedial action whenever condions are found to warrant.

"Particular attention should be paid to the sale of coal in small quantities. Those who out of necessity must buy their fuel in this way are the greatest sufferers both from the exorbitant prices usually exacted, and short weight where dealers with dishonest tendencies feel they can get away with it.

"I am sending up, under separate cover, a supply of the bulletins showing the regulation promulgated last January covering the sale of fuel in small quantities. Kindly see that every dealer in your territoy who sells or bags coal or other fuel in lots of 100 pounds or less is supplied with a copy; they will then have no excuse for non-compliance.

"Your attention and full co-operation in this measure will assure to the people of New Jersey proper fuel conditions from a weights and measures standpoint."

Full Tunnel Cost Estimate

Every endeavor possible is being made by the Bridge and Tunnel commissions of New Jersey and New York to have figures showing the ultimate estimated cost of the Hudson vehicular tunnel available by the end of the present year.

A statement to this effect was made by Theodore Boettger at the close of the hearing before the budget officers with respect to the operations of the Jersey commission. The statement was mainly a repetition of what had been said in reply to interrogation earlier in the day by Clifford M. Holland, chief engineer, and Mr. Boettger, and the question was apparently asked again for the purpose of emphasizing the fact that the ultimate cost was the data most urgently sough to be developed by the inquiry.

The proceedings following the recess hour yesterday were entirely informal, consisting for the most part of questions respecting details of the work and its progress, so that the committee might have before it comprehensive data respecting the various points taken up at the inquiry.

Inquire About Condemnation

The committee was particularly desirous of securing information as to the actual progress which has been made in the acquisition of land, either by purchase or condemnation, on either side of the river.

Quits Tobacco and Oversleeps.

It may seem strange that I have been chewing tobacco since I was twenty-two months old and am still chewing, says a correspondent of the Lebanon (Mo.) Enterprise. About two and one-half years ago I made a resolution to quit and did quit for twenty-five days, feeling no ill effects until about the end of that period, when all of a sudden I began to have sleepy spells and had to quit reading.

Many times I did not know when I went to bed, but when I went to sleep my wife would wake me up some time the next day. I finally got afraid to go up in the woods for fear I might go to sleep and the big snake would carry me to its den and swallow me. So I broke my resolution by taking another chew and the sleepy spell was broken as suddenly as it came on. Can any one explain why all this happened?

The Frankness of Franklin.

Benjamin Franklin, having been touched by an impecunious courtier to the extent of $50, was asked for a sheet of paper so that the borrower could give him a note for the amount.

"What!" exclaimed Franklin, "do you want to waste my stationery as well as my money?"—Boston Transcript.

New Type of Door.

One of the oldest forms of human invention is the door swinging on hinges at one side. Some weaving insets, such as trap-door spiders, employ a similar device. But nothing is too old or too good to escape the efforts at improvement. A Belgian, Joseph Henri Dietrick, invented a doer of new type, consisting of two triangular parts which close together on a diagonal line, running from one lower corner of the door, opening to the opposite upper corner. The two parts, or leaves, are pivoted in such a manner that when opened they swing into partitions in the ceiling, leaving an entirely unobstructed passage.—Washington Star.

Windmill Transformed Into House.

A windmill, in Lonstrup, Denmark, after serving its original purpose for a hundred years, has recently been remodeled into a three-story dwelling house. The original structure, such as is commonly seen in European countries had fittings of four large sails and an outside covering of shingles. When the great grinding stones were removed from the interior, the three floors were divided into comfortable rooms with dormer windows which command a beautiful view of field and stream. Nine persons are accommodated in the picturesque remodeled building.

Lions Retreat Before Mankind.

When the Greeks came into Greece, about 3,000 years ago, there were many lions in the forests of Thrace. The kings of Mesopotamia greatly enjoyed lion hunting, which they pursued in horse-drawn chariots. There has been no lions there for 2,000 years. Big felines are now decidedly out of place in the world. Their strength and their ferocity earn for them the fear and hatred of a weaker muscled but infinitely more cunning and implacable enemy, man. But most particularly man has curtailed the range of the cats by cutting off their food supply.

Ink Removers.

There are numerous formulas for ink removers, a good deal depending on the composition of the ink to be removed. Equal parts of potassium chloride, postassium hypochlorite and oil of peppermint are mixed together for the first solution. Equal parts of sodium chloride, hydrochloric acid and water are mixed for the second solution. The spot is moistened with the first solution, allowed to dry, then pencled over lightly with the second solution and rinsed in clear water. Another good ink remover is made by mixing equal parts of citric acid and alum in water.

Hidden Beauty.

A statue lies hid in a block of marble, and the art of the statuary only clears away the superfluous matter and removes the rubbish. The figure is in the stone, the sculptor only finds it. What sculpture is to a block of marble, education is to a human soul. The philosopher, the saint or the hero—the wise, the good, or the great man—very often lies hid and concealed in a plebeian, which a proper education might have disinterred and brought to light.—Addison.

Enterprise.

"Is bootleg liquor expensive around here?"

"It is in Crimson Gulch," replied Cactus Joe. "But I understand up to Snake Ridge there's an undertaker willing to treat all comers so's to boom business."—Washington Star.

HARTLEY FOR ASSESSOR

James H. Hartley, of Garfield avenue, was elected assessor for Palmyra, running more than a hundred votes ahead of former Assessor John W. Shade, in Tuesday's election.

The assessorship contest furnished the chief local interest in Palmyra's balloting. Assessor Shade had held the office for nearly ten years and obtained a re-nomination in the Republican column at the September primaries. Later, owing to ill health, he resigned for the remainder of his term which would not have expired until next year, but continued as a candidate for re-election.

As late as last Saturday Mr. Shade got out circulars declaring he had regained his health, and asked re-election. On his way home from the firemen's celebration, however, he suffered a hemorrhage of the throat and has been confined to his bed since.

Samuel Scott was the third candidate. He was nominated on the Democratic ballot at the primaries and his name was so printed in the general election ballot.

Mr. Hartley's candidacy was announced only a few days prior to election and votes for him had to be cast by the sticker process. His friends, styling themselves "personal choice committee" got out handbills urging his election.

Hartley is a Democrat, but has a host of friends among both parties and in various fraternal orders. He holds an important position with the Bell Telephone Company and has a good reputation for business ability.

In the fight for the sixth position in Borough Council for which no candidate was named at the primary, Joseph A. Davis, of West Broad street, was elected over John Renshaw and W. S. C. Roray, for the one-year term.

George N. Wimer won the other one-year term position. J. Edwin Lees and Wilmer Randel are the two-year Councilmen and John S. Warner and Charles Buckholtz the three-year men. "Jim" Weart, of course, is still with us as His Honor, the Mayor.

In accordance with previously announced plans, Mayor Weart presented Mr. Hartley's name to Borough Council Wednesday evening for appointment as Assessor for Mr. Shade's unexpired term. The appointment was confirmed and Mr. Hartley was duly sworn in by Clerk George J. Spencer.

Friday-Denneler

A very pretty wedding was solemnized when Miss Emma Denneler, of Cinnaminson, became the bride of Mr. George William Friday, of Bridgeboro, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Denneler, Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock.

The bride, who wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with heavy lace, and a tulle veil, carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. She was given in marriage by her father. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Florence Berger, sister of the bride, of Camden, and the best man was Mr. Conard Friday, of Bridgeboro. Little Miss Anna Robertson, of Delanco, was flower girl. Mrs. Berger wore orchid silk chiffon over gold, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The wedding march was played by Miss Mildred Denneler, of Riverton, accompanied by Mr. Vincent Rhoades, of Riverside, on the violin.

The house was beautifully decorated with orchid and yellow flowers, and the dining table with white chrysanthemums.

After their return from a wedding trip, which is being spent in Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Friday will reside in their new home in Delanco, which is just being completed.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Nelson Sperling, pastor of the Moravian Church, Parry. Over one hundren relatives of the couple were present at the wedding.

Pretty Double Wedding

A very pretty double wedding was solemnized last Saturday evening at the Epworth parsonage, when Miss Maud Myers, of Millville, became the bride of Mr. William Shaw, Jr., of Palmyra, and Miss Frances Reinhard, of Palmyra, became the bride of Mr. John Makin, of Riverside Park. The Rev. Fred B. Morley officiated.

The attendants for Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were Miss Helen Tice and Mr. Clayton Weikman, of Palmyra, while Miss Dorothy Reed and Mr. Jack Kelly, both of Philadelphia, attended Mr. and Mrs. Makin.

An ante-nuptial party was given by the parents of Mrs. Makin at their home on Leconey avenue Friday evening. Over sixty guests attended and all spent a most enjoyable evening. The bride wishes to thank her many friends for the beautiful presents she received.

Scout News

The Boy Scouts have just completed a two months' point contest on passing tests. In the last two months the boys passed more tests than in the entire year previous and are very much enthused. They want more.

Arrangements are now being made to start another contest in the near future, the three losing patrols to put on a "feed" for the three winning patrols. In addition, the patrol leaders, assistants and members of the losing patrols will have to do K. P. duty.

As usual, the Scouts were on the job during the firemen's parade last Saturday, not only appearing in the parade but also doing police and traffic duty.

The recently organized Scouts' Auxiliary, formed for the purpose of furthering the Scout movement in Palmyra, is desirous of having all who are interested in the Boy Scouts, join the Auxiliary.

Use of Feldspar Growing.

The exploitation of the many feldspar deposits of the United States is all the time increasing, owing to the extensive use of this mineral in the manufacture of pottery, enamelware, enamel brick and electricware. It is also used for binding together the material of emery or carborundum wheels as well as to some extent in the manufacture of opalescent glass and artificial teeth. It is useful in the preparation of scouring soaps and window washes, because being slightly softer than glass it is not likely, as is the quartz contained in some soaps, to abrade the surface. Feldspar employed in pottery must be nearly free from iron-bearing minerals.

A Fireman of '87

When Independence Fire Company, of Palmyra, was organized, May 11, 1886, George N. Wimer was just 20, that being his birthday, so he could not join until the first anniversary. He celebrated his becoming of age by joining the company. At that time there was a movement afoot to have all the members' pictures framed on the walls. So George had the photo above taken. He was marshal of the firemen's parade last Saturday.

Classes at the Y.W.C.A. are scheduled to begin next Tuesday evening, November 13, at 7.30, at the Porch Club.

Miss Arbus, county secretary, is expected to be present.

The program will begin with choral practice of songs from the new Y song book and from a book of Christmas hymns in preparation for Christmas caroling at the Cinnaminson Home.

Classes in Bible study and current events are to be conducted on alternate weeks.

At the same time a dressmaking class will be in progress in the inner room. All who wish to take the course should be on hand for the first lesson next Tuesday evening.

P. H. S. Alumni

In spite of anything that the pessimists among the High School Alumni may say, the Alumni Asosciation has not yet "passed out," but, on the contrary, has a good deal of life remaining in it.

Next Friday evening, November 9, the Association will hold its annual meeting for the election of officers, and it is requested that all loyal Alumni come out at this time in order to ascertain if something cannot be done to re-invigorate the members and make the Association a greater force both in retaining social interest among the Alumni members and in making the Association as a body a greater factor in assisting, in whatever way possible, the High School faculty and student body. There is no doubt that it can be done if the Alumni will take a greater interest in the affairs of the Association.

As an added attraction, there will be a dance after the meeting. The Alumni members are privileged to bring guests for the small sum of fifty (50) cents.

Odd Fellows

The Radio Club of Cinnaminson Lodge, No. 201, I. O. O. F., Palmyra, held a very interesting tho somewhat technical meeting following the regular session of the lodge last Friday night, November 2nd. They had with them on that occasion an expert who gave them many details of this interesting pastime, also demonstrating a new type of receiver. The Bugs were out strong and enjoyed themselves immensely.

The next meeting, Friday, November 9th, will largely be taken up with "quoits." Plans are now in the forming to have a point tournament among the members of the Lodge. The quoit tossers are urged to be present to formulate the rules. It is also hoped to have the new courts ready for this meeting, which is a big improvement.

"First-Aid Auto Kit" Latest.

Automobilists used to be content with carrying—by way of extraordinary accessories—a fire extinguisher, a swing for the baby and a tow rope, but with the list of those injured in auto accidents growing daily, some are beginning to add another piece of equipment, and an enterprising manufacturer of hospital goods is capitalizing this new need, says the New York Sun and Globe. He has provided an "automobile first-aid kit," which consists of the articles necessary to render first aid to persons injured while working on an automobile or driving it.

Perpetual Sodas.

There is one girl in New York who is "fed up." Her job is to drink nut sundaes, sodas, all the soda fountain concoctions there are, or to order them, at any rate, and go through the motions. She is a spotter. Besides detecting dishonesty and seeing if the ticket systems of the fountains work properly, there is the service business to look at, satisfied customers and all of that. The technic is just the same as in spotting in a jewelry store. The first essential is complete disguise as an ordinary customer and the second is alertness.

He who rests last earns it most.

OLD-BOOK SHOPS IN NORWAY

Ancient Scandinavian Volumes Are to Be Found in the "Antikvariats" of Stockholm.

Norway, like China, has no old-book shops. Christiania, of course, was only a provincial town in Scandinavia when, a few years ago, the partition occurred, and even now, as the Norse capital, it has a good deal less metropolitan amenities than Portsmouth or Bournemough or Cardiff, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian.

After assiduous inquiries I managed to reach a rather forlorn bookshop down near the docks and was offered, as a genuine antiquity, a devotional treatise dated 1843. The old Scandinavian books are to be found in the half-dozen "Antikvariats" of Stockholm.

They are fascinating old bookshops, dusty and cobwebbed—four of them with numbers of tomes dating back into the sixteen hundreds, and some even a century before. In one of them I found three years ago a lot of Elzevirs at very low prices. In another a couple of very ancient Bibles bound in worm-eaten wooden boards, with a yard of iron chain attached.

Brotherhood of Man

Brotherhood is a wonderful word, it even sounds good, just say it aloud and listen. Listen with your heart and your mind. If one analyses it, the word means fact of being a brother, relationship, quality of being brotherly, an association of men, fraternity, etc.

Now we come to brotherhood of man; there have been times or periods in the World's history when each nation has realized its own racial brotherhood. They were united for a given cause, it gave them a vision of what it means to be of one race. But the brotherhood of man means more than just this. The meaning may be clearer if we say brotherhood of mankind, meaning all kinds of men or races or nations.

Has there ever been a time when all mankind was united in a given cause? Never. But in 1914 many nations were brought together for a common purpose, thereby linking up the race fraternally. Almost every nation and generation has prated about the millenium, that state of being where all mankind are equally comfortable and happy. Have they ever done anything definitely and unitedly to bring such a desirable state of existence to pass? No, it is always something they hope will take place in the future. Does it ever occur to our minds that we could bring the millenium in our lifetime? It is a state of mind we can will it to be.

On November 11th, 1918, after the signing of the Armistice, more kinds of men were of a given mind than ever before in this world's weary and long suffering history. That subject was Peace with a capital letter, it was a state of their hearts and minds. There was a quality in their joy and happiness never quite experienced before, not alone because the hideous, horrible war was ended, but an inner voice told them that war was no longer a way for civilized man to settle disputes, war should be outlawed.

Do you recall your personal thoughts and feelings Armistice Day? Can you revive a bit of the emotions? What has happened to us individually? We make up the collective will and purpose. What has happened to the mind of this Country, to Europe, yet, sad as their state is, you see a reason of war's aftermath. Therefore our attitude is worse, being outside of intelligent rhyme or reason.

Why do some of us feel this way about our Country, is it not dread of the United States becoming militaristic and have we just cause for these fears? Read the Army Budget. We have been a people who do not believe in war, yet present statistics reveal a growth of the reverse attitude. How and why have we reached this state? Surely not deliberately. We have seen where war has landed Europe, even the nation that was its greatest exponent and had brought it to a condition of unequaled and unrivaled efficiency. We should want none of it.

Will those who once had a glimpse of the brotherhood of man, try during this coming Armistice Week, to restore some of their feeling; purify their hearts and search their minds, and if there be a spark of enthusiasm left, convert it into an active force and create a leaven which will work for cnstruction and not destruction.

Demand for ammonium sulphate for fertilizer is growing rapidly. During five months nearly 7,000 tons of it were shipped from the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company to all parts of the United States. It is a by-product of coke, carries from 20 to 21 per cent. availbale nitrogen and is known as one of the world's best commercial carriers of that element.

Palmyra High Continues to Win in Football Contests

The Palmyra High gridiron warriors continued with their winning streak by defeating Pemberton by an overwhelming score of 84 to 0. The lop-sided contest was staged on The Field Club grounds before an unusually large crowd, last Friday afternoon.

This was the first game in which Palmyra has played this season that it was not out-weighed. The local bunch was about the same weight as its opponents. Mentally, so far as football is concerned, the P. H. S. aggregation were giants, while the boys from up in the country might be called pigmies.

Coach Ivory started his varsity team, but was soon forced to relieve the big boys in order to keep the score below the century mark. Radcliff replaced Harry Burns, the star of the Burlington game, at the left end position. The bright light of the team, Calvin Boal, quarter, was removed in favor of Richard Graham, who ably called signals and made some exceedingly good plays. Joyce followed Richman in the left half position. Jimmie Burr played a good game at right half-back, when he was sent in to replace Roy Kersey. Harold Wood did his "stuff" in Stackhouse's position, as full-back.

Three of the regular men each made two touchdowns apiece. They were Boal, Kersey and Stackhouse. Burr, a so-called second string man, dispayed his worth on the team by also scoring twice. Wood, Joyce, Radcliffe and Wagner also crossed Pemberton's line for six points each. Twelve counters were made by placement kicks.

Pemberton displayed very poor form. The visitors only made one first down during the entire game. Palmyra played its usual type of ball, many long open field runs being made by the all-star back field men.

Monday night found ten teams in scholastic circles around Philadelphia and South Jersey undefeated. There were only two in South Jersey with a clean sheet. Palmyra shares these honors with Woodbury. Palmyra has an edge on the only other contender, however, for it has defeated six strong teams: Moorestown, Trenton School for Deaf, LaSalle Prep, Burlington, Princeton and Pemberton, while Woodbury has met and conquered five elevens, Haddon Heights, Haddonfield, Camden, Moorestown and Paulsboro.

It was the ambition of the local aggregation, at the start of the present season, to come through undefeated, and win the South Jersey title. In order to attain this, Ivory's proteges must trim Haddon Heights, Burlington again, and Cape May. These are the three remaining games on the schedule. Palmyra, when it won the Burlington County championship from Burlington, was the first eleven in scholastic circles to win a title this season.

The score now stands: Palmyra, total number of points for the year, 165; opponents, total points, 12.

Local people will have their last opportunity of seeing the record-breaking bunch perform on its home lot when it tackles Haddon Heights this Friday afternoon. A large crowd is expected to be on hand.

Riverton Ties Delanco in Saturday's Football Game

The game last Saturday between Riverton and Delanco, which was witnessed by the largest crowd of the season was a good clean, hard-fought contest, in which the teams were so evenly matched that the goal line of either was never really threatened.

Both teams played a fine brand of football, with Delanco, by its superior team work, having a slight edge on the locals, gaining nine first downs to Riverton's seven.

The playing of Andrson and Bowers for Riverton and that of Hubbs for the visitors, featured.

This Saturday, November the 10th, Riverton will play the St. Monica C. C., of Philadelphia, who handed Riverton one of their two defeats of last season, and they say that they are coming up with a string of about 24 players and a large crowd of rooters, expecting to go home with another victory to their credit. This should be one of the best games of the season, so don't miss it.

Kick off 3.15 p. m., Seventh and Cedar avenue, Riverton.

Legion Armistice Day Memorial Service

Post Rodgers, No. 156, American Legion, extends a cordial welcome to everyone to attend their annual memorial service on Sunday, November 11th, at 4 p.m. in the Legion Home. They will meet for one hour and an interesting program has been arranged and will be in charge of Rev. Harry L. Saul, post chaplain.

Lowered the Temperature.

I proposed for the first time to the girl of my heart on the crowded platform of an elevated station during the well-known rush hour. It was a cold, miserable evening and I wasn't warmed up at all by the young lady's curt, firm and cutting refusal.—Chicago Journal.

PALMYRA MOTOR COMPANY INSTALLING NEW EQUIPMENT

Six to Eight Hour Recharging Storage Batteries Possible

The Palmyra Motor Company local Ford-Lincoln and Fordson Dealer has purchased the latest type Storage Battery recharging equipment and is rushing installation so that by November 15th, their patrons can have their automobile or radio storage batteries recharged in 6 to 8 hours. This method will eiiminate the service battery rentals in that The Palmyra Motor will call for any storage battery in Riverton or Palmyra in the morning, recharge it and return it the same day. If your radio battery is drained or discharged when using your set in the evening, you can have the storage battery called for, recharged and returned to you in time for the next evening's concert.

In another case, where your automobile is in their shops for repairs, and the repairs consume about five hours, and your storage starting battery is half discharged, they can fully charge your battery and have it in the can again by the time repairs are completed.

This equipment is very expensive and it is absolutely guaranteed not to harm any storage battery.

This new service is expected to be well patronized by all radio and car storage battery owners.

THE BERRY PATCH

By FANNY RICHARDSON

©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

T THE age of eighteen one should be blissfully happy, even in a stuffy train—especially when one is the proud possessor of two boxes of chocolates, roses and four magazines. But Isabell's usually smiling mouth was puckered into an unhappy little twist. The ticket she had put in her glove read "Lesterville," where, isolated from suitors, theaters, dances and good times, she was expected to spend an eventless vacation away from the city with her aunt, who was to strictly see to it that she did nothing else but eat good food, fresh from the farm, and rest.

Perfectly ridiculous, wasn't it, that such an attractive girl as Isabell, with absolutely nothing the matter with her, should be made to spend her vacation in such a place? Her aunt had said there were no young people in the neighborhood. Isabell laughed as she recollected. Who ever heard of a neighborhood without young people?

However, her aunt was true to her word. After Isabell had stayed four days in Lesterville she had not seen anyone her own age except the tawny-haired, freckle-faced farmhand. Isabell, craving companionship, thought the boy "better than nothing," and they spent many a half-hour together.

When Isabell had been a week in Lesterville she heard there was going to be a costume party in the village. Her freckle-faced friend told her of it. She began making plans for it, having made up her mind she was going.

Arriving conspicuously late at the party, there was nothing for them to do but watch the games which were in progress on lantern-bedecked lawns. A young man dressed as Captain Kidd, evidently their host, offered Isabell his place in a game of croquet. "But I don't know how," she had objected. Tom, at their host's suggestion, eagerly took his mallet and joined in the game.

"I'm sorry you don't play," said the host, "but there are six or seven other games you could join. They're dancing the Virginia Reel in the barn. Come, let's do that."

And a few moments later Isabell was "doing it." She little knew what a gay picture she made in her Egyptian costume, dancing in and out, clapping and bowing to her unknown escort, whose fiercely grotesque costume seemed to enhance the beauty of his little partner's outfit.

"Let's play 'It,'" said Captain Kidd, after the dancing was over.

Then followed a period of explanations. In spite of the fact that Isabell knew very few of the games, she found her host more than eager to explain. He took her to this group and that group, introduced her, but never once let any of the other men be her partner.

Somebody tugged at her dress. It was Tom. "Hurry, we got to go now, or we'll get caught. The thing's 'most over!"

Dismayed, Isabell looked at her sandalless foot. "I can't, Tom, until he finds my sandal."

"We can't wait," he said. "Come with me now—easy, this way—so they won't notice."

* * * * * * *

It was ten o'clock, the day after the party. Isabell was getting ready to go blueberrying. In a sunbonnet, hardly to be recognized as the dazzling Egyptian princess of the night before, yet certainly as desirable, she was soon walking in a thicket of berry bushes. From time to time she wondered how she had been able, as she recalled last night's experiences, to get home ahead of her aunt, hustle under the bedclothes still in her costume, and wear the innocent expression she had worn when her aunt had opened her door to see if all was well.

For an hour Isabell picked, humming snatches of a gay little tune. Then there had been a slight rustling in the bushes, a scream from Isabell, and the berries had been scattered in a hundred directions. Then she had run and run. A young man was coming toward her. Instinctively he held out his arms and she ran right into them.

Absurd, isn't it, to try and work against fate? How hard Isabell's aunt had worked to keep her niece away from parties and excitement. And she had only to send her niece out to a blueberry patch where there wasn't supposed to be a soul around for miles, and a young man dropped right out of the clouds at her feet.

It was Captain Kidd who carried Isabell back to the road. He took a long time about it, going around a longer way than necessary. "You say you only saw his horns?" he asked.

"Yes. But I don't think I'll ever be able to go berrying again."

He looked down at the pale face. "He wouldn't hurt you. He probably ran faster than you did.

"When we get to the road, I'm going to give you your slipper."

"You have my slipper!" she cried. "Why, it's just like the Cinderella fairy tale, isn't it?

"My, but we're taking a long time getting to the road. Why, you've taken me around the longest way. Naughty prince! Just for that, I'm going to make you carry me right up to the house. Auntie will have a fit!"

And auntie did have a fit, but she might just as well have saved her strength.

WOMAN BAGGED THREE LIONS

Remarkable Example of Fearlessness Given by Wife of a Ranger in South Africa.

The following incident of a woman's bravery and fearlessness is told by a writer in a South African paper. The incident occurred on the Sable reserve.

Mrs. D., wife of a ranger who was absent on patrol, was called from her household duties by an excited native shouting "Missus! Missus! the lions have killed a koodoo over there." The lady seised a rifle and a handful of cartridges and walked towards the spot indicated. She saw four lions, at a distance of 200 yards tearing at, and devouring the carcass of a koodoo.

Mrs. D. coolly aimed at the nearest lion and shot it dead; the others paused momentarily, and then resumed feeding. A second shot wounded a lion and this one immediately charged, but a well-aimed shot dropped it dead in its tracts. She killed a third lion, and wounded the fourth; the latter bolted for cover and disappeared in the dense bush.

It was a remarkable feat for a woman to tackle and kill three lions in a few minutes, besides wounding and frightening a fourth away.

TRAPEZE WORK SAVED HIM

Youth's Ability to "Chin Himself" Enabled Him to Reach Roof When Ladder Slipped.

This extraordinary incident actually happened, writes a contributor, some forty years ago near the town of Cadiz, O., on the farm known as the Joseph McKee place. Mr. James McConnell, a painter of Cadiz, had been employed by Mr. McKee to paint his barn, a tall structure built on a hillside. Mr. McConnell had taken along with him as helper his son Sam, a boy perhaps fifteen years old. The day happened to be windy.

In getting ready to paint the gable they placed a ladder in the bed of a wagon, for the ladder was too short to reach all the way from the ground to the top. The father was at work on one side of the building. The son, who had considerable confidence in himself, prepared to paint from the ladder. But as he reached the top a severe sweep of wind caused the ladder to slip. He reached up and caught the edge of the roof and hung there while the ladder fell to the ground. Knowing that he surely should be killed if he dropped from such a height, Sam made a supreme effort to reach the roof. At last he succeeded, though he was so exhausted that he had to wait some little time before climbing down.

It seems almost a miracle that he did not fall with the ladder. As a matter of fact, for several years he had exercised daily on a trapeze at home, and he was noted among his companions as the only boy at school who could chin himself with one hand.

Fifty Thousand Miles

That's how much new wire is being added to the Bell System in southern New Jersey this year.

In 1924 we expect to add 65,000 miles.

But that is only one part of our program—the greatest telephone construction program in the history of the territory.

New buildings and large additions to other buildings are being constructed. Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of new switchboards and Central Office equipment, thousands of new telephones, are being added this year.

Factories are working day and night, train after train is hauling the equipment.

To what end?—That the telephone system in southern New Jersey may keep pace with the needs of the people.

REPUBLICAN MAJORITIES

Hold Assembly by Forty-two to Eighteen, Democrats Gaining But Two Members

Completed returns from the New Jersey election gave the Democrats a gain of two members in the Assembly, but it will remain Republican by a vote of 42 to 18, as against 44 to 16 this year. The two new Democrats come from Mercer County where they made a clean sweep of the ticket, that county having chosen one Democrat, last year. Middlesex also re-elected one Democrat, Fred W. DeVoe, with the two Republican members. Hunterdon, Warren, Sussex and Hudson returned their Democratic members, but the belated returns from Essex showed that all of the twelve Republican candidates had been elected by margins ranging from 5000 to 7000. The vote in the city of Newark had been so heavily in favor of the Democratic candidates that their victory was believed to be sure, but the suburban voters came in strong for the Republican ticket.

The same Essex County vote landed J. Henry Harrison, Republican, in the Senate by a majority of more than 10,000, and that leaves the political complexion of the Senate precisely as it was, seventeen Republicans and four Democrats. The Democrats elected but one of their seven candidates, Senator Barber coming through easily in Warren for return for another term. The Republicans were successful in Monmouth, Camden, Somerset, Salem, Gloucester, Union and Essex.

"Is the result of the balloting for the Legislature a victory for Frelinghuysen?" That is one of the questions naturally arising after a perusal of the "wet" and "dry" line-up of votes in the Senate and House of Assembly for the 1924 session.

At all events it is apparent that the "drys" carried the day.

A rough estimate of the liquor or anti-liquor views of the 42 Republicans elected to the Assembly would indicate that probably 26 of them are "dry," a total of 11 are "wet," and the remaining 5 may be classified doubtful.

Will Push Sewer Disposal Plant

At a meeting of the Riverton Borough Council, Thursday evening, November 8, it was reported that on October 26th, Mayor Killam E. Bennett and President of Council, H. H. Murray, who is also chairman of the sewer committee, went to Trenton and had a conference with H. P. Croft, of the State Board of Health. They presented to him a copy of the resolution passed at the last meeting of council regarding the disposal plant, as per plans of 1919. The State Board was insistent that the plant be built at once and they were much pleased with the resolution passed by Council. The matter is now fully underway. The Borough Attorney, William T. Read, and the Borough Engineers, Sherman and Sleeper, are working in full accord with council.

Burlington County Strong Booster of Father and Son Movement

The number of Father and Son banquets scheduled for the evenings which immediately follow the opening of Father and Son Week, November 11th, are a splendid indication of interest in this Father and Son Movement, promoting the spirit of comradeship in the place of that of dictator and subject.

Jobstown starts off with Father and Son dinners Wednesday evening, November 14th, with Charles A. Green, general secretary of the YMCA at Trenton, as the speaker; Palmyra and Moorestown have a dinner scheduled for Thursday evening, the 15th; Mount Holly Friday evening, the 16th, with Dr. John Stapleton, of White Plains, as the speaker. The Mount Holly dinner is promoted by the local YMCA board. Henry F. Stockwell, of Moorestown, is to be the speaker at the Lenola dinner Saturday evening, the 17th. Jobstown and Lenola are to hold dinners in the new community centers which are reconstructed from former YMCA buildings at Camp Dix. This fact will add to the significance of the occasion in these two communities. Judge Wells is to speak at the Florence Father and Son dinner Monday evening, the 19th. On the following evening he will act as toastmaster for a dinner in Bordentown, with Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, as the speaker. Secretary Hendry announces that he has a very limited number of tickets for the Bordentown dinner for men who are particularly anxious to hear Mr. Beck, without question one of the greatest men in the country in dealing with personnel problems and particularly in giving fathers and sons a new slant on things.

Appreciation

I desire to thank all those who voted for me as Freeholder in the recent election and assure you that I will do my utmost to warrant your confidence in me.

DEDICATION OF COOPER HOUSE

Historic Birthplace of Great Novelist to be Occupied by Burlington County Historical Society

Preparations have been made for the dedication of the James Fenimore Cooper House, Burlington, as the new home of the Burlington County Historical Society, the event to take place on Friday, November 23.

The exercises will begin at two o'clock in the afternoon, when Judge Harold B. Wells will deliver an address from the front steps of the historic building. Pupils from the James Fenimore Cooper public school and from the junior high school will participate in the program. At 2.30 the exercises will continue at the Friends' meeting house, that city, where Prof. William L. Phelps, of Yale University, will speak on "James Fenimore Cooper, the Great American Author." At four o'clock the Cooper building will be formally dedicated by Judge Wells.

The house was bought by the Historical Society some months ago and the interior has been altered to meet the requirements of the organization. The exterior has been restored to its original condition by replacing a replica of the door and doorway and by making the windows conform to those formerly in the building.

The historical possessions of the society, now housed on the second floor of the Burlington Library, will be removed to the Cooper house, and a caretaker, Walter Coombs, will be placed in charge.

Men and women now are eligible to membership in the organization. Until this year the society was composed of women only and was known as the Women's Burlington County Historical Society. A new charter has been obtained which gives membership privileges to men also.

Considerable money has been collected to be applied to the purchase of the building, but it was necessary to place a mortgage on the property. It is hoped sufficient funds will be contributed in the near future to cancel the mortgage indebtedness.

The Cooper House committee includes Miss Alice D'Olier, of Burlington; Miss Anna M. Brakeley, of Bordentown; Miss Laura Fenimore, of Mount Holly; Mrs. William J. Irick, of Vincentown; Mrs. I. Harrison Hutchinson, of Jobstown; Mrs. Francis W. D'Olier, of Moorestown; Mrs. Robert Biddle, of Riverton; Mrs. John W. Hamer, of Beverly; Mrs. Joseph C. Gill, of Edgewater Park.

RIVERTON FREE LIBRARY

Children's Book Week, November 13th to 17th

A collection of illustrated books, loaned from the Burlington County Free Library and books suitable for Christmas gifts will be on exhibition at the Riverton Free Library from November 13th to 17th.

All children from 7 to 12 years of age are invited to a Story Hour to be held from 3 to 4 o'clock, on Saturday afternoon, November 17th, to be conducted by Miss Pratt, librarian of the Burlington County Free Library.

Ask to Have Road Fixed

Edward Wood and Benjamin Lippincott, representing citizens of Moorestown, Chester and Cinnaminson townships and Riverton borough, appeared before the Board of Freeholders, at a recent meeting, and presented a petition requesting the improvement of the road from Moorestown to Riverton. The surface of this highway, one of the first in the county to be macadamized, is badly worn and rutted. There is much traffic on the road and in its present condition it is dangerous to travel. A meeting of citizens of the municipalities named above was held recently, when the petition was prepared for presentation to the Freeholders.

The Board listened to the remarks of the two representatives, received the petition, and promised early attention to the subject.

Beverly Banner in New Hands

Thomas Lee, former mayor of Beverly, Francis Smith, an attorney in that town, and J. Allen, a member of the Beverly Common Council, have purchased the Beverly Banner from the estate of the late Luther W. Perkins, who died some months ago. The new owners expect to renovate the plant and make several improvements to the newspaper. Since the death of Mr. Perkins, the paper has been published by Edgar C. Perkins, his son.

Luncheon for Retiring Sheriff

Sheriff Flagg, Deputy Sheriff Stone, Jailer Clarence Horner, Judges Donges and Wells and court officials, together with the incoming sheriff, Joseph B. Fleetwood, were the guests of County Clerk William H. Reeves at a luncheon given in honor of the outgoing sheriff and his official family at the YWCA on Thursday of last week.

Sheriff Flagg's plans for the future are yet in the making, but he will move back to Riverton, and then probably take a vacation in the south in order that his wife may have an opportunity to regain her health, which has been very poor recently.

Killed by Train

When a Ford runabout, in which he was on his way to work, was struck by a West bound passenger train, due at Riverton at 7.45, Saturday morning, at the crossing opposite the Riverton Ice and Cold Storage Plant, George Mays, of Riverside, was fatally injured and died on his way to the Riverside hospital. Mays, who was twenty-five years of age, was employed as a paper cutter by the Allied Paper Comapny, of East Riverton. The car was wrecked. It is thought that Mays did not hear the train approaching when he attempted to cross the track. He was carried nearly a thousand feet, with his head wedged in the pilot of the engine, just a few inches above the ground.

Coroner Belton is investigating the information that the engineer failed to blow his whistle on approaching the unprotected crossing.

J. Lawrence Lippincott Writes from California

As I sit here on the edge of the Desert in Southern California in the cool shade of our own camp, it makes me feel a long way from Riverton. When I realize also we have traveled over 8000 miles since leaving home, I am more than ever made to realize the distance. We left home anticipating a great deal of pleasure out of our trip, but I am free to say, somewhat uncertain of the conditions we should have to encounter.

As I look back now on our many experiences I can not picture a more ideal mode of travel and an opportunity to see the country and mingle with the people. From Riverton we took the route to Buffalo, where we took steamer June 9, placing our whole outfit on same and had four perfect days on the Great Lakes, and a beautiful trip, landing at Duluth early on the morning of the 13th. Started at once for St. Paul and Minneapolis, thence west over what is known as the "Yellowstone Trail," thru Minnesota, South Dakota, and across the southwest corner of North Dakota, and into Montana, arriving at Livingstone June 26, which is 50 miles north of the Yellowstone National Park. The route thru the Dakotas and Montana is a very sparsely populated country and much of it desert and barren and in many instances we traveled 50 to 60 miles without seeing a habitation of any kind. The distance from Duluth to Livingston is approximately 1500 miles and we were from June 16 to 26 making it, so you see we traveled an average of about 100 miles per day, taking it in easy stages. At Livingston we were joined by our daughter and a niece and went into the Yellowstone, where we spent 12 wonderful days, June 27 to July 8. During this period, President Harding visited the Park on his tour and now that he has passed on it is a great pleasure to have seen him in such apparent good health and enjoying himself. From the Yellowstone, the routes across the balance of Montana started into very rough and rugged country, getting into the Rocky Mountains; passing thru Butte, Mont., and also Anaconda, the location of the greatest copper smelter in the world. It is a most impressive sight as you approach to see the great establishment perched upon a high mountain in the distance and the great stack, which carries off the fumes and dust upon the very peak. We had a most interesting trip through the plant, and one is impressed with the magnitude of the establishment.

From Anaconda we worked our way up into the Rockies and crossed the Bitter Root Mountain pass at an elevation of about 8000 feet, into Idaho, thence to Spokane, Washington, rough mountainous country but thru wonderful forests of Douglas Firs, many of them 6 feet in diameter and some 10 feet. Enormous saw mills, in some cases with a capacity of 1,000,000 feet per day.

On entering Washington and Oregon we passed thru some of the world renowned fruit districts, all of which are irrigated. Thence to Seattle, from which we took a side trip by boat up Puget Sound to Victoria, B.C., from Seattle to Tacoma, then a side trip of 75 miles to and up Mt. Rainier into the snow and among the great glaciers. From Tacoma to Astoria, Oregon, at the mouth of the Columbia River, from there up the Columbia River Highway, a distance of 180 miles, over what is acknowledged to be the most perfect and beautiful roadway probably in the world, following the course of the river the entire distance, passing thru Portland, where we camped for a few days in a beautiful City Park.

Our route then brought us into northern California and thence down the State into the Sacramento Valley and to San Francisco, where we stayed a few days, then on to the Yosemite Valley, a distance of about 175 miles southeast and in the mountains. The valley is a most impressive sight, 3,000 feet down from the mountains above, 7 miles long and about a mile wide, enclosed on all sides by perpendicular walls. The valley itself is watered by the beautiful Merced River which flows thru.

From the valley we followed the inland route to Los Angeles, taking a side trip to Catalena Island, 25 miles off shore.

From Pasadena, where we made our headquarters for more than a month, taking side trips to many places of interest in southern California.

We are now returning from a trip of a couple of weeks to the Imperial valley, in the southeast corner of the State. The area of 600,000 acres is a wonderful illustration of the transformation of a barren desert into a thriving community, in which are located a number of thrifty towns of from 5000 to 7000 population, all of which has taken place since 1905, when the water was introduced from the Colorado River.

A Message from the National Parent-Teacher Association

AMERICA'S supreme gift to Democracy is her great public school system. It offers to every child in the land an opportunity for an education. Education is that which fits us for complete living; and an educated citizenship is the only dependable safeguard for our National integrity. A child in a public school learns more than is taught in the class room from books. He becomes a unit in a community. He learns to live with people. He finds himself. He learns to modify his opinions, to suppress his impulses, guard his speech, consider the rights of others, and to respect law. He adjusts himself to his environment. The rich curriculum of the school opens to him countless avenues of interest, inspiration, information and practical service.

One cannot think of a school and the children and fail to consider the homes from which they come. Nor can they fail to recognize how handicapped is the child from the very beginning of life because in countless numbers of cases the parents have had no training in the right rearing of children.

That parenthood is still following instinctive and traditional methods in the rearing of children is proven by the tragical condition revealed when the six-year-old enters school, when 70 to 100% of primary children are found to have one to six or more physical defects.

That teachers are equally ignorant is proven by the fact that children leaving school carry their defects with them. The great need is to make it generally known that applied science has as great value in the home and school as on the farm. Formerly children had pedigrees only; there was no standards by which they might be measured. The most devoted mother sought in vain for dependable counsel. All that is changed today, thanks to the research work being done in child-welfare. Today there is no excuse for parent or teacher not knowing where the child stands in the scale of accepted standards.

Fortunately it is a part of the psychology of parenthood to want better opportunity for the children than they themselves enjoyed. They want the best for John and Mary. But what is the best? What even is good enough? They do not know. They are seeking to find out, and once informed it is they who vote for the taxes they themselves must pay for needed expansion and improvements.

In these chaotic days of world adjustment, new duties confront educators. One of supreme importance is how to combat the menace of the future which threatens the peace of the world at the expiration of the ten-year disarmament agreement in 1929.

With all nations of Europe hating each other, and some great nations hating us, are we getting ready to do our part in creating a Federation of the World?

We have long recognized that the glory of any nation lies in the quality of its citizens, and citizens are only children grown up. The quality of the citizen is determined by the quality of his environment, home traiping, and education. We believe that the children are the hope of the world, and the solution of the whole problem of national stability and of permanent world peace lies with the type of education and training given to the children of the nation. To train aright is our inescapable obligation.

If diplomacy can stave off for another ten years open rupture between nations, and if an international program of education for world citizenship were put into effect for the children of all lands, there would develop a new spirit of toleration, of mutual understanding, and respect of cooperation and fraternalism, thru realization of the contribution each has made to racial progress, to civilization and of our inter-dependence one upon another, that would go a long way toward solving the peace problem.

The children of today must be taught to feel and to practice not toleration only but comradeship with those from other lands. Parents need to learn this, too. We should, in our homes and schools cultivate a spirit of local, national, and international appreciation and good will through recognition of our common love for the fine things of the spirit, represented by patriotism, progress and peace.

P. H. S.

Saturday evening, December 1, will find the Palmyra high school giving one of the biggest dances in its history. The dance will be held in the school's gym, and will be known as a Football Hop. A high-class dance orchestra from Philadelphia has been engaged for the evening and nothing will be left undone in order to make this the huge success it should be. Cards are to be $2.00.

"TORNADO SQUAD" ACTIVE
Raid Several Places in Burlington County and Overwhelm New Sheriff with Prisoners

The "Tornado Squad" of county detectives has filled the county jail during the week. On Sunday the largest invoice of prisoners that has ever been sent from that city was committed to the county jail by Judge Thomas S. Mooney, of Burlington, following a raid three o'clock Sunday morning on the pool-room back of the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Burlington.

Detectives Cain, Carabine and Bading went to Burlington shortly after midnight on Saturday, after having made a flying visit to that city earlier in the evening to raid an alleged bootleg joint on Delaware avenue. Reenforced with all the night members of the Burlington police force, led by Captain Wilson Johnson, the raiding party entered the poolroom, which has attained a notorious reputation for months. It has been nearly a year ago that a colored man was shot there, and this was followed by a murder trial, in which the defendant was acquitted.

According to the Burlington authorities, the place has been a notorious gambling, bootlegging and disorderly house for a long time, but it is believed that Sunday morning's raid has ended its career of lawlessness.

The officers who made the raid declare that they never before had encountered so many men in one place. Twenty-five man and one woman, all negroes, were arrested. Despite the fact that they went in all directions when the officers entered the building it is believed that not one escaped. Several clambered to the roof of the Metropolitan Inn, adjoining the poolroom, but were brought down when two of the police officers emptied their revolvers in the air.

The raid netted the largest number of arrests ever made by officers connected with Parker's office, and they are to be especially commended, both the county detectives and the Burlington police, in rounding up the notorious place. Several guns and razors, packs of cards, a jug of liquor, "put and take" tops, and dice were all found in the place, many of them in use, and several of the negroes were intoxicated.

Sherman Price, the manager of the pool room, which is owned by a resident of Philadelphia, was held under $1,000 bail by Judge Mooney. The woman, Millie Gaskill, was held under bail at $200.

About seven o'clock on Saturday night the county detectives raided the home of Mrs. Jessie Emmonds, at 136 Delaware avenue, Burlington, and there found some more liquor.

Upstairs in the Emmonds home Joseph Cameron, of Burlington, was found in bed, fully dressed, in a more or less intoxicated condition. A Mason jar of whiskey was found alongside the bed. He was arrested, as was Joseph Wilson, another Burlingtonian, who had a half pint of the liquor in his pocket, preparatory to leaving the house. They were also taken to the jail on Sunday morning.

On Friday afternoon, Detectives Cain, Carabine, Bading, local policeman Norman Gaskill and Commissioner Slaughter, raided the home of Alex. Sirotski, southeast of Hainesport, and here the officers found a five-gallon jug of alleged whiskey, which was nearly filled.

From Hainesport the raiding party went to Burlington, where it visited the home of Mrs. Susan Suydam Conners, known as "Tullytown Sue," who they claim has been one of the main factors in the increased drunkenness around the city of Burlington. She was released on bail, which was placed at $500 by Commissioner Slaughter. Four bottles of alleged whiskey were found in her home, and these were seized as evidence.

County detectives raided two homes in Burlington on Wednesday, but found no liquor. At the home of Stephen Martin, a 10-gallon still and a small quantity of mash were seized, and the owner was held under bail for appearance in court. At the residence of Rosie Debas the raiding party found a large number of empty bottles and jugs, but failed to find any hooch. As they had a sale charge against her, the woman was held under $200 bail by Commissioner William A. Slaughter.

NEW SHERIFF IN OFFICE

A. Engle Haines, Former Sheriff, Appointed Deputy—Gaskill Will Be Day Warden

Joseph B. Fleetwood was sworn in as the sheriff of Burlington county by Judge Wells in the court house at one o'clock Tuesday.

Sheriff Fleetwood appointed his former chief, ex-Sheriff A. Engle Haines, as his deputy. The new sheriff served as deputy under Haines until that official left office, three years ago.

Samuel K. Gaskill, who as the Chief of Police in Mount Holly, is well-known and wel-liked, will be the day turnkey at the jail. He has served in this capacity before, leaving the jail some years ago, and it is felt that he will prove a valuable assistant to Sheriff Fleetwood.

Henry I. Worrell, the re-elected auditor of the county, was also sworn in by Judge Wells, in the presence of various county officials.

First Gunning Victim in Burlington County

The gunning season's first fatal shooting in Burlington county happened near Brown's Mills on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when part of a load of shot from the gun of Samuel Vennell entered the body of Walter E. Earlin, Jr., sixteen years, fatally wounding him. The lad died a few hours later in the Burlington County Hospital in Mount Holly, before a speciaist who had been summoned had arrived.

According to Vennell, who is a resident of Brown's Mills, with three other men he was gunning for duck. While walking through the woods, with his gun under his arm, it was accidentally discharged, and he heard Earlin's cry; rushing to him found that he was seriously shot. The men brought the young man to the hospital, where every effort to save his life was fruitless. He was shot in the left side of the abdomen, and near the heart. County detectives investigated the case and Vennell was held under $500 bail for manslaughter. Coroner Ridgway, of Pemberton, issued a burial certificate.

ANCESTOR OF GARDEN GREENS

Sea Cabbage a Weed That Grows Wild Near Dover and Sometimes Is Eaten.

If you are walking on the chalk cliffs near Dover you may notice a tall weed with pale yellow flowers which begins to bloom in May and continues to do so right through the summer. It grows about two feet high and has leaves of a deep green tinged with yellow and purple.

This homely looking plant is the sea cabbage, and is actually the ancestor of all our garden greens, cabbages, cauliflower, broccoli and the various kales. It is, or was, very common on the Dover cliffs and is sometimes collected and the leaves stripped off and boiled.

Many of the vegetables we cultivate in our gardens come from the coast, where their ancestors still grow wild, says London Tit-Bits. The sea beet grows in many places on the shore, and has green blossoms and thick, wavy leaves. But the thick, red, fleshy root has been obtained only by centuries of cultivation.

Sea kale is purely a maritime plant, and this is proved by the fact that a little salt—not too much—is an excellent fertilizer for the cultivated variety.

Celery grows wild on marshy ground on the shores of salt-water estuaries and asparagus is a native of similar land. Both these, when grown in gardens, can be stimulated with a little salt.

The sea pea is not a common plant, but may be found in places growing on sunny banks a little above high-tide mark. It has butterfly shaped blooms and its pods contain peas which, if small, are quite pleasant to the taste.

Literally So.

"Cheer up!" said the experienced passenger. "Seasickness is terrible while it lasts, but it doesn't kill."

"I don't know about that," moaned his wretched friend. "I feel as if it were all up with me."

BEING ENTERTAINED

By JULIA A. ROBINSON

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

BULAH BANKS was one of the most popular girls in Saxville. She was bright and witty, she enjoyed having a good time, was pretty, too, and she never lacked for invitations.

"How is it you get a chance to go everywhere, Bulah?" asked Hazel, her most intimate friend. "I never get an invitation."

"Because you don't accept any when you have a chance," retorted Bulah. "I heard you tell Harold you didn't care for the theater when he was just on the point of inviting you to go with him. He was awfully disappointed."

"But I don't like the theater. You wouldn't have me let him spend money for what I don't like, would you?"

"But he likes it," protested Bulah. "He would have had an awfully good time, and he never would have known but you were having the time of your life, if you hadn't told him."

"Do you always go when you are invited?" asked Hazel.

"But I'm sort of afraid of them," Hazel confessed.

"You must get over that if you want to have any kind of a good time. Go, even if you don't like a thing. You know I hate the movies, but I'm going tonight with—whom do you suppose—Tom White! Imagine it!"

Tom White was one of Bulah's admirers, but it was not often he had the opportunity to be with her. She was usually going with some other young man, but tonight he was happy. Bulah had promised to go with him to the "movies".

"Yes, Tim," she had said, "I'll go with you. You know how I detest the movies; but I'll go to please you."

To please him! He was elated. She did care for him after all. He would give her the best time of her life. There was a fine show on for tonight. She would be sure to like it. He enjoyed the "movies" above all things, and he expected everyone else to enjoy them as well as he did. He bought the best seats and a box of chocolates. Girls always liked chocolates, and he did himself.

Tom did not pay very much attention to the play that evening. He was sitting next to the girl he most admired. He did not talk much, for he was bashful, only an occasional remark about some impressive scene. During the short intervals when the lights were turned on, he gazed into her face with admiration plainly showing in his.

"Ain't it fine?" he whispered, meaning that it was fine for them to be sitting there side by side.

"Oh, yes," she answered. "You like it, don't you?"

"Sure I like it!"

The last act was long. The hall was very dark. He edged a little closer to her side. He was not thinking of the pictures now. His thoughts were far away to the beautiful home he would make for her some day. Should he ask her tonight the all-important question? He trembled. Would she say yes.

He thought she would. He moved a little closer to her side. He thought she moved toward him just a little. He touched her hand and she did not draw it away. He was happy. He ventured a little closer and she did not draw away from him. He leaned his arm on the back of the seat. It fell very gently on her shoulder, but she did not start or move away from him. He was thrilled with happiness.

The play went on. Pretty girls appeared on the scene, but they had no attraction for Tom. His thoughts were all for the pretty girl so near to him. His courage rose. Yes, he would ask her tonight before they reached her door. He could almost hear the rosy lips say yes. He wished there were no one near and he would ask her now and catch the answer.

The play moved on. People applauded, but he did not know why they cheered. Bulah liked it, that was enough for him. She liked being near him, too; that was bliss. The play did not matter.

The last scene was over. The lights were turned up and, amid the applause, people began to pass out. Tom turned to gaze into the witching brown eyes so near to him and to catch the smile on her lips, for she would smile at him. With a gasp he stared at the girl—there was no answering smile! The eyes did not sparkle—they were closed tight.

Bulah gave a yawn, stretched her arms, opened her eyes.

"I've had such a good nap!" she cooed. "I feel so rested. It isn't so bad coming to the 'movies' if one can sleep through them."

She chatted gayly all the way home, but he was silent. He only wondered and thought girls were queer.

School Lunch Served.

Fifty rural children in Glasgow, Valley county, Mont., are being served with a hot school lunch daily as a direct result of nutrition work conducted by extension agents, according to a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture. Twelve quarts of whole milk are bought daily, and used for soups, cocoa, or a cooked cereal. A woman is employed to do the cooking and to serve one hot dish daily, with the help of the girls. The local woman's club financed the undertaking.

OHIO'S SANDSTONE QUARRIES

The world's largest sandstone quarries are located in Ohio, a few miles to the south of Lake Erie, in the vicinity of the towns of North Amherst and Berea. From these quarries come also vast quantities of our whetstones and grindstones, and there is very much that is of interest with respect to the industry.

One of the quarries has been mined to a depth of 165 feet in places and the distance around it is a mile and a half. Looking into this pit from one edge, one is reminded of the ruins of the Colosseum, for the walls are cut in shalow terraces, which are not unlike the seats of the open-air theater of the ancients.

In cutting a block of sandstone wedges are driven in sidewise at the base of the block, while steam drills bore holes from the top to meet the openings made by the wedges. A machine called a channeler then cuts the block away.

An Abbreviation.

"Bim" was a colored lad who did odd jobs about a suburban neighborhood. People were glad to have him clean cars, cut grass, trim hedges and so on, always finding him efficient and obliging.

Thus as time went on "Bim" became a local character, well known and well liked by all. There was no little conjecture as to how he came by his name. So a self-appointed delegation called on his mother.

"De name done got shortened," she explained.

"What's that, auntie?"

"His full name am Cherubim."

What He Wanted.

He had held stock in the company for a number of years. Once a year he had received a letter giving glowing accounts of the company's prospects, with the usual proxy inclosed for him to sign.

The other day he replied to one of these letters as follows:

Easy to Understand.

"Goodness! We'll miss the opera," she said, impatiently. "We've been waiting a good many minutes for that mother of mine."

"Hours I should say," he replied, somewhat acrimoniously.

"Ours," cried she, rapturously. "Oh, George, this is so sudden!" Then she fell upon his neck.—Standard Times.

THOSE GIRLS

"Tom declares he'll go crazy if I don't marry him."

"Poor boy, then there's no hope for him either way."

One Unhappy Lot.

If you're busy you're happy;
If you're idle you're not;
For when a man's idle,
What an unhappy lot.

Paradoxical though it may seem, many a man who declares his opinion has none.

A man never fully realizes how golden silence is until he tries to buy one of it.

Why is it that the people who have money to burn never carry any insurance on it?

It's the thermometer that enables the weather to get warmer or colder by degrees.

NEAR THE ABSOLUTE ZERO

University Professor Finds Helium Resists Temperature of 458 Fahrenheit.

The bureau of standards, Washington, recently announced that the nearest approach to the absolute zero temperature which has yet been attained has been recently achieved by Prof. H. Kamerlingh Onnes of the University of Leyden, Holland. The record temperature of 272.18 below zero centigrade, or, as the physicists express it, .82 degrees absolute, was reached by the Dutch scientist in an unsuccessful attempt to solidify liquid helium. The temperature is equal to approximately 458 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, says the Scientific American. At this temperature the liquid helium showed absolutely no tendency to solidify, according to the report of Doctor Onnes, who expresses the opinion that helium may remain a liquid even at the absolute zero.

This temperature, 273 degrees below zero, centigrade, denotes the entire absence of heat, or, expressed in more scientific language, the entire absence of atomic or molecular motion.

Every gas has been both liquefied and solidified except helium, which has never been reduced to the solid state in spite of years of effort. Doctor Onnes in his recent attempt, evaporated the liquid helium in the most perfect vacuum attainable, the pressure at the surface of the liquid being only thirteen-thousandths of a millimeter of mercury, or about one-sixty-five-thousandth of an atmosphere. A battery of twelve glass and six iron Langmuir vacuum pumps connected in parallel was used to obtain this result. The previous attempts to solidify helium having produced a temperature of 1.05 degrees absolute, Doctor Onnes undertook his latest attempt with the utmost refinement of technique and he was successful in getting the lowest temperature ever produced by man.

UNEQUIPPED.

The Wellwisher—So you've been out of work for over a year. Too bad! I can give you a good job as night watchman.

Mr. Neversweat — I couldn't take it just now. I ain't got no evening clothes.

DESIGN

by Grace E. Hall

Two men strolled in a wood one morn in May,
The light of sunrise filtered through the trees
In glints of gold, fair promise of the day;
The air was music-laden: birds and bees
And things that crawl and creatures of the wood
Awoke and stirred; the pulse of life was strong—
And one man viewed the scene and called it good,
And caught the harmony of sound and song;
Another questioned why a plan so fair
Should tolerate man's misery everywhere.

They paused to pluck a bud, and tier on tier
The folded petals fitted in the cone;
They halted by the brook where, swift and clear,
The riffles sang in unison of tone;
They felt the spongy sod beneath their feet,
And noted that the grass was patterned, too;
They watched a winged flight, accurate and fleet,
Heard call and answer all the forest through;
And one man walked serene and unafraid—
The other railed at errors men have made.

And he who carped was of a faith accepted,
While he who merely trusted had no creed;
The one had pondered long—and then rejected;
The other grasped a cult to meet his need;
They left the woodland, each with thoughts swift-teeming,
As Dawn, a-blush, swooned in the arms of Day,
The creedless one, his eyes with trust bright beaming:
"I am Design," he said, and turned away.
(Ah, splendid faith that sees one perfect plan!
No better creed is given any man.)

Peggy Sells Hats

By JANE OSBORN

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was the morning after the dance at the Northfield Country club and the usual sort of post-mortem discussion was going on around the late breakfast at the Randolph country home.

"Who was the girl with the squint eyes and angel sleeves—talked baby talk and came with Frank Drew?" Bob Randolph was asking.

"She hasn't squint eyes at all," protested Clara, his sister. "That's Rebecca Yates—loads of money and terribly good family. They have just rented a place out the North road. We think she's charming. But, my dear," went on Clara, addressing her house guest, Olive Dray, "did you see how peeved Maud Landis was? And if she does want to cut out Rebecca Yates and all her millions she really ought to wear something besides that horrible green tulle."

"Say, that's rough," protested Bob. "Maud didn't look peeved at all. I thought she looked great—"

"Oh, you men!" giggled Olive. "You always stick up for the girls with red hair. "That green tulle was a little outre," she conceded. "Still, tulle is smart."

"And who in blazes?" queried the other house guest, George Kelly, "was the little lady with the long black earrings and the bobbed hair? She certainly is some killer. Tried to get a dance with her just for the fun of it, but couldn't get a look in. They say she's promised for three dances ahead. She's—"

"Oh, that's Doris Pater. A widow. But she's frightfully common. She poses terribly. She's in the real estate business. Fancy!"

Bob had acquired enough courage by this time to ask the question that had been uppermost in his mind ever since the evening before.

"By the way," he began, to make it sound casual, "who was the girl, quite young, dark eyes, light hair, who came with Bob Dawson? I just happened to notice her."

"Why, that was Peggy Nelson," said Clara. "Peggy's a dear, though probably you wouldn't find her attractive. Men don't. Peggy's father died, and she had to do something, so she started a hat shop. I think it was so brave of her. You see she couldn't teach, as she'd never been to college, and she had to do something, and we're all boosting her. She calls it the Peggy shop—it's on Walker street, just off Main, and, Olive, dear, if you want to buy any hats or know any one who does, please do give her a chance. We're trying our best to help her, and her hats are really attractive."

"Walker street, off Main," Bob Randolph rehearsed to himself, and then got out of the discussion. He had learned all he wished to know.

The fact was that he had first noticed Peggy Nelson when the dance was half over. His own dances were taken with the girls of his own set, and when he had tried on three occasions to look up some one who would present him to the dark-eyed young blond he had not been able to find her. It was not apparent to Bob that she suffered from any lack of popularity with the men.

The next day Randolph took a walk along Walker street near Main just to locate the Peggy shop. The next day he walked past it twice. Then he stopped and looked in the windows and before the week was out he ventured within the gray curtained doors. This took much courage. Peggy, dressed in a long, clinging frock of gray, was preoccupied with a voluminous dowager seated before a gray dressing table trying on garden hats. An assistant asked him if there was something he wanted and Bob stammered out: "Yes, I want to buy a hat."

"What kind of a hat?" asked the young woman.

"It doesn't make much difference. I want it for—for—for my aunt."

As a matter of fact there was no one for whom Bob could buy hats. His sister was his only woman relative, and obviously she would think him insane if he started buying hats for her. Still, he was eager to help Peggy. In fact his own sister had urged him to—at least at breakfast that day she had urged every one to help her. After a rather confused and confusing dialogue, Bob Randolph bought and paid thirty dollars for a hat. When the young woman asked for the address he gave that of his apartment in town.

Bob Randolph found himself thinking of Peggy Nelson, sometimes as he had seen her at the Country club dance, but oftener as he had seen her in her little hat shop. Keeping a hat shop, it occurred to him, was a charming occupation for a woman, especially a hat shop in soft French grays and flowered chintz like Peggy's. But of course she needed a boost. If he were married he would certainly persuade his wife to buy her hats there, and he would urge her to have many. While thinking thus one day he wandered again toward Walker street, entered the store and stood wondering what to do next, when Peggy herself, with her best saleswomanly manner, came toward him.

"May I do something for you?" she asked sweetly but impersonally.

"I'd like to buy a hat," said Bob Randolph.

"For your wife?" asked Peggy, sweetly.

"Goodness, no. It's for my—my mother."

"Then you would like something a little—shall I say sedate?"

"Not too sedate," he said.

"Here is something very effective," said Peggy, lifting a soft-brimmed velvet with feathers drooping on one side, and deftly trying it on her own golden hair. "See," she said. "Do you like it?"

Bob looked not at the hat but straight at Peggy. "Immensely," he said, and then: "I'll have that and another. Mother really needs some new hats." Peggy tried on several and finally suggested as quite appropriate an impertinent little brown velvet tam-o'-shanter with a long silk tassel, which was bewitching on herself.

Another day Bob went to the Peggy shop and finding Peggy in asked for a hat.

"For your mother?" she asked. "Why don't you bring her with you so she can make her own selections?"

"It's for my sister this time. She couldn't come." And Bob ordered two more hats that time. That made five hat boxes to be stowed away on the shelves of his wardrobe and closets. One evening he got the brown tam-o'-shanter out and posed it on the top of a standard lamp and tried to imagine the face of the brown-eyed blonde Peggy beneath. It was then that his sister made an unannounced visit before he had time even to get the tam-o'-shanter out of the way.

"You've a girl calling on you," announced his sister. "You needn't deny it, because I see her hat." And to save his reputation as a proper bachelor, Bob Randolph had to confess. Then he showed his entire collection of hats.

"You know you said we ought to help her along," he defended; "and of course she doesn't know who I am."

"Doesn't she!" scoffed Clara. "That's one reason I dropped in. I met Peggy the other day, and she told me about it. She asked if I was your only sister, and then said you'd bought a hat for me, and that you'd bought two for your mother and some for an aunt or something. She said she thought it was wonderful to have a brother so considerate, and that it was a pity you weren't married; that a man who would be so considerate of his sister and aunts and mothers and things would make a perfect husband. Isn't that killing? And I told her you'd better get married to have some one to keep you from being foolish."

Bob thought for a moment, then he said: "You seem to know her fairly well. Why don't you invite her out for a week-end? It would do her good. Maybe I'd be able to get down."

Clara agreed. She was already thinking of the pleasure of having Peggy for a sister-in-law instead of some selfish vamp like that Doris Pater. It was at that first visit of Peggy's at the Randolphs that Bob proposed and was promptly accepted.

"And now," said Peggy after they had all laughed over Bob's hat buying escapade, "now may I borrow some of the hats you bought? You know they say a shoemaker's children always go barefoot. Well, I am simply suffering for a new hat."

TOUCH OF PARIS IN DJIBOUTI

A hot wind swept over blistering Aden—over the tomb of Cain—and fairly raised steam from the sea as we sailed down through Bab-el-Mandeb, Gate of Tears, writes Fred Simpich in the Nation's Business. To Djibouti we were bound, on the coast of French Somaliland, where Yankees seldom go. "Jebooty," it's pronounced; its bazaar is among the oddest on earth; its exports include prickly heat, doble itch and sick white men who couldn't stand the climate, one writer says.

A flat, hot huddle of camel thorn and hewn coral huts it is—at its center a few better buildings, a little touch of Paris where exiled Frenchmen impart the atmosphere of the boulevards—with a cafe chantant and beaucoup cognac.

To us it was sad enough—the ring-nosed Somali bayadera dancers, the half-caste Greek girls in frowsy tinsel and perspiration, croaking their tiresome songs and hopping languidly about the tawdry stage. But the French traders and soldiers—so long away from Paris—seemed to like it, as they sipped their drinks and fraternized at tiny tables.

Ivory tusks, leopard skins, bales of ostrich feathers, various odd jungle and desert products were piled high in the native shops. While we were there a camel caravan came in from up country bringing gum and goat skins for shipment to America. There was myrrh, too, and tusks, and old camel bones for Europe. Grunting, hot and smelly, the tired camels lay down in the scant shade of the thorny mimosas to be unloaded. Near by their return cargo was stacked up; big bales of Yankee piece goods. Every desert Samoli wears a winding sheet-like garment wrapped loosely about his black, glistening body.

"That fellow who's bowling," said John, "is a great chap. He'll be our best man in a week or two."

There recently appeared on the river at Hong Kong, much to the alarm of shipowners and their crews, a woman pirate, who has already taken a heavy toll of loot from vessels. Under her are a score or more Chinese brigands, who, although they are cutthroats and robbers, obey her implicitly.

Winter's Exquisite Hats

Enticing Millinery

Bury Twig to Cure Ague.

It is a popular superstition in Denmark that if one is suffering from toothache or ague, another person can charm it away by gathering an elder twig and burying it. The burial place must, of course, be kept secret from the sufferer.

URGES GALLERY OF REPLICAS

Sir Henry Howorth Suggests One for Copies of Paintings by Old Masters.

In an interesting letter recently published Sir Henry Howorth suggested it would be well to form a gallery of replicas, or old copies of paintings by the old masters.

In his own collection he has three such pictures—a replica of an old copy of the Duke of Grafton's celebrated portrait, of Carondolet, once attributed to Raphael, but now thought to be by Sebastiano Del Piombo; a copy by Ferdinand Bol of the Rabbi, by Rembrandt, at Hampton court; and a copy, believed to be by Dosso Dossi, of his master, Ferrara.

Such pictures, though two of them would not sell for large sums as prices now go, are of great interest and value, says a writer in the London Times. They have what no other form of reproduction can give—the living touch of a master, who, even if not the greatest, was still a master; and the older they are the more likely are they to be faithful to the original, both in the actual material (which counts for much) and in the style of painting. It would be foolish to decry the service rendered by photography and process reproduction.

Only Sir Robert Witt could tell how frequent is the recourse of students and of artists to his great collection of photographs; and of recent years the improvements in color printing have been so great that more than one publisher in England and abroad is able to furnish what can be implicitly trusted as exact reproductions of famous pictures, in which the very brushwork can be minutely discerned. For all purposes of study these are sufficient. The study which they serve is not properly aesthetic.

Telling an Alligator's Age.

The width of an alligator's nose between his eye teeth is proper place for determining the reptile's age, according to the experts on such subjects. After the reptile is ten feet long the nose widens one-quarter of an inch for each 50 years the alligator lives. Ocklawaha, the largest alligator in captivity, weighs 1,400 pounds and is 13½ feet long. He is estimated to be several hundred years old.

CHICAGO DRAINAGE CANAL

The Chicago Drainage Canal ranks well to the fore among the great engineering feats of modern times.

The purpose of its construction was twofold. Primarily to purify Chicago's supply of drinking water, which is obtained from Lake Michigan, by reversing the flow of the Chicago river so that the sewage from the city, instead of being dumped into the lake, would be carried off into the Des Plaines river which in turn empties into the Illinois river. Ultimately, to provide a ship canal from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico.

Commenced in September, 1892, and formally opened in January, 1900, this so-called canal is approximately forty miles in length, has a minimum depth of twenty-two feet, varies in width from 160 to 300 feet at the top, and has a capacity of about 360,000 cubic feet of water per minute.

Four major operations were involved in this huge task. First, the Chicago river had to be both widened and deepened for more than five miles; next the digging of a canal for twenty-eight miles; then the river had to be diverted from the old to the new channel and finally the building of a tall-race and a new channel for [illegible] miles.

Grave fears were entertained by many that the cities past which this diverted sewage must flow and which obtained their supplies of drinking water from this stream would be visited by an epidemic of water-borne diseases, particularly typhoid. Again the question as to whether the taking of sufficient water from Lake Michigan to flush the canal would adversely affect the interests of the states and cities bordering on the lake, through the lowering of the surface of the water in the lake, and in turn interfere with the navigable capacity of the rivers which flow into the lake, was long and seriously discussed.

But scientific examination and investigation failed to substantiate the threatened dangers from disease; the imagined damage to the navigation interests of the Lake Michigan region failed to materialize.

That Chicago has benefited immeasurably from a sanitary standpoint there is not the question of a doubt, according to the reports of the health department. When the locks in the Des Plaines and Illinois rivers, which connect the canal with the Mississippi river are increased in size and the fixed bridges which span the canal in the Chicago zone are transformed to swinging or lift bridges, it is expected that barges and light-draft river craft will move in large numbers from Chicago, through this man-made channel, to New Orleans.

HUGE POWER OF LIGHTNING

Single Flash During Thunderstorm Is Greater Than Anything Produced by Man.

When a great storm is raging, with flashes of lightning illuminating the sky and thunder crashes deafening our ears, we realize something of the stupendous powers of electricity.

If a cat's back is rubbed in the dark during hot, dry weather, sparks will often fly from it. They are perfectly harmless, though they are identical with lightning flashes, and the crackling that accompanies them is thunder on a small scale.

In a thunderstorm the earth represents your hand and the clouds are the cat's back. The pressure that causes a flash of lightning may be as much as 1,000,000,000 volts—that is, 5,000,000 times greater than that which is used for household lighting.

Could we collect and harness the power set free by a single flash of lightning, we should have at our disposal a force greater than anything that can be produced by man.

In a famous scientist's laboratory the experiment was tried of producing a million-volt spark. It leaped a ten-foot gap with a noise like the explosion of a bomb and came near to wrecking the entire building. This is the highest pressure that has so far been produced artificially.

Most of the lightning in a thunderstorm does not come near the earth, but flashes from cloud to cloud. Occasionally a fork tongue leaps from cloud to earth, and then anything in its path is destroyed.—London Tit-Bits.

New Cadmium-Gallium Lamp.

The production of light sources from which pure monochromatic light of various wave lengths and great intensity may be obtained is from a practical viewpoint of great importance in the field of optics.

During the past month, the bureau of standards has constructed an enclosed quartz vacuum lamp using an alloy of gallium and zinc, similar in many respects to the cadmium-gallium lamp previously designed. The design of the new lamp has been so perfected that the lamp operates quite satisfactorily with very little flickering, giving several intense lines, one red and several blue and green.

Preliminary experiments have been made in connection with the production of a thallium lamp, but the results so far have not been entirely satisfactory owing to the high temperature at which it is necessary to run the lamp to prevent the thallium from depositing on the walls of the light space, thus covering up the arc. —Scientific American.

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

CONTRAST THESE TWO HEADS

Fundamental character reading is founded on body construction, and the leading chemicals in that body.

The square-headed man has large bones. Bones are the strongest element of the body. They are made of calcium, and the square-headed man will be very fond of foods such as milk, cottage cheese, figs, etc., in which there is much calcium. Calcium gives strength of mind and continuity of thought, and as a result the square-headed man invents, is able in science and heavy work. Engineering, physical science and mechanics interest him. He is never in a rush, and he does everything with mathematical accuracy.

Contrast him with the round-headed man, large from ear to ear. He has a low top head where the reasoning faculties are located. He belongs to the vital temperament, where flesh predominates over bones and muscles, and he will be found eating foods which contain carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen and oxygen. The vital man is the consumer—not the producer. Flesh-making foods he eats do not produce long continued thought. He makes a good hotel keeper, butcher and dealer in foods and drinks because his interest lies along those lines. Vital temperament people are good natured, mirthful, lovers of pleasure and entertainment.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 18

OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST A MISSIONARY

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 9:35-38; Luke 8:1-3; John 3:16-17

GOLDEN TEXT—"God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Preaching in City and Country.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus a Missionary.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ's Missionary Zeal.

I. The Missionary Motive (Matt. 9:35-38.

As Jesus saw the multitude His compassion was aroused. Their pitiful condition moved Him to take steps to provide missionaries. The result of this was the sending forth of the Twelve. Jesus saw the multitude as:

1. Shepherdless Sheep (v. 36). The people were in need of a protector, provider and guide, just as sheep are of a shepherd. They were faint and scattered—distressed, cast down and hopeless. What a picture of the needy world today! The world is hungry but knows not how to have this hunger satisfied. They know not which way to turn in their confusion and perplexity. They are in need of that which alone the Good Shepherd can supply.

2. Grain Ready for Harvest (v. 37). He told the disciples that the grain was ripe, ready for the harvest, and that unless laborers were secured the harvest would be lost. This is still a picture of the world. The laborers are still few. It is the Lord's harvest that is ready to be gathered. No wonder He was moved with compassion! Those who have eyes to see and hearts to feel are still moved with compassion as they see the world ready to be gathered into Christ's fold but no one to perform the labor. The means for securing laborers for the harvest is prayer. He urged the disciples to pray that the Lord would send forth laborers.

II. Classes of Missionaries (Luke 8:1-3).

Three classes are here enumerated:

1. Jesus Himself (v. 1). He is the grand and supreme missionary. All receive their example and power from Him. He left all and gave all in this great enterprise.

2. The Twelve (v. 1). Christ called them and sent them forth. They were His representatives and were clothed with His power. Missionaries should be chosen and commissioned by the Lord himself. In the evangelization of the world there will always be need of the group of men and women devoted exclusively to that work.

3. Certain Women (vv. 2, 3). Christian women can most effectively do their part in preaching the gospel by ministering to the workers. All who have experienced the saving grace of God desire to have a part in sending the gospel to others that they too might be saved. The church is greatly indebted to the work of consecrated women.

III. The Missionary Message (John 3:16, 17).

The salvation which is offered to the lost world was accomplished through the sacrificial death of Christ. Out of a heart of love God gave His own son to die. The figure portraying the method of the Cross and salvation is that of the brazen serpent. The outstanding teaching as suggested by Dr. Charles R. Erdman is as follows:

"1. That men are, like the Israelites of old, serpent-bitten; but the deadly poison is the sting of sin.

"2. God has provided a remedy in the person of His Son; in His crucifixion we see sin vanquished, as the uplifted serpent pictured the death of the destroyer; yet as the uplifted serpent was not real but one of brass, so Christ was not really a partaker of sin but only made in the likeness of sinful flesh.

"3. As it was necessary for the dying Israelites to accept God's provision, and with submission and faith to look upon the brazen serpent, so it is necessary for us to look in repentance and faith to the crucified Savior and to commit ourselves to God as He is graciously revealed in Jesus Christ. If we refuse to accept Christ we perish, but faith results in eternal life.

"4. This provision is made by the love of God and is freely offered to everyone who believes. 'For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'"

His Presence.

When we have broken our god of tradition, and ceased from our god of rhetoric, then may God fire the heart with His presence.—Emerson.

God's Way.

God's way of forgiving is thorough and hearty—both to forgive and to forget; and if thine be not so, thou hast no portion of His.—Leighton.

Heart and Home.

Without hearts there is no home.—Byron.

SAYS RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS PAIN IN FEW MINUTES

Rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, strains, sprains, aching joints. When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into pain and congestion relief comes at once.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the sore spot is warmed through and through and the torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on every package.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Ouch! Rub Backache, Stiffness, Lumbago

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

A Card of Character

A Card is much like a man, after all! The more character, the more power he has. The more character in your card, the more power it has.

The Peerless Patent Book-form Card

has more character than any card you have ever heard of before! It can be beautifully engraved, or it can be neatly printed, as the user desires. It is necessarily always clean, because of the binding in book form with tissue paper between each card, and the book form also keeps it from becoming wrinkled or crumpled. Besides it is always "right there" when you need it.

Can you think of more character for a card?

SELECTIVITY AND HOW ATTAINED

By ARMSTRONG PERRY

One of the first words a beginner hears, when he starts to shop around, is "selectivity."

He may be attracted by the simplicity and price of a cabinet on which are only two or three knobs to adjust, and inquire if it will bring in the concerts and lectures from distant stations. He is told that it will, but that the cabinet with five or six knobs on it, which costs 50 or 100 per cent more, has greater selectivity.

If he is inquisitive, he asks why the more complicated tuner is better than the simpler one. The dealer explains that the simpler ones are single-circuit tuners and that a single-circuit, using fewer inductance coils, condensers and other parts than a two or three-circuit tuner, cannot be tuned as sharply as the one using more parts.

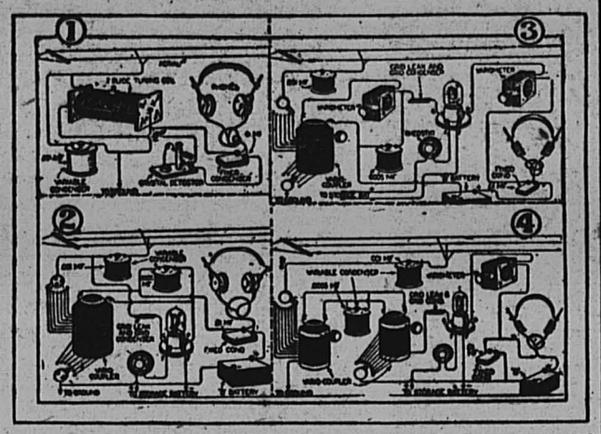
Then perhaps he decides to do some reading on the subject. If he chances to buy a copy of the official organ of the technical radio amateurs' organization, he quickly discovers from the tenor of the intimate chat which it contains that, if he uses a single-circuit tuner, he is unfit to associate with the radio elite; he is as unwelcome as a discharge of static; he has no right to call himself an amateur, though all dictionaries seem to grant him that privilege. Why?

There is good cause for this. A single-circuit tuner using electron tubes (any form of detector that lights up when in operation) transmits radio waves at the same time it is receiving them and interferes with the reception of others in the same neighborhood.

Selectivity means the ability to pick out the station you want to hear; to receive one station without being bothered by others. It can be obtained only at the expense of high-class engineering, and the use of many parts. It costs money to build a selective set. Whether it is worth it or not depends upon the point of view.

The person of unselective temperament enjoys having a lot of things going on at the same time. He will get enjoyment and profit out of a radio receiver that will not narrow itself down to a single station. The higher grade amateur, on the other hand, wants to be able to bring in the weakest, most distant station, and he is impatient over the slightest interference. So it is up to the beginner to decide just what he will expect of the receiving set he wants.

Some of the circuits and general makeup of selective receiving sets are illustrated here. Figure 1 shows a fairly selective tuner for use with a crystal detector. Greater selectivity is obtained by shunting the tuning coil with a 43-plate variable condenser. Figure 2 shows a single-circuit tuner hookup that will give fair selectivity, particularly if the two variable condensers shown are used. A vernier will assist greatly if used in connection with the variable condenser shunted across the tickler. Figure 3 shows how to obtain greater selectivity than can be had from the set shown in Figure 2. Two variometers may be added as shown. The .0005 variable condenser is not absolutely necessary, but is advantageous for sharp tuning. Figure 4 shows how a super-selective tuner may be made by connecting two vario-couplers and a variometer. This set allows the operator to tune out unwanted signals completely, and bring in those desired with a maximum volume.



Selectivity is a great principle. It applies not only to radio but to all human relationships. We are all different and we select different things. That is fundamental and is not a reason for the radio amateur to look down with contempt upon the beginner who chooses to buy a single-circuit tuner nor for the user of the aforesaid tuner to look down upon the man who likes to specialize on long-distance messages. It is unfortunate for the boy who has shown that he has no special aptitude in technical pastimes to follow the lead of the technical radio amateur, for he will only make a nuisance of himself and accomplish nothing. It is equally unfortunate for folks who merely listen-in with a radio set for the sake of amusement to complain of a boy who has earned his money for the parts, built his radio set, and who, if he is encouraged, may build upon the foundation laid by such men as Hertz, Marconi, Fleming, DeForest, Armstrong, Dubilier, Sarnoff, Weagant, Pupin and Steinmetz, apparatus and organizations that will advance civilization a hundred years inside of a decade.

Selectivity, if it is to be intelligently accomplished, must depend upon a knowledge of the things from which the selection is made. The beginner who selects a radio receiver, no matter how simple, so long as it will bring in something, and who listens carefully and thoughtfully day after day with a view to learning something and making progress, may become either a technical radio amateur or merely one of the majority who use radio with increasing efficiency to bring to their home music, lectures, sermons and other food for the mind and soul. In either case, if he is fair-minded and generous, he will never lack a sympathetic understanding of the other amateur's ambitions and problems.

Ghost of Cock Lane.

The name "Cock Lane Ghost" is given to a famous hoax perpetrated in London in 1762 by one William Parsons, his wife and daughter, at their house, 33 Cock lane.

According to the account a luminous figure resembling one Mrs. Kemt, a deceased woman who once resided in the house, was seen, while certain knockings and scratchings were heard every night in the room formerly occupied by her. Suspicions were aroused that Mr. Kemt had murdered his wife and the suspicions were confirmed by the ghost by customary ghostly rappings.

The duke of York, Doctor Johnson, Horace Walpole and others visited the house and investigated the affair. Examination proved it to be a conspiracy on the part of Parsons and his wife for the purpose of extorting money from Kemt. They were tried for imposture and defamation of character and condemned to the pillory and imprisonment.

Black Cat Turns White.

In New South Wales is a white cat that was black until it had its foot caught in a rabbit trap. The foot was almost severed but in four or five weeks it healed up again. The third day after the mishap the animal's fur commenced to change color. The changing process started on its dial, two days later it had reached the shoulders, and from that on it gradually extended until Thomas was all frosted, even to the tip of the tail. The owner wants to know whether this phenomenon was the result of physical hurt or sheer terror when the unknown demon so relentlessly gripped him.

BRAVE DEFENSE

Because she had made him wear short socks instead of stockings the clergyman's wife was apprehensive when her small son, Bobby, returned from his first day at public school. When he had gone to kindergarten the boys had made fun of his abbreviated leg covering, and he had cried bitterly after his first school day.

"Did the boys make fun of your socks?" asked his mother anxiously as Bobby swung through the gate.

"Tug Johnson did."

"What did my brave boy say?"

"I said, 'You got on stockings like your mother wears, and I am wearing socks like my dad!'"

Row.

His wife asked him to take her for a row. So he hired a boat and propelled it laboriously into the middle of the lake. In this location she began to lecture him on his shortcomings. He stood it for a while and then said: "Cut it out. I came for a row, not a row."

BUSSES ROUT CARS

Good Roads Throughout the Country May Threaten the Electric Car's Existence.

A town in Vermont has now abandoned its trolley line and is to substitute busses. It is announced that when the change goes into effect the fare will be raised from 8 cents to 10. If the street railway company had put up the price no one would have stood for it, we presume. A street-car fare is one thing, a bus fare another. Such is our unanalytical psychology.

Few opportunities are offered for getting more for your money than a ride on a street car, no matter what the rate charged. Yet trolley companies here and there are being driven to the wall or out of business because people "kick" at a legitimate fare, while they are willing to pay more for perhaps inferior, at least irregular service.

Picture the busses in this Vermont town getting proprietor, clerks and patrons down to the store on Main street on the morning after heavy snowfall. They will be good snow buckers if they do it, for they won't have any plowed-out trolley tracks to run in. This promises to be an interesting experiment on this account. Where busses heretofore have been tried either they have not operated where they had to contend with heavy snow or they have run in the tracks of the street railways.

The motor bus is multiplying in New York and in this state would probably have sent the Connecticut company's rails and cars to the junkman had not the public utilities commission intervened.

In the city of London there are no street car lines. Motor busses apparently serve the city and environs dependably. Success of the motor bus in this country will in the end depend on the quality of service rendered. Hereabouts the trolley seems to have certain advantages, in regularity, dependability, cost and upbuilding of suburban territory which it would be a calamity to lose. It was predicted thirty-five years ago, when the trolley was in its infancy, that a superior method of transportation would soon supplant it. The underground cable and various other devices have had their day and disappeared, but the trolley still stops to take us abroad. It has been a faithful servant.

Street improvement, of course, makes the motor bus a possible competitor. Little advantage apparently inheres today in steel rails, as a well surfaced road provides for rubber-tired vehicles good enough traction. Government, state and town appropriation of hundreds of millions yearly for good roads have created a condition that may threaten the trolley's existence. If that time comes there will have to be a lot of new lawmaking.—Hartford (Conn.) Times.

United States Abounds in Gems.

Practically every known gem is to be found somewhere in the United States. Diamonds are to be found in Arkansas, North Carolina, Kentucky, Georgia, Ohio, Wisconsin, Colorado and California. Montana leads in the production of sapphires and also of rubies, while others of the same family, especially the true emerald, which is often more valuable than diamonds of equal size, is found in North Carolina and New Mexico. While the largest and richest of the blue variety of topaz comes from Russia, Colorado has produced a marvelous reddish-brown stone that cannot be excelled, while the clear varieties from New England and Utah are as lovely as a diamond. Many lands have given garnets, but the finest are from New Mexico. Nevada's opals have become important in the commercial world. Fresh-water pearls come from the mussel and are found in the rivers of Arkansas, Indiana and Tennessee.—Detroit News.

17,450 Words on Postcard.

A bank cashier of Nimes, France, believes he has beaten the world's record for postal card correspondence. On the back of an ordinary postcard he has succeeded in writing 208 lines, containing 17,450 words, equivalent to the normal amount of matter on two pages of a newspaper. The previous record, M. Prout believes, has not more than 12,500 words.

So microscopic is M. Prout's writing that few were convinced it was not a photographic reduction of a larger manuscript. Finally all doubts were set at rest when the Institute Pasteur, to which the card was sent, certified, after close examination under a microscope, that the work had actually been done with a pen.—Milwaukee Journal.

(Speaking through the telephone): My friend Smith will dine with us this evening. Now listen and hear how distinctly her reply will come back."

Mrs. Brown's reply came back with startling distinctness: "Ask your friend Smith if he thinks we keep a hotel."

C. OF C. URGES CARE OF TREES

Need of Shade Commission in Palmyra Emphasized at Meeting

The Palmyra Chamber of Commerce at its meeting Tuesday evening had a long and serious discussion of the need of an efficient shade tree commission.

Riverton was pointed to as a town that had a real shade tree commission which was accomplishing the work it was designed for. That borough's commission has sufficient power to get results, removing such trees as are necessary, trimming others and planting new ones where required.

Meantime Palmyra's trees, which long have been one of the chief assets to the beauty of the town, were said to have no thorough and organized care, and the fear was expressed that the town would wake up some time in the future to the sad fact that its well shaded avenues were no more.

An invitation was received from the Palmyra Parent-Teacher Association inviting the members of the Chamber to a Father's Night meeting next Tuesday evening at which time a noted speaker will discuss "Bringing Up Father." The Chamber accepted the invitation and notices will be sent all the members urging their attendance.

A letter also was received from the State Chamber of Commerce requesting the support of the Palmyra body in urging the rescinding of the court decision nullifying the Nutley zoning law. Secretary Rustic, in conjunction with President Wilbur F. Crane, already had written Judge Katzenbach at Trenton expressing Palmyra's interest in the matter, inasmuch as a zoning law is contemplated here. Further steps will be taken to assist the State Chamber.

The need of a comfort station at the approach to the ferry also was discussed.

The committee appointed to investigate the old Methodist cemetery reported considerable work had been done recently by the cemetery authorities to make the graveyard more presentable. The Chamber expressed its appreciation of this and hoped the good work would continue. Further inquiry also will be made into the questiog of having the cemetery removed.

PALMYRA CONTINUES TO WIN

Haddon Heights Defeated by 21-6; Play at Burlington Friday

Palmyra High's gridiron warriors are still on the winning warpath. Last Friday afternoon, at the Field Club Park, the local boys turned in their seventh consecutive victory by defeating Haddon Heights by a score of 21 to 6.

The initial local touchdown came in the first quarter. Palmyra took the ball up the field from its 20-yard line with straight football tactics. Graham then took the ball over with a line plunge. Jimmie Burr, the brilliant right end, booted the ball over the bar for the extra point.

Wood, another member of Palmyra's aggressive backfield, tallied in the second period. He crossed the line after the local aggregation had taken the ball from Haddon Heights on downs. Again Burr made good with the kick and the score stood 14 to 0 in favor of the Burlington County champs.

Boal, the ever-starring and heady quarter, crossed the line for the last time. He received a beautiful pass from Kersey on the 10-yard line and proceeded, in his usual manner to gain the remaining 10 yards between himself and the goal, very easily. This was done in the third session. Burr repeated his little act.

The visitors made their lone touchdown in the third period. This came after a 35-yard gain had been made, due to some confusion. The play had been started on Palmyra's 36-yard line, a Palmyra man was off side but the whistle was not blown until the play had been started, so the Haddon Heights man continued to run the ball until he was overtaken and downed by Boal, within one yard of the line. Practically every man on the Palmyra team stopped playing when the whistle was blown, but Boal continued and downed the man, thus saving a touchdown. Haddon Heights had the preference of either taking the 5-yard penalty, or its gain. The gain, of course, was taken. Palmyra then held its opponents on the 1-yard line for three downs, but Haddon Heights succeeded in carrying the ball over on the last down. The kick for the extra point failed.

Neither team scored in the last period. Palmyra played the same type of game which has made it possible for it to go through the season undefeated and win the Burlington County championship.

Haddon Heights was not a consistent ground gainer. The only play the visitors used with success was the aerial attack. In the last period they used this to a good advantage and made a steady march down the field for 75 yards, but were stopped by the strong home team before a touchdown, which looked almost a certainty, was made.

Woodbury, which up to last week, was the only team besides Palmyra undefeated, lost to Atlantic City, last Saturday. This eliminates that team from the South Jersey race for the title and also gives Palmyra an opportunity to challenge the shore boys. Manager Paul Burr has not challenged the A. C. aggregation, but did write early in the week and ask for a game. He made a very substantial offer for the Woodbury victors who come to Palmyra, but it is very doubtful whether that can be done.

This Friday afternoon the boys travel to Burlington for a return game. They are confident of winning again, although the Burlington boys will fight hard, as they are out for revenge. A defeat by Burington at this time would probably make the County title, now held by Palmyra, rather doubtful. A large crowd is expected to attend the game. Two special trolley cars will leave Palmyra at 2.30. The High School has promised to go 100% strong.

William H. Rocap, sports editor, Public Ledger, addressed the student body before the game. He was introduced by Prof. Griffith, who also gave a stirring talk on sports. Mr. Rocap's talk, which was on athletics, was most interesting and exceedingly humorous. Frank A. Mathews, Sr., a personal friend of Mr. Rocap, also made a short talk. The big sports writer also attended the game as the guest of the school and wrote the following article which appeared in Sunday's Public Ledger:

By William H. Rocap
Sports Editor Public Ledger

It has been our good fortune to witness many school football games in the last decade, and we have watched with great interest the evolution of the sport. We were honored with an invitation to see the Palmyra-Haddon Heights game on Friday, at Palmyra. The home team continued its unbroken record of victories for the present season. It was not the victory or the defeat which impressed us. It was the manner in which the game was played. Straight football, enough forward passes to please the most critical and hard, fierce tackling, end runs and vigorous line plays. Not one player was hurt. No disqualifications. A penalty now and then, merited by an overzealous player being offside. A cleanly played game, with victory going to the better team.

Was An Ideal Game

What a treat it was to witness the twenty-two schoolboys trained to the minute physicaly and mentally in the highest ideals of the game. Coach Ivory, of Palmyra, seemed to have his boys right on edge. The second string seemed to be fully as capable as the first. It appeared to us to be an aggregation of stars, each boy being trained to play his position for all it was worth. They seemed to possess a great variety of plays, greater than the ordinary schoolboy team. The signals were given and executed with military-like precision. At the conclusion of the game we were free to admit that we had seen one of the best school football teams for its weight in this section of the country.

Some of the Real Stars

In any athletic contest which depends on rhytemical teamwork to insure success one or more players usually stand out above the others. Fullback Stackhouse proved himself to be a tearing line plunger and a consistent ground gainer when given the ball. In fact, the entire backfield—Richman, Graham and the alert-minded quarterback, Boal—could be depended on to find holes in the Haddon Heights defense on advancing the ball. The line did its share on interference and tackling. The team was inspired to play its best, as the co-eds fringed one side of the field and, led by Miss Peg Tomes, were incessant in the cheering.

Prior to the game the student body massed in the school auditorium and listened to some sports anecdotes related by the writer and Frank Mathews, the dean of Palmyra recreation. He reminded the boys that the initials of Haddon Heights suggested: "Hit 'em Hard," and that was what he expected them to do. They were reminded of Armistice Day and the fifty-eight sent overseas as the school's contribution and the one golden star emblazoned on the club banner.

GAME ENDS WITH 0-0 TIE

P. H. S. Hockey Girls Hold Strong Temple College Team Scoreless

The Palmyra High hockey team played one of its hardest games of the season when it met the Temple College second 'varsity eleven Monday afternoon at The Field Club park.

As a whole, the Palmyra lassies played a better game than did the visitors, but were not able to score. The game ended in a 0-0 tie. The fair local maids kept the ball in their opponents' territory but were not successful in putting it through the enemies' ever-holding defense, which was its strongest asset. Twice Palmyra came very close to scoring. Once Polly Dickinson took the pill the full length of the field, and then was unable to tally. Another time the ball did go through, but a foul was called, so therefore did not count.

The Quaker City girls outweighted the Palmyra representatives. This was expected, for it is quite natural that the college girls should be heavier and more developed than high school girls. The local eleven deserves great credit for such a performance.

Miss Margaret Giberson, the regular centre, will be out of the game for the remainder of the season, due to injuries received in the Haddonfield game.

FATHER'S NIGHT

Dr. Clarence Bawden, of Philadelphia, Will Address P. T. A. Meeting Next Tuesday on "Bringing Up Father."

A special program has been arranged for the Father's Night, by the Palmyra Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday evening, November 20, at the Delaware Avenue grammar school auditorium.

Dr. Clarence Bawden, of Philadelphia, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Bringing Up Father." All Fathers are urged to attend. Apparently the speaker will have many suggestions on how Father should be "brought up," so therefore it is his duty to be present and make the best of the plans which will be laid in regard to him. Harry Curry will be in charge of the meeting.

Huff-Eisley

A quiet wedding took place last Wednesday afternoon, November 7th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Eisley, 409 Morgan avenue, when their daughter, Winifred, became the bride of Mr. Albert E. Huff, of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George T. Alrich, of Palmyra, uncle of the bride.

The happy couple will reside in Philadelphia.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Abram B. Wilson

Mrs. Kathryn T. Wilson, wife of Abram B. Wilson, died at her home, 306 Delaware avenue, last Friday morning at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Wilson had been in poor health for two years and became critically ill a month ago. The family moved from Philadelphia to Palmyra but a few weeks previous in the hope that the change would benefit her health.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning, with solemn requiem mass at the Sacred Heart Church and interment at Holy Sepulchre cemetery in Philadelphia, Funeral Director Frank A. Snover in charge.

Mrs. Maggie Sadler

Mrs. Maggie Sadler, colored, of Cinnaminson township, died at her home last Saturday, in her forty-second year.

Funeral services were held in the Wrightsville Church 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Interment was made in the church cemetery with Funeral Director Frank A. Snover in charge.

"Brother" Wishes for Fellowship

Editor The New Era:

It is encouraging to see "G.B.S." writing of the "brotherhood of mankind" in your last issue.

"In this century of illumination hearts are inclined toward amity and fellowship and minds are thoughtful upon the unification of mankind. This is an emanation of the Universal Consciousness today, which clearly indicates the dawn of a great unity.

"All humankind share in common the intellectual and spiritual faculties of a created endowment. All are equally subject to the various exigencies of human life, and are similarly employed in acquiring the means of earthly livelihood. In every respect from the viewpoint of creation all stand upon the same footing—all have the same requirements—all are seeking the happiness of comfort of earthly conditions; that is to say, the things they share in common are numerous and manifest. This very sharing or partnership in matters intellectual and spiritual is a valid basis for the unification of mankind."

If we realize individually that we have much in common with our neighbor, it will help brotherhood to grow until we can know the whole world as brothers and neighbors.

ROLL CALL UNDER WAY!

Seventh Annual Red Cross Drive to Last Until Thanksgiving Day. All Urged to Support Cause.

The following foreword has been issued from headquarters for the seventh annual roll call of the Red Cross, which began on Armistice Day and will continue until Thanksgiving Day.

"In the five Red Cross Roll Calls that have succeeded the signing of the Armistice the American people have registered their conviction that their Red Cross should be maintained on a membership scale commensurate with the tremendous tasks imposed upon it by charter mandate from the Federal Government. These tasks, always onerous, and subject without warning to expansion without limit, call for the re-enrollment annually of those who during the war enlisted under the banner of the Red Cross.

"What better proof that the Red Cross must be ready to take its place as comforter than is found in just three items that may be lifted out of the history of its last fiscal year?

"In our own country disaster followed disaster, calling for hundreds of thousands in money and personnel trained the Red Cross way. Disaster has no advance agent. No locality is immune. Adequate provision to meet the unexpected is an investment the value of which has been attested in hundreds of communities—both those which were prepared when disaster struck and those which wished they had been.

"Merely to be prepared for disaster is sufficient reason for a Roll Call in any Chapter.

"Again, enduring Red Cross duty to those for whom the war is not over—the ex-service man and his family—called during the last year for about $8,0000,000, of which $3,000,000 was spent out of funds at National Headquarters. This MUST go on.

"Abroad, a third illustration—the relief of hundreds of thousands made helpless by the Turkish military drive, drew on Red Cross resources for nearly $3,000,000. The situation in Greece was a disaster of the first magnitude, requiring the emergent service which only the American Red Cross was prepared to give and which the world looked to it to give. The emergent phases of the situation met, the Red Cross withdrew.

"Ignoring all its other work during the year, who will undertake to assess the loss to mankind had the Red Cross NOT been prepared to do its work in the three situations cited above?"

Asbury

J. Porter Ashbrook, a leader in the YMCA, formerly of Bridgeboro, now living at Lumberton, was a visitor at the home of Thornton Southwick on Tuesday.

The evening services at the Asbury Church last week were very helpful. The following were some of the speakers: Joseph Southwick, Jr., Geo. Hess, Jr., Rev. George Thompson, Rev. Clarence Perry, Rev. F. E. Tansley. On Sunday morning Rev. F. E. Tansley had charge and in the evening, Rev. Clarence Perry had for his subject, "The Open Door." Rev. George Thompson, of Riverside, formerly of Gottsburg, Md., gave us a very helpful talk on Monday evening. His subject was "God is no respector of persons." Rev. Kenneth Stevens, of Rancocas, pastor of the Methodist Church at Delair, was also present.

Mr. and Mrs .Melvin Underhill and son, Melvin, of Belmar, N. J., were visiting Mrs. Albert Giberson last week. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. Giberson and son, Franklin, motored to Marlton to attend the funeral of Henry Wills, of Toms River.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Leuallen and two sons were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Giberson on Sunday.

Mrs. Frances F. Sievers and son, Eugene, were visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Southwick, on Sunday.

Clayton Coles visited his daughter Mrs. John Daughtery, of Camden, on Monday evening.

Mrs. E. M. Kinsey, of Riverton, and her niece, Miss Bettie Hurst, of Brooklyn, went to Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Kinsey's cousin. From there they went to Brooklyn and spent the night with her sister, Mrs. Hurst, returning to her home on Wednesday evening.

Camp 23

An evening of enjoyment is promised the members and their ladies who will attend the first dance given for some time by the Camp. It will be recalled that soon after the Armistice the camp held a series of dances which enlisted the interest and added to the pleasure of a number who fancy the art graceful.

A good orchestra has been secured and a live committee will give courteous and careful attention to their guests. Therefore be with us at 8 p. m. Saturday, November 24th.

LEGION BANQUET WELL ATTENDED

State and County Officers Attend Fifth Annual Gathering

With the passing of the years the annual banquets of Post Frederick M. Rodgers No. 156, American Legion, became more interesting.

In the Riverton Country Club on Saturday evening last the Post held its fifth annual banquet with approximately 100 members and guests present with Commander Warren Nethercott acting as toastmaster.

The club room presented a very attractive appearance and served as a very comfortable and appropriate place for such an event, giving that touch of hominess which tends to inspire that feeling of closer relationship between its members.

After participating in an excellently prepared menu, profound interest upon the part of everyone present was manifested in the addresses that followed.

Past State Commander Bruce Conlin, although limited by time, made none the less impression by his few remarks in which he commended Post Rodgers for its leadership in the State.

Ralph S. Rivers, representing the citizens' committee of Palmyra, who have recently turned over $1400 toward the purchase of their new home, paid a tribute to the Ladies' Auxiliary for their marked assistance and emphasized the magnitude of the influence a Post, such as the local one, can have on local affairs. "This can," he said " be exerted to avoid cliques that have so often proven disastrous to many organizations."

Post Surgeon Dr. Charles S. Mills directed his remarks to Welfare Work in which Post Rodgers is pioneer in the State and urges the strict cooperation of every member of the Post.

Post Chaplin, Rev. Harry Saul, chairman of the Welfare Committee, gave a resume of the work accomplished by this committee and likewise made an appeal to the members for cooperation and concerted action.

"Service"—work which one does for another without the thought of any material gain was covered in a very thorough and punctilious manner by Post Attorney and State Service Officer, Frank A. Mathews, Jr. He cited the experiencing of many difficulties due to the lack of sufficiently appropriated funds for the helping of the disabled soldier and stated that, in his opinion, a service of this kind should be rendered at any expense. Mr. Mathews gave illustrations where the disabed soldier was denied assistance due to the enormous red tape involved and the conflict between National and State laws.

Comrade and Assemblyman Clifford Powell, of Mt. Holly, after numerous witticisms expressed his wish that a definite and concerted plan be adopted to promulgate the firmer establishment of the "40 and 8," the "helping hand" degree of the American Legion. He suggested as a watchword or motto for the year "Step on It"—with a purpose. From Washington on down, the greatest statesmen, taking God as their guide in their largest undertakings, have "Stepped on it"—with a purpose. We all know the result. The same can be true with the development of the American Legion.

George Flemming, State Adjutant of the Department of New Jersey, although on his initial visit here, highly praised Post Rodgers for the support it gave and the example it has been to kindred Posts. "The boosting and helping of other Posts is needed," Adjutant Flemming stated. However he felt assured that Past Commander Edgar A. Lamon, now on the State Executive Committee, in whose charge has been placed such work, would accomplish the desired results.

One of the honored guests of the evening was George N. Wimer, a staunch supporter of the Post since its organization. Mr. Wimer directed his remarks to the future of Post Rodgers, which he declared depends upon the future of the town, and the ideals for which it stands which are "ideals to be proud of."

The newly elected State Commander, Philip Forman gave a most interesting address in which he touched upon many highly important issues that confront the American Legion. In entering upon the duties as Commander of the State Legion body he realized that although the organization, the responsibilities of which he has recently assumed, was financially bankrupt, it was one highly gifted with exceptional talent. With this foundation alone he could perceive great accomplishments during his term. He expressed his personal appreciation and commendation for the activity of Post Rodgers but decried the fact that taking the Legion as a whole, out of every four ex-service men only one is active. In a brief and concise manner he outlined his working chart for the year which consisted of the following committees: Membership, pilgrimage to Washington to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier), hospitalization, service work, government hospital, convalescing home in Toms River, N. J., publicity, finance, chaplain and ritual speakers bureau.

The dissemination of verbal utterings of commendation and praise bestowed upon the Past Commander Edgar A. Lamon were made practical and very "timely" when, at the conclusion of the banquet, he was presented with a large handsome mantel clock by Sargeant-at-Arms Theo. D'Autrechy in behalf of Post Rodgers.

Although spell bound Past Commander Lamon received the gift in his usual appreciative, unassuming and modest manner, he assured both the State Commander and his fellow comrade that he would lend his utmost endeavors to see that Post Rodgers would go "over the top" for 1924.

To the regret of the Post declinations were received from Colonel William Carleton, executive officer of the 309th Infantry; Mayor James T. Weart, of Palmyra, and Department President Mary Shepherd, of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Post Rodgers commemorated Armistice Day by attending divine service at the Epworth M. E. Church on Sunday evening, when Pastor Fred B. Morley delivered a very eloquent address. It was inspirational throughout, the only regret being that there was not a larger attendance.

On Sunday afternoon a memorial service was very fittingly conducted in the Legion Home by the Post under the direction of Post Chaplain Harry Saul. The program consisted of an invocation by Rev. Charles W. Williams, of the Central Baptist Church, memorable remarks by Rev. Fred Morley, of the Epworth M. E. Church and Rev. Dwight Parce, of Christ Church, Palmyra, selections by the Griffenberg brass quartette, roll call and invocation by Rev. Mr. Lewis, of Christ Church, Riverton.

An invitation has been extended the Post by the Luthean Church to attend divine service on Sunday evening, November 25th, at which time Assemblyman Clifford Powell will speak.

Due to a conflicting date with an event of the Methodist Church, the Post will conduct their cake sale on this Saturday afternoon, November 17th, instead of the 24th, as previously announced. All those promising a cake donation will please take note and have theirs on the job at this time.

Chairman of the Americanization committee, Wilmer Randall, gave an interesting talk in this connection at the Epworth M. E. Sunday School on Sunday afternoon last. This is a work that Post Rodgers is rapidly becoming recognized with, and the encouragement of this committee by the members of the Post is very essential.

MINSTRELS ENTERTAINED

Masque Party Given Members of Dreer's Peerless Minstrels by Officers

The officers of the Dreer's Peerless Minstrels gave a masquerade party and dance in the Riverton Porch Club last week to its members and friends.

The party was well attended and the costumes ranged from the most handsome to the ridiculous. The first prize for fancy dress was awarded to Miss Mae Burns, representing a paper doll, and the honors for the most original was carried away by Mrs. E. F. Black.

Numerous other prizes were awarded for specialties. Radio Jack Robinson was as funny as ever. Tune in and hear him some time through station WDAR.

Miss Marie Berkhart and Jerry Lantz were the hit of the evening in a combination dance. E. F. Black, as Von Hindenberg, would have made the Kaiser shiver with envy if it had not been for Jack Stuckey, as Napoleon, being on the job.

Mrs. George Bailey was a scream in her 1492 wedding dress, but she could not find a place to pin the tail on the donkey, so Ed. Sutton was honored.

The club rooms were beautifully decorated with autumn leaves. The refreshments were of the cafeteria type, were continuous, and the party sure did make a clean job of it.

A Chance for West Point

Congressman Bacharach, through the Board of Examiners, composed of the County Superintendents of Schools of the Second Congressional District, will hold a preliminary competitive examination for the purpose of selecting one principal and two alternates to fill a vacancy at the U.S. Military Academy occurring next spring.

The examination this year will be held at the High School, Atlantic City, on Friday, November 30th, commencing at nine o'clock and continuing until finished, with the usual luncheon period.

Those wishing to take the examination must first file an application with J. J. Unger, Bridgeton, N. J. These should be accompanied by two letters, one from the school principal and the other from a disinterested party bearing upon the character and residence of the applicant. Four years at high school, or its equivalent, are almost necessary in order to pass the tests.

Further particulars and pamphlet covering the admission of cadets to West Point may be had by addressing Congressman Bacharach, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

PEOPLE OF OUR TOWN

Old Sleuth, who Meets all the Trains, has a Devouring Curiosity about Strangers and is all Steamed Up over why James McGlook spends Sundays in Jonesburg. He Noses into Private Conversations on the Streets, is a Charter Member of the Postoffice Lobby club and Chief Broadcaster of the Gossip Society.

The Fond Parent.

The boy who had scratched his name on the paint of the stationary motor-car had been soundly cuffed by the owner.

Attracted by the loud howling which resulted, a crowd soon gathered, through which the father of the boy pushed his way.

"Who struck my son?" he demanded furiously. "Show me the man!"

The motorist stepped forward. He was 6 feet 2 inches in height and 49 round the chest.

"I did," he said.

"Served him right, sir," said the man, touching his cap. "I'll give him another hiding when I get him home."

On the Safe Side.

"I see you have put lightning rods on your new barn."

"Had to do it," answered Farmer Cornstossel.

"You said years ago that lightning rods were useless."

"Yep. Science has been mighty busy since then. If they kin prove that the old law of gravitation ain't workin' any more there's no tellin' but what they've given us a new kind of electricity."

Playing Safe.

A Grub street wit once went into a London tavern and ordered dinner. He found a hair in the soup. This was passed over. He found another in the stew. Then he sent for the landlord.

"Quite a lot of fresh hair about," said the landlord, with a heavy attempt at humor.

"Bring me some rabbit pie," directed the customer gravely. "There will be no hare in that, I'll warrant."

C.P.R. UNIT ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. Harriet Spencer New President. Prominent Speakers at Luncheon.

The annual meeting of the C. P. R. Unit of the New Jersey Women's Republican Club, was held at the Porch Club, Riverton, November 8. Luncheon was served at one o'clock to seventy members and guests.

Mrs. Harriet Spencer, of Palmyra, was elected president; Mrs. Louise Durborow, of Riverton, secretary; and Mrs. Frances Hemphill, also of Riverton, treasurer.

The speakers were Miss Gertrude Wise, of Morris county, an organizer sent by Mrs. Lillian E. Feickert, who could not be present; Senator Emmor Roberts; Mrs. Henry J. Sherman, of Moorestown, member State Republican committee; A. G. Morse, of Riverton; Charles R. Stout, chairman of the Republican County Committee.

Among the county officials present were Freeholders J. Lloyd Wright, Charles R. Stout, Howard Russ, George W. Rogers, and Fred Lippincott, and County Auditor Henry I. Worrell.

The musical program included solos by Mrs. Ralph S. Rivers and Mrs. Leon C. Guest, with Mrs. Ruth Peterson Bell at the piano.

Miss Wise gave a brief summary of the recent election as it affected the makeup of the State Legislature, and urged the necessity of thorough organization of Republican forces, the basis of which is the unit.

Senator Roberts on Law Enforcement

Senator Roberts spoke on law enforcement. He said that the adoption of no amendment to the Constitution had been so nearly unanimous as the Eighteenth. At the time it was adopted, 90% of the area of the United States was dry, and that 68% of the people lived in dry territory. Thirty-three of the States already had prohibition laws, thirty of which used one-half of one per cent in defining intoxicating liquors. No State having prohibition laws had permitted the sale of light wines and beer. To amend the enforcement laws so as to permit the sale of light wines and beer would mean the return of heavier liquors, and make any attempt at law enforcement almost impossible. Last year, the Senator said, only 54% of the registered voters in Burlington county voted, while in Hudson county, one of the places which gave heavy "wet" majorities, ninety-five per cent. voted.

Mrs. Sherman on Organization

Mrs. Sherman said Republicans had every reason to be proud of their representatives in the State Legislature—Senator Roberts and Assemblyman Clifford Powell. Their efforts for the right laid a heavy obligation on women to stand behind them. The laws in which good women are interested, said Mrs. Sherman, are the same laws as good men are interested in. Women should not get the idea that they can best secure the things for which they are working by getting off into little groups somewhere by themselves. The best results can only be secured by the right-thinking women working together with right-thinking men. Mrs. Sherman said there should be a Constitutional Amendment passed prohibiting child labor, and spoke in favor of passage by the New Jersey Legislature of laws providing for county attendance officers in each county, a school census, a better method of distribution of State school funds, a change in the method of appointing the Commissioner of Education. She advised her hearers to keep informed on legislative matters, so as to know what bills to approve and work for as they come up for consideration. She urged Republican women to make their Units as strong as possible.

She said that Americans were in too great a hurry to get results from their reform laws, and quoted United States Senator Pepper as saying that in ten years everyone who did not support the enforcement of prohibition laws would be dead, in jail, or unpopular.

Mr. Morse on Immigration

A. G. Morse, of Riverton, referred to the meeting at Washington that memorable Sunday afternoon, when Governor Pinchot made his strong plea for greater assistance from the Federal Government in the enforcement of prohibition laws. He urged men and women to attend the primaries, as it was there that they had their only chance to select the candidates who would carry the Republican banner in the general election. Then, after they are elected, said Mr. Morse, get behind them and let them know their work for the right is appreciated. He gave an amusing account of a Democratic meeting he attended in Burlington just before election, and said that the thing which impressed him most was that material things only were discussed, with no mention of the moral or spiritual. What is politics good for anyway, said Mr. Morse, if it does not reach up and get hold of something higher and attempt to lift up the people to higher standards of civic righteousness? The fact that the prohibition law is difficult of enforcement, is no reason why it should be repealed or modified. There are laws against murder, robbery and arson which are being violated every day but no one is clamoring for their repeal. It will take time for prohibition to work out, but in the very nature of things the right must and will prevail. Five consecutive Congresses have been dry, and with but one exception, each succeeding one dryer than the one before. Law is not the enemy of any person who is fit to be a citizen.

In speaking of our immigration problem he said that we wanted the well-intentioned from every land, but did not want their criminals, and that those who prove undesirable should be sent back to the country from which they came. He said that in the United States there are nine and a half millions of foreigners who have not applied for naturalization papers, and the flood is still young.

Mr. Stout on Co-operation

Charles R. Stout, chairman of the Republican County Committee, said he was proud to be a citizen of Burlington County and prouder than ever since the last election to be a Republican. He was proud of the way the voters had supported the Republican candidates and the principles for which they stood. Chairman Stout paid a fine compliment to the County Committee for their untiring efforts and valuable advice on all matters pertaining to the good of the party, and asked for them and himself the co-operation of all citizens of the county.

Why Build Now?

That's a fair question. Many commercial organizations, when they find construction is high, wait for more advantageous conditions

But we can't wait. When people want telephones there is nothing for us to do but build—build to meet the demand.

That's what we're doing right now.

We're pouring into South Jersey new telephone equipment as fast as factories, working day and night, can turn it out.

It's the only way to give people of southern New Jersey the service they are asking.

PLAN TO EXTERMINATE PESTS

Why the Department of Agriculture is Promoting Civil War in the Insect World.

Civil war in the insect world is to be further promoted by the United States Department of Agriculture in its fight on the gypsy moth, the insect pest which has caused such great damage to trees and other vegetation in New England and neighboring states. S. S. Crossman and Ray T. Webber of the bureau of entomology have sailed for Europe to recruit reinforcements for the army of insect enemies of the moth.

In its ancestral European home the gypsy moth was afflicted with hereditary enemies which served to control its numbers. When it was introduced into this country its enemies stayed behind, with the result that the invader had things all its own way for years. Then the Department of Agriculture imported some of these enemies, which are parasites preying upon the eggs and caterpillars. These were shown to have an appreciable effect in keeping down the numbers of their enemies, and now the department is sending abroad for reinforcements and also to investigate the possible existence of other similar enemies of the pest of the northeastern states.

Why Moon Affects Earth.

Observations now being carried out on the structure of the Tower of London by the staff of the National Physical laboratory, show that the building moves upwards and downwards in unison with the tides by a fraction of an inch, each day. This is a reminder that not only the sea, but the solid earth, responds to the pull of the moon. A series of elaborate measurements carried out with special apparatus have enabled the amount of this earth movement to be measured. Twice every day the earth moves upward by two-thirds of a foot and twice downward the same distance. Some big buildings, too, are very sensible to changes of temperature. The Eiffel tower varies with every change of temperature, a passing cloud causing it to decrease by as much as two centimetres, and the measured difference in its altitude on one day has amounted to nearly three inches.

Opportunity.

Opportunity not only arrives, in some cases, when a man is sitting and waiting, but when he is asleep.

UPSET IN H. S. FOOTBALL

Palmyra Loses to Burlington Last Friday by Score of 9 to 7

One of the biggest upsets in scholastic football circles occurred last Friday afternoon when Burlington High defeated Palmyra by the close score of 9-7. The game was staged on Burlington's field before an exceptionally large crowd of Burlington rooters. Palmyra was also very well represented, two special trolley cars taking many of the students, while many others motored to the scene of the sad, but memorable battle.

Palmyra, a few weeks previous, met and defeated the Burlington eleven by 19-6. It was this contest that won the permanent possession of the coveted Knights of the Golden Eagle cup and the Burlington County High School Championship for Palmyra. The locals went into the second game with a clean slate, having won seven consecutive games. Their lines had only been crossed twice, once by Moorestown and once by Burlington.

Kersey, a member of Palmyra's strong and aggressive backfield, was responsible for the local scoring. Palmyra took possession of the pigskin on Burlington's twenty-five-yard line, after holding the opponents on downs. Burlington was then penalized fifteen yards, bringing the oval within ten yards of the goal. Kersey easily made the remaining distance, with a strong line plunge. He also scored the extra point with his educated toe.

Hutton, Burlington's colored right end, crossed Palmyra's line for the lone opposing touchdown. It was only through a lucky break, like many others which have been deciding factors in many gridiron frays during the past season, that he was able to accomplish his feat. Burlington had kicked off, Boal, Palmyra's alert-minded and clever quarter, had prepared to receive the oval on the bounce, but the pigskin did not bounce as per schedule, for the field on which the boys were playing was not as smooth as The Field Club park, and before Boal was successful in nabbing the oval in question, Hutton had snatched it and made his way across the line, a few feet distant, for a touchdown. The placement kick for the extra point failed.

The game, however, was not won until very late in the game. Palmyra according to all appearances, was the winner even when the last quarter was far under way, for the score stood 7-6 in her favor. But McGinley, star half-back on the Burlington team, dropped back on the forty-yard line, with only a few minutes of play remaining, and proceeded to kick a beautiful field goal. It was this boy, a former resident of Palmyra, that spoiled Palmyra's chances for going through the season undefeated.

The game scheduled to be played with Cape May this Saturday, according to reports, has been postponed.

Burlington and Palmyra, being great rivals, were expected to arrange another game, which would probably be played Thanksgiving Day. But according to the local high school officials, there will be no more games this year. This statement met with great surprise among many of the students and townspeople, for it was expected that the tie of games would be played off, thus giving the winner a real claim to the county title.

As it now stands, either team may claim the coveted championship, for each has defeated the other and neither has been defeated by any other team in the county.

Plans are being made for a get-together of the parents of all the Scouts, as well as their friends on Monday, December 3rd. This will also be the next regular meeting night for the Auxiliary and all parents are urged to be present, so they may learn what the Auxiliary wishes to do for the boys.

Who Was Pegasus?

In classic myth, the famous winged horse that sprang from the blood of Medusa, the mortal Gorgon, when she was slain by Perseus. Pegasus dwelt at Olympus and carried thunder and lightning for Zeus. By his aid, Bellerophon conquered the Chimaera. Pegasus was regarded by late writers as the horse of Eos, and was said to have revealed the famous fountain of Hippocrene on Mount Helicon by a kick of his hoof. According to a modern poetic fancy, Pegasus became the horse of the Muses, and thence arose the saying, "To mount one's Pegasus," meaning to write poetry.

HELD UP IN TACONY

Palmyra Man Robbed by Three Highwaymen near Ferry

Clarence Jones, of 1110 Garfield avenue, was held up by three highwaymen at the corner of Crew and Levick streets, near the Palmyra ferry entrance, and robbed of $4 last Friday evening about 10 o'clock.

Jones is employed at the Disston plant and was on his way home when the three men stopped him. One of them shoved a pistol into his ribs and commanded him to keep quite while the other two searched him.

The victim of the hold-up asked the bandits to leave him enough change to pay his way across the ferry, but the robbers were so angered at not making a larger haul that they swore at him and told him he could swim across.

Jones told the ferry officials what had happened and they notified the Tacony police who soon arrived with a bandit chasing car and took Jones for a tour of the whole district in the hope that he could spot the thieves. No clue, however, was found.

MURRAY C. BOYER PRESIDENT

Elected Head of Association of County Boards of Education

Officers were elected for the Association of the Burlington County Boards of Education, at the all-day meeting held in the Moorestown High School on Saturday. Murray C. Boyer, of Riverton, was elected president of the Association; while the other officers were as follows: vice president, David Styer, of Bordentown; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Joseph L. Thomas, of Riverton. The executive committee was elected as follows: Henry H. Albertson, Burlington; James A. Stewart, Beverly; Dr. Chas. S. Voorhees, Palmyra; Mrs. Alfred Darnell, Medford; Dr. M. W. Newcomb, Brown's Mills; J. Hansell Lippincott, Moorestown; N. R. Ewan, Mount Holly; Murray C. Boyer, Riverton; D. Budd Jones, Vincentown, and Mrs. Margaret French, Moorestown.

The various school districts reported on the year's work, and County Superintendent Louis J. Kaser, reported on the school work in the county during the past year. Several musical selections were rendered.

In the afternoon Senator Arthur B. Whitney, of Morris county, spoke on the "Distribution of School Funds." He presented a bill in the State Legislature providing for the proper division of school funds, but this has not yet been passed. Dr. E. J. G. Beardsley, spoke of "School Hygiene" and laid especial stress on the value of a medical inspection in the school. He declared that a healthful child was more important than an educated one, and that the getting of an education should never interfere with the child's health.

Parent-Teachers Hold Meeting

The November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Riverton was held in the public school auditorium Thursday, November 15th, at 3.30.

After a short business meeting the following musical program was rendered:

Piano Duet, Spanish Dance, Engelina
Russian Dance Dvorak
Misses Anna James and Grace Davis
Vocal Solo, "A-Singin' and A-Singin'"
"Lil' Boy Neidlinger
Mrs. Herbert M. Morris
accompanied by Mrs. Luther R. Turner

Mrs. Earl Barnes then gave a delightful talk on "Good Books for Children" and the importance of reading in the life of the child.

Through the Riverton Public Library the Association had obtained an exhibit of beautiful books for children. Posters advertising "Book Week" and made by pupils of the school decorated the auditorium.

A Victrola record was awarded to the Sixth Grade for having the highest percentage of mothers in attendance at the meeting.

Thanksgiving

Wherefore I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do hereby fix and designate Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of November, as Thanksgiving Day, and recommend its general observance throughout the land. It is urged that the people gather in their homes and their usual places of worship, give expression to their gratitude for the benefits and blessings that a gracious Providence has bestowed upon them, and seek the guidance of Almighty God that they may deserve a continuance of His favor."

In response to this call, the annual community Thanksgiving service will be held next Thursday morning from 10.30 to 11.30 in the Baptist Church. Pastor Fred B. Morley, of the Epworth Methodist Church, will preach the sermon. A cordial and urgent invitation is extended to all to meet to give thanks to our God for His blessings.

Lutheran News

At the evening service Sunday, the Honorable Clifford Powell, well known in this community, will preach. There will be special music, with a trombone quartet, and vocal solo. Those who have not heard Mr. Powell should take this opportunity. It is good to see our State officials more and more rising to the cause of Christ. In the morning the Pastor will preach on "Sons of Light".

The Church Council is pleased to announce that Charles Mohrfeld, of Cinnaminson avenue, has been chosen as the architect for the new building. Plans have so far materialized that it is expected spring will bring the breaking of the ground.

The mothers of the babies on the cradle roll will be visited this week by the new superintendent, Mrs. Paul Wolfschmidt. Bring your baby to Sunday School next Sunday.

The ladies of the Bible class had a delightful time last Thursday night at Mrs. Schriver's. Motion pictures of the Life of Christ were exhibited and a delightful luncheon served. The ladies are moving along rapidly and there will be another of these get-togethers soon.

"EDUCATION WEEK" NEEDED

Illiteracy Higher in U. S. Than In Many Foreign Countries

The great essential to the future of these United States is a citizenship physically fit, mentally alert and morally sound.

The Potter.

I am a potter
And fine is the clay of my working.
True and smooth running must be my wheel,
Pure and glowing my fire;
Plastic, the clay in my hands
Receives in itself every impress;
Strange, the clay in my hands
Makes impress ineffaceable ever.
Finely, carefully, lovingly
My hands must fashion this vessel;
Gently, gently, delicately
Must the turning wheel smooth it;
Deeply, warmly, not searing,
My fire must burn it to glazing.
I am a potter
My clay is the mind of a child.
—M. Louise Mizen in Pennsylvania School Journal, November 1923.

"The Legislature shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for the instruction of all the children in the State between the ages of five and eighteen years."
—Constitution of New Jersey, Article IV, sec. vii, p 6.

Comparatively few of our citizens know the magnitude of the school system of New Jesey.

With a population of about three and one third millions we have a school enrollment of nearly six hundred and eighty thousand children, housed in more than twenty one hundred school buildings.

We employ nearly twenty one thousand teachers; have a property valuation of one hundred and thirty three millions, one hundred eleven thousand dollars, and expended last year forty two millions eight hundred and fifty six thousand dollars.

Truly a vast enterprise, in which as owners and partners, we may feel a just pride.

This feeling should not cause us to accept the common but erroneous opinion that American schools are the best in the world. The 1920 census figures show that as a whole we have seventy seven illiterates in every thousand, ten years old and over, while New Jersey has fifty one per thousand.

Compare these figures with the illiteracy of Sweden and Denmark two per thousand, Switzerland three, Holland five, England and Wales eighteen, and we awake to the fact that much work is before us to counteract past blunders and improve future conditions.

As partners in the most vital enterprise of the community, it is necessary we should take an active interest in our business and thru a thoughtful appraisal of resources, efforts and results, determine a program which will promote efficiency, encourage incentive and reward energy that such a program means individual thought and responsibility transmuted into co-operative action: in the words of Kipling,

"It aint the guns nor armament, nor funds that they can pay
But the close co-operation that makes them win the day;
It aint the individual, nor the army as a whole
But the everlasting team work of every blooming soul."

In the formation of any constructive program, we should recall the significance of the remark "man shall not live by bread alone", and apply the thought of Webster;

"If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into the dust; but if we work upon immortal minds, if we imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and love of our fellow men, we engrave on these tablets something which will brighten all eternity."

Baptist Church Notes

On Friday evening of this week the Young People's Society will have a special service at 8 o'clock. Mr. Mintel, the field secretary of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Society, will deliver an address. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend this service.

On Sunday morning the pastor will preach on the text "But now a better country". In the evening the second of the series of sermons on "True Sportsmen" entitled "The Man of Ur."

Next Monday the annual meeting of the church will be held. All the members are expected to be present, supper will be served at 6.30, the roll will be called, reports of all departments of the Church will be given, officers will be elected and business transacted.

At the Wednesday evening meetings Paul's letter to the Colossians is being studied by sections. Next week the subject is "The Bane and the Antidote," Colossians 2: 1-10.

The young people have planned for a banquet on December 6th. The speaker for the occasion will be Rev. J. Sherman Wallace, of the American Baptist Publication Society in Philadelphia. This is rally service for all the young people of the church and congregation.

Powell May Be Floor Leader

At an informal conference held at the State House, Trenton, on Tuesday of this week, it was practically conceded that Cliffod R. Powell, Assemblyman from Burlington county, would be the next floor leader in the House of Assembly, an honor which has not come to Burlington county for many years. Hon. John G. Horner was the last floor leader from this county.

Assemblyman Herbert J. Pascoe, of Union county, will probably be the next speaker.

Conard Burlington's New Postmaster

William H. Reeves, member of the State Republican Committee from Burlingon county, has recommended William Conard for the postmastership at Burlington. The recommendation is agreeable to Charles R. Stout, chairman of the Republican County Committee. Mr. Conard is eminently fitted for the position, and his selection was due to his standing in the civil service examination report, he having headed the list with an average of 82. William G. Wise came next with 76.40 and Stone was third with 71. Stone had an extra five points on account of his military service.

Geiss Elected President

At a meeting of the Buck Run Deer Hunting Association, held on Thursday of last week at Indian Chief Hotel, Medfod, John C. Geiss was elected president. The association has thirty-five members. Since last season a new lodge has been built at Buck Run, which is said to be one of the finest and best-equipped in the State. Water is obtained from an artesian well. The lodge has two large stoves and a complete kitchen equipment. It is open to members the year 'round. Preparations are being made for a big time during the coming deer season.

Porch Club News

The first all-music program at the Club will be on Tuesday next, November 27th, at 2.30 p.m.

Mrs. Emilie Fricke Lesher, pianist, who is very active in the Matinee Musical Club, together with our own Miss Margaret Vaughan, harpist, and Mrs. S. W. Collin, contralto soloist, will present a wonderful and varied program, the equal of which will be difficult to imagine.

We, as a club, and as a community, are indeed fortunate in not alone having such splendid talent in our midst, but in being able to bring to our Club artists of such distinction as Mrs. Lesher.

Dance for Benefit of Riverton Library

On Saturday evening, December 1, at the Country Club, the Porch Club will give a dance for the benefit of the Riverton Free Library.

It is desired and to be expected that the community will support this dance because of the civic interest for which it is being given.

Tickets may be procured from any Porch Club member. If she has none it will be her pleasure to get them for you.

No Football Here Saturday

The Riverton manager has decided not to have a game here on Saturday, the 24th, owing to the Riverside-Millville game which will be played at Riverside for the championship of the State on that date.

On Thanksgiving day the attraction will be a game played with Wagner's team, of Riverside, on the Riverton grounds.

Riverton Road Will Be Fixed

At a meeting of the Board of Freeholders last Friday, a resolution introduced by Charles R. Stout, director of roads, providing for the reconstruction of the road from Riverton to Moorestown, was unanimously passed. This puts the Riverton-Moorestown road in line for improvement next year. The road from Beverly station to the Burlington and Camden Pike, and the King's Highway, from Pleasant Valley avenue, Moorestown, to the Camden County line were also included in next year's construction program. The director of roads was authorized to secure federal aid in building the King's Highway if possible.

The last "Y" meeting began with singing of Christmas hymns in preparation for Christmas caroling.

What You Can Buy at Home

There is certainly no need to go out of the two towns to do your Thanksgiving and Christmas buying. —THE RIVERTON MARKET HOUSE can supply you with everything you will need for the Thanksgiving dinner—from soup to nuts, including the turkey or other fowl.

FIELDS' DELICATESSEN is noted for the high-grade of all its goods and the full assortment they carry makes shopping there easy.

THE PHILADELPHIA MARKET HOUSE is making a Thanksgiving special this week of grapes, oranges and grapefruit—and of course they have all the other fruits and vegetables, and a full line of nuts.

You will always be sure of the quality of turkeys, chickens, ducks and geese that you get from MATTIS, THE BUTCHER. Place your order early so that you can get the size you want.

THE TWIN CITY FRUIT MARKET invites your inspection of its fine line of fruits and vegetables. They are making a Thanksgiving special of celery hearts at a reduced price.

If your carving set isn't all that it might be, and you are thinking of getting a better one, why not get it now and try it out on the Thanksgiving turkey? JOHN H. ETRIS, "The Winchester Store," can fit you out.

It is only two skips and a jump from Thanksgiving to Christmas and local dealers are now prepared to show you the fine things they have. MRS. ALFRED SMITH is advertising books for children, and ROTHBAUM, the Palmyra jeweler, has his Christmas stock of watches, jewelry and silverware ready for your selection.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD REPORT

Nearly 1500 Garments Collected by the Riverton Branch. Twelve Charities Benefit

The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Riverton Branch of the Needlework Guild of America was held in the Porch Club on November 12th. The number of garments collected and displayed totaled 1307. The directors present from the Riverton and Palmyra branches heard Miss Margaret S. Haines, of Burlington, give an account of Burlington County charities. She told of interesting cases that had come up in court, and mentioned the work of the Almshouse, the Children's Home, State Colony for Feeble Minded Males, and the value of the organization of United Charities. As a result of her talk it was decided to send a donation this year to the Almshouse and to Miss Reba Troxell, county attendance officer, who is always in need of clothing for children of school age.

Mrs. William Purnell, president of the Palmyra branch, told of the Thank Offering, which the Needlework Guild is to make during 1924, and how we might make our contributions. Donations were sent to the following institutions: Cinnaminson Home, Home Relief Committee, Burlington County Children's Home, School at Johnson's Corner, Vincentown, Miss Reba Troxell, county attendance officer; Burington County Hospital, New Jersey Homeopathic Hospital, New Jersey Children's Home Society, Home for Incurables, Almshouse, Cooper Hospital, Fairview Sanitorium for Tuberculosis.

TRUCK CRUSHES GIRL

Struck As She Starts Across Road to Home from School Stage

Ruth Roberts, aged eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Roberts, of East Riverton, suffered a broken leg and fractured skull, when she was stuck by a Liberty Cake Company truck as she alighted from the school stage at Union Landing Monday afternoon. The truck was driven by James Haner, who took her to the Zurbrugg Memorial Hospital, Riverside, accompanied by Officer Quigley, of Riverton, who had been summoned by telephone. Reports Wednesday morning indicated that the little girl was making a satisfactory recovery at the hospital.

It is believed that this menace to the children who use the school stage can be removed by having the stage turn around and stop on the other side of the road before discharging its passengers. This would make it unnecessary for the children to cross the road.

DEATHS

Mrs. A. G. Morse

Annie Katherine (Baker) Morse, wife of A. G. Morse, died suddenly on Saturday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. V. Townend, of Thomas avenue, in her fifty-ninth year. Late on Friday she was taken with a heart attack, which proved too much for even her rugged constitution.

She united with the Baptist Church more than a generation ago and her activities in religious, temperance, civic and social relief have been persistent if usually inconspicuous. She had a sturdy faith in God and with Paul could say, "I believe God that it shall be even as it was told me." With her "lamp trimmed and burning" she waited for and gladly answered the Master's call.

Interment was made on Tuesday. Services were private.

Mrs. Peter Lambing

Mrs. Susanna Lambing, aged twenty-eight years, died in Denver, Colorado, November 11. The body was brought to Riverton and the funeral was from the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Rech, Saturday morning. Services were held in the Church of the Sacred Heart at nine o'clock, Rev. Joseph A. Rigney officiating. The deceased was a sister of the late Joseph Rech. She is survived by her husband and one son.

Mrs. Lambing formerly lived at 19 West Charles street, Palmyra, and went to Colorado last spring for her health.

Burglar Robs Riverton Home

A burglar got about $50 worth of loot from the home of Mrs. Corner Clelland at Ninth and Main streets, on Sunday night, and Detective Arthur Carabine is investigating. While the family was away, the burglar effected an entrance through a window, cutting the glass out with a glass-cutter. He stole some silverware and jewelry, but was evidently frightened away before finishing, for a large quantity of silverware was left untouched.

Damaged Wall Paper.

One woman of artistic training makes a good living by visiting the homes of the wealthy and offering to repair damaged wall paper. Her method is to place a piece of white paper over the damaged portion and then paint in the appropriate design.

Thanksgiving Items

The merchants of the two towns have risen to the occasion and prepared a lot of extra nice things to assist the housewife in preparing the best dinner she ever served. Their suggestions have been grouped on a special page of Thanksgiving advertisements.

CHEW BROTHERS will not only bake your pastry, but will also roast your turkey at a nominal charge, enabling mother, sister and daughter to have a regular holiday as well as the men folks.

CHARLES T. HAWKE has oysters for the turkey dressing, and a lot of other things you will need, including Grandmother's Pudding, which he says is a winner.

THE QUALITY MEAT MARKET advertises all kinds of choice poultry for the big holiday.

COMPTON, THE GROCER, reminds you of what you already know—that his high-grade groceries and canned goods can be depended on to do full credit to the housewife's skill as a cook.

WILLIAM H. COOK, the Palmyra grocer, invites you to select from his large stock all the things, big and little, you will need for the dinner.

BIRENBAUM'S DRY GOODS STORE is making a special offering of fine table linen, which will lend added grace to the occasion.

McALLISTER suggests that while you are waiting for the big spread you liven things up a bit with one of the new model Victrolas and a few of your favorite records. He can make instant delivery of both.

And after dinner DRUGGIST STILES suggests the famous El Producto Cigar or any of the other fine brands he carries in stock, a half dozen of which he enumerates in his advertisement.

Before dinner, after dinner, and all the time, you will enjoy the conveniences for your car enumerated in the GOODYEAR SERVICE STATION advertisement.

MRS. I. S. McLAUGHLIN mentions monogram initials, a lot of nice things to wear and suggests that it is not too early to start your Christmas buying.

THE PALMYRA NATIONAL BANK sums up the whole situation when it says that the biggest thing we have to be thankful for is the growth and prosperity of the community. The bank knows the community is successful because the bank is successful, and the financial prosperity of a community is always reflected in its banking institutions.

Cramped Quarters.

TAKEN AT HIS WORD.
He—For the love of you I could become anything.
She—Become a millionaire.

Office Cinderella.

When all the gay stenogs went away
One little girl at work must stay.
But after all, 'twas no great loss.
She was the one who married the boss.

Bringing It Down to Date.

The Artist—Yes, I can touch up that portrait of your former husband. What do you wish done to it?

Mrs. Multiwed—Just paint out the whiskers and put some hair on the head and it'll look near enough like my present husband.

Economic Peril.

"Dancing masters are going to bring back the old-fashioned waltz."

"I'd hate to see it happen," replied Miss Cayenne. "There is enough unemployment without throwing a multitude of jazz musicians out of work."

Chestnut Grove Moves.

Having become detached from its foundations, one of the broad slopes of Mount Peringues, near Lodeve, France, is reported to have moved a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile. It carried with it the soil, meadows, and woods, and covered up in its passage roads and bridges that stood in the way. A chestnut grove traveled 600 feet without suffering any apparent damage, but many small lakes have formed by the damming of the waters.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowles Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.

Eau De Cologne.

This famous scent has been in use for two centuries. The great "4711" firm in Cologne which manufactured it has just closed down; but the supply available is practically unlimited still. Though Cologne has the credit for its manufacture, it was indebted for the secret recipe to an Italian immigrant, Farina.

Once Upon a Time.

Once upon a time there was a woman who said to another woman, "There is something you should know, but I cannot tell you now," and the other woman did not insist upon hearing it right then and there, but maybe you would rather hear a true story.

Origin of Carpets.

Hundreds of years ago, when Europeans were living in houses with bare floors or floors strewn with rushes or twigs, carpets were being used in China, India and Egypt. The first carpets were rugs to sit upon taking the place of chairs. In Homer's time, either plain or embroidered carpets were spread before the couches of the guests in Greek houses. Later on rich and gay carpets were imported to Greece from Babylon. These carpets had raised figures of men and animals and were made in gorgeous colors. In later Roman times carpets were imported from the Orient.

Dig New Bed for Isar River.

By changing the course of the Middle Isar river, Bavaria expects to make possible the development of an electric current totaling 480,000,000 watt hours a year, an output that will put the plant among the largest of the world. It is estimated that this use of water power will result in a saving of 500,000 tons of coal annually. In digging the river's new channel, 7,000 men were employed.

School Notes

Assembly

On Friday the sixteenth, when we went into the auditorium, the chairs were in very different places than we were used to. We got rather mixed up but came out all right. We sang songs and had the Bible reading by Miss Chew, and prayer by the school. Bennett Bowers recited "Old Iron Sides" by Oliver W. Holmes. Helen Landers told a story entitled "History." It was very funny because it was "all wrong." The sixth grade gave a play entitled "Gareth's Adventures," which was very good. They gave the knighting of Gareth and the knight's vows. Miss Chew congratulated the boys and girls who made the posters for Good Book Week. She said they were very good and she was proud of us. She talked on Library courtesy. We saluted the flag and sang America.

The pupils and teachers cordially invite all the parents to visit the school during Education Week, November 19 to 23, at any time.

ELIZABETH SHOEMAKER.

Civic Club of Riverton School

There has been a Civic Club formed in the eighth and seventh grades. It has been successful so far. They have formed resolutions in their meetings and most of them have tried to stick to them. In later life it helps you to conduct a meeting if you happen to have occasion to do so. Some of the resolutions for the eighth grade are to be the best eighth grade the school ever had. In the seventh grade they have passenger and crew society. The passengers are the ones that do not work or who disobey. Certain punishments are inflicted. In the eighth grade they have a Lifters and Learners Society. It is on the order of the seventh grade. With all of these things it is a success.

Gareth and His Adventures

The sixth grade gave a play on November sixteenth in assembly. The three-act play was a story taken from "King Arthur Stories." It was very successful.

In the first act Gareth pleads with his mother for her permission to go to King Arthur's court. He finally succeeds by making a promise to hire himself as a kitchen boy in the King's household for twelve months.

In act two Gareth goes to King Arthur to ask permission to serve in his court. Lynette, a damsel in distress, comes to King Arthur to ask for a knight. Gareth begs King Arthur to allow him to right Lynette's wrong. Arthur consents.

In act three the dwarf comes to King Arthur and tells of Gareth's adventures. Lynette and Gareth enter. Lynette tells the King of Gareth's wonderful bravery and suggests to King Arthur that he make Gareth a Knight of the Round Table. King Arthur tells Gareth he must make promises to live pure, speak true, right wrong and follow the king at all times. Gareth, in clear ringing words, makes the promises and is nobly knighted by good King Arthur.

Fourth Grade

The fourth grade is planning to have a "Class Room Library." Books are being collected for that purpose and will be awarded for use over the weekends where pupils are in good standing in regard to work.

Third Grade

The activities of the third grade are centering partly around children's book week. Eleven children already belong to the Library, and others are preparing to join.

The Thanksgiving sand-table is under process of construction. The new spelling blanks for the month have been made.

A Visit to the Academy of Music

My first visit to the Academy of Music was Monday, November 12, 1923. I boarded the train at Riverton station accompanied by the principal of our school, Miss Hannah C. Chew and John Reid, of the eighth grade. We arrived at Camden at three o'clock, then went on the boat for Philadelphia. On the way across the river we saw the first towers to the new Philadelphia and Camden bridge. Arriving at Philadelphia about three-fifteen we boarded the subway car and rode as far as Fifteenth street. We then walked down Fifteenth to Broad and Chestnut, then to the Academy of Music.

The Academy of Music is one of the oldest buildings in Philadelphia, and it has entertained some of the best known men in the United States. It was the first building where the Philadelphians heard great music. The Philadelphia Orchestra was there Monday playing in a series of children's concerts with Leopold Stokowski as leader. The Philadelphia Orchestra is one of the best known orchestras in the United States, and Leopold Stokowski is one of the best known musicians in our country.

Dr. Stokowski explained to the audience each number on the program. "Espaua" Rhapsody was a Spanish dance written to show the gay life of the Spanish people. "Fantasie" Brilliant, a trumpet solo by S. Cohen, was the next delightful number. The leader announced G. Simons had sprained his ankle and could not appear, but that a special number would be given by the "Elephant and the Mosquito." The elephant was a tuba and the mosquito the smallest instrument in the orchestra, the piccolo. This selection was very much admired. The next numbers were little dances so arranged as to remind one of fairy land as you could almost see the dancing fairies and elves.

Marche
Danse de la fee dragee
Trepak Dance Russe
Danse Arabe
Danse Chinoise
Danse des Mirlitoim

I listened with great interest to the program and enjoyed it. We returned home about six thirty, greatly pleased with our visit to the Academy, and thankful to Miss Chew for making it possible for us to attend such a wonderful concert.

Parent-Teacher Association

The November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school auditorium, Thursday, the fifteenth.

The meeting opened by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Mrs. Merrill and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Warren.

There was a musical program by Miss Anna James, Miss Grace Davis, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Turner.

Miss James and Miss Davies played a piano duet.

Mrs. Morris sang two songs with Mrs. Turner at the piano.

Mrs. Earl Barnes gave a lecture on "Good Books for Children."

She suggested several standard books for children.

She suggested "The Youth's Companion" and the "Saint Nicholas" as good current magazines.

For older children, the works of Ernest Thompson Seton, Louisa Alcott and Robert Louis Stevenson were suggested.

The sixth grade won the record for having the most parents at the meeting.

The seventh and eighth grade girls served tea after the meeting.

R is for Rachel learning to dance;
She'll show off her steps if you give her a chance.

Shark Sucker.

The shark sucker, a defenseless and retiring fish, fastens itself to the surface of the voracious shark, but it is not harmed by the shark, and the shark sucker does no harm to the shark, except to retard its motion. Shark suckers are carried about by sharks often to great distances. They attach themselves by a large sucking disk on the top of the head which is a modified spinous dorsal fin. If the shark is caught and drawn out of the water, these fishes often let go and plunge into the sea, swimming away with great celerity. This fish is found in Europe, on the coast of New York in the West Indies, in California, and in Japan, but is nowhere abundant.

Mining the Air for Gas "Ore."

From sinking shafts in the earth, engineers have advanced to "mining" the air for gases important in the commercial world. After liquefying the air by subjecting it to heavy pressure, the various elements are separated. Oxygen obtained in this manner is used in oxyacetylene torches for welding and cutting steel and iron. Nitrogen and argon are employed in filling incandescent lamps. Neon, one of the rare gases, which is very sensitive to electricity, is used for testing spark plugs and in the manufacture of electric signs. It is said that $30,000,000 is invested in air-products plants in America.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 25

CHRISTIANS CALLED TO BE MISSIONARIES

PRIMARY TOPIC—Telling Everyone About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working Together With Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—World-Wide Witnessing for Christ.

I. Sent by Christ (John 17:18).

Christ was sent into the world to save it. Just as He was sent, so He sends us. Just as He was obedient to the Father's command, so we should be to His command. That this might be possible Christ set apart himself, and that the disciples might be fit for this work they are to be sanctified through the truth of God's Word. That which fits the one called to represent Christ is the knowledge of God's holy Word.

II. The Great Commission (Matt. 28:16-20).

At an appointed meeting place in Galilee on a mountain side, Jesus appeared before the disciples and gave this great commission.

1. His Claim of Authority (v. 18). He does not claim to be merely the King of the Jews, but King of Kings and Lord of Lords. He stands clothed with the authority and power of the universe. Before there will be any great concern about evangelizing the world there must be an understanding of the power and might of Jesus Christ as Lord. The Lord must and shall be obeyed.

2. The Obligation Imposed (vv. 19, 20). They are to make disciples of all nations. The obligation of the Christian is not merely to preach the gospel to the Jews, but to all the nations. Those who accept Christ as Savior and Lord are to be baptized in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. By this means they openly acknowledge their allegiance to Jesus Christ as their divine Lord. To secure public avowal of loyalty to Christ is important. It strengthens the character of the confessor. They are also to be instructed to render obedience to all the commandments and requirements of the divine Lord.

3. The Divine Presence Promised (v. 20). To assure the disciples of the success of their undertaking, Jesus guarantees His presence at all times and under all circumstances. That which gives courage and encouragement to the missionary today is the assurance of the unfailing promise of the Lord Jesus Christ.

III. The Missionary Program (Acts 1:6-8).

It is essential that the missionary program be understood. The work incumbent upon the church is to witness of Christ's gracious salvation to all the nations. After this is done there will follow the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom by converted Israelites. This was not clear to the disciples, therefore they put the question, "Wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom of Israel?" They were right in thinking that the kingdom will be restored. The Davidic kingdom shall be established, but not till after the gospel of the grace of God is preached and the body of Christ is completed. Its realization is certain, but the time is unknown. Times and seasons are in the hands of God. The program which the disciples are to carry out in this present time is witnessing for Christ.

1. In Jerusalem (v. 8). This was done by the Twelve immediately following Pentecost.

2. In Judea and Samaria (v. 8). This was done by the disciples after the hands of the persecutors were laid on them. Not only the Twelve but many others took part in this.

3. Unto the Uttermost Parts of the Earth. Beginning with the first foreign missionary enterprise this work has been carried on with varying degrees of success till the present time.

Being Self-Centered.

Nothing is more wearing or a more fruitful source of unhappiness in the long run than to be self-centered. If our thoughts and plans, our hopes and fears, our ideals and ambitions all center in our own personal comfort and happiness, there must come many a day of infinite weariness and self-disgust when life does not seem worth living. Poverty or riches have very little to do with it. You will find just as many well-to-do people as poor, for whom life has lost its spice and enthusiasm. It is not a question of capital, but of character.

No Place Sweeter Than Home.

It is very dangerous for any man to find any spot on this broad globe that is sweeter to him than his home.—H. W. Beecher.

A Mind in Health.

The first sure symptom of a mind in health is rest of heart, and pleasure felt at home.—Young.

God Should Be There.

A cottage, if God be there, will hold as much happiness as might stock a palace.—J. Hamilton.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

School Notes

Assembly

On Friday the sixteenth, when we went into the auditorium, the chairs were in very different places than we were used to. We got rather mixed up but came out all right. We sang songs and had the Bible reading by Miss Chew, and prayer by the school. Bennett Bowers recited "Old Iron Sides" by Oliver W. Holmes. Helen Landers told a story entitled "History." It was very funny because it was "all wrong." The sixth grade gave a play entitled "Gareth's Adventures," which was very good. They gave the knighting of Gareth and the knight's vows. Miss Chew congratulated the boys and girls who made the posters for Good Book Week. She said they were very good and she was proud of us. She talked on Library courtesy. We saluted the flag and sang America.

The pupils and teachers cordially invite all the parents to visit the school during Education Week, November 19 to 23, at any time.

Gareth and His Adventures

The sixth grade gave a play on November sixteenth in assembly. The three-act play was a story taken from "King Arthur Stories." It was very successful.

In the first act Gareth pleads with his mother for her permission to go to King Arthur's court. He finally succeeds by making a promise to hire himself as a kitchen boy in the King's household for twelve months.

In act two Gareth goes to King Arthur to ask permission to serve in his court. Lynette, a damsel in distress, comes to King Arthur to ask for a knight. Gareth begs King Arthur to allow him to right Lynette's wrong. Arthur consents.

In act three the dwarf comes to King Arthur and tells of Gareth's adventures. Lynette and Gareth enter. Lynette tells the King of Gareth's wonderful bravery and suggests to King Arthur that he make Gareth a Knight of the Round Table. King Arthur tells Gareth he must make promises to live pure, speak true, right wrong and follow the king at all times. Gareth, in clear ringing words, makes the promises and is nobly knighted by good King Arthur.

A Visit to the Academy of Music

My first visit to the Academy of Music was Monday, November 12, 1923. I boarded the train at Riverton station accompanied by the principal of our school, Miss Hannah C. Chew and John Reid, of the eighth grade. We arrived at Camden at three o'clock, then went on the boat for Philadelphia. On the way across the river we saw the first towers to the new Philadelphia and Camden bridge. Arriving at Philadelphia about three-fifteen we boarded the subway car and rode as far as Fifteenth street. We then walked down Fifteenth to Broad and Chestnut, then to the Academy of Music.

The Academy of Music is one of the oldest buildings in Philadelphia, and it has entertained some of the best known men in the United States. It was the first building where the Philadelphians heard great music. The Philadelphia Orchestra was there Monday playing in a series of children's concerts with Leopold Stokowski as leader. The Philadelphia Orchestra is one of the best known orchestras in the United States, and Leopold Stokowski is one of the best known musicians in our country.

Dr. Stokowski explained to the audience each number on the program. "Espaua" Rhapsody was a Spanish dance written to show the gay life of the Spanish people. "Fantasie" Brilliant, a trumpet solo by S. Cohen, was the next delightful number. The leader announced G. Simons had sprained his ankle and could not appear, but that a special number would be given by the "Elephant and the Mosquito." The elephant was a tuba and the mosquito the smallest instrument in the orchestra, the piccolo. This selection was very much admired. The next numbers were little dances so arranged as to remind one of fairy land as you could almost see the dancing fairies and elves.

Marche
Trepak Dance Russe
Danse Arabe
Danse Chinoise
Danse des Mirlitoim

I listened with great interest to the program and enjoyed it. We returned home about six thirty, greatly pleased with our visit to the Academy, and thankful to Miss Chew for making it possible for us to attend such a wonderful concert.

FRANK CONWELL.

Parent-Teacher Association

The November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school auditorium, Thursday, the fifteenth.

The meeting opened by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Mrs. Merrill and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Warren.

There was a musical program by Miss Anna James, Miss Grace Davis, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Turner.

Miss James and Miss Davies played a piano duet.

Mrs. Morris sang two songs with Mrs. Turner at the piano.

Mrs. Earl Barnes gave a lecture on "Good Books for Children."

She suggested several standard books for children.

She suggested "The Youth's Companion" and the "Saint Nicholas" as good current magazines.

For older children, the works of Ernest Thompson Seton, Louisa Alcott and Robert Louis Stevenson were suggested.

The sixth grade won the record for having the most parents at the meeting.

The seventh and eighth grade girls served tea after the meeting.

R is for Rachel learning to dance;
She'll show off her steps if you give her a chance.

Shark Sucker.

The shark sucker, a defenseless and retiring fish, fastens itself to the surface of the voracious shark, but it is not harmed by the shark, and the shark sucker does no harm to the shark, except to retard its motion. Shark suckers are carried about by sharks often to great distances. They attach themselves by a large sucking disk on the top of the head which is a modified spinous dorsal fin. If the shark is caught and drawn out of the water, these fishes often let go and plunge into the sea, swimming away with great celerity. This fish is found in Europe, on the coast of New York in the West Indies, in California, and in Japan, but is nowhere abundant.

Mining the Air for Gas "Ore."

From sinking shafts in the earth, engineers have advanced to "mining" the air for gases important in the commercial world. After liquefying the air by subjecting it to heavy pressure, the various elements are separated. Oxygen obtained in this manner is used in oxyacetylene torches for welding and cutting steel and iron. Nitrogen and argon are employed in filling incandescent lamps. Neon, one of the rare gases, which is very sensitive to electricity, is used for testing spark plugs and in the manufacture of electric signs. It is said that $80,000,000 is invested in air-products plants in America.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 25

CHRISTIANS CALLED TO BE MISSIONARIES

PRIMARY TOPIC—Telling Everyone About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working Together With Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—World-Wide Witnessing for Christ.

I. Sent by Christ (John 17:18).

Christ was sent into the world to save it. Just as He was sent, so He sends us. Just as He was obedient to the Father's command, so we should be to His command. That this might be possible Christ set apart himself, and that the disciples might be fit for this work they are to be sanctified through the truth of God's Word. That which fits the one called to represent Christ is the knowledge of God's holy Word.

II. The Great Commission (Matt. 28:16-20).

At an appointed meeting place in Galilee on a mountain side, Jesus appeared before the disciples and gave this great commission.

1. His Claim of Authority (v. 18). He does not claim to be merely the King of the Jews, but King of Kings and Lord of Lords. He stands clothed with the authority and power of the universe. Before there will be any great concern about evangelizing the world there must be an understanding of the power and might of Jesus Christ as Lord. The Lord must and shall be obeyed.

2. The Obligation Imposed (vv. 19, 20). They are to make disciples of all nations. The obligation of the Christian is not merely to preach the gospel to the Jews, but to all the nations. Those who accept Christ as Savior and Lord are to be baptized in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. By this means they openly acknowledge their allegiance to Jesus Christ as their divine Lord. To secure public avowal of loyalty to Christ is important. It strengthens the character of the confessor. They are also to be instructed to render obedience to all the commandments and requirements of the divine Lord.

3. The Divine Presence Promised (v. 20). To assure the disciples of the success of their undertaking, Jesus guarantees His presence at all times and under all circumstances. That which gives courage and encouragement to the missionary today is the assurance of the unfailing promise of the Lord Jesus Christ.

III. The Missionary Program (Acts 1:6-8).

It is essential that the missionary program be understood. The work incumbent upon the church is to witness of Christ's gracious salvation to all the nations. After this is done there will follow the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom by converted Israelites. This was not clear to the disciples, therefore they put the question, "Wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom of Israel?" They were right in thinking that the kingdom will be restored. The Davidic kingdom shall be established, but not till after the gospel of the grace of God is preached and the body of Christ is completed. Its realization is certain, but the time is unknown. Times and seasons are in the hands of God. The program which the disciples are to carry out in this present time is witnessing for Christ.

1. In Jerusalem (v. 8). This was done by the Twelve immediately following Pentecost.

2. In Judea and Samaria (v. 8). This was done by the disciples after the hands of the persecutors were laid on them. Not only the Twelve but many others took part in this.

3. Unto the Uttermost Parts of the Earth. Beginning with the first foreign missionary enterprise this work has been carried on with varying degrees of success till the present time.

Being Self-Centered.

Nothing is more wearing or a more fruitful source of unhappiness in the long run than to be self-centered. If our thoughts and plans, our hopes and fears, our ideals and ambitions all center in our own personal comfort and happiness, there must come many a day of infinite weariness and self-disgust when life does not seem worth living. Poverty or riches have very little to do with it. You will find just as many well-to-do people as poor, for whom life has lost its spice and enthusiasm. It is not a question of capital, but of character.

No Place Sweeter Than Home.

It is very dangerous for any man to find any spot on this broad globe that is sweeter to him than his home.—H. W. Beecher.

A Mind in Health.

The first sure symptom of a mind in health is rest of heart, and pleasure felt at home.—Young.

God Should Be There.

A cottage, if God be there, will hold as much happiness as might stock a palace.—J. Hamilton.

GOOD WILL

It's not what we have done for our customers, but it's the way we have done it, that has secured their good will.

It's not attending to the routine banking functions which we're obliged to perform, but it's the going out of our way voluntarily to be helpful to all, that has made people speak well of us.

Helpfulness, or courtesy in action, is not selective in this bank. We never hesitate before rendering a service, nor discriminate between customers—all are valued friends.

We cordially invite everyone to use this service which our depositors have found so helpful, and which has given to us our biggest asset—their good will.

A higher radiator with a trim apron at its base lends dignity befitting a closed car. The higher hood and enlarged cowl curving gracefully to the dash give a stylish sweep to its body lines, and afford additional leg room for occupants of the front seat.

All body fittings—window regulators, door grips, door latch levers, door lock, dome light—are finished in nickel. The upholstery carries a fine dark line on a soft brown background that does not easily show dust or dirt. Silk window curtains to harmonize for the three rear windows enhance the style of the car and add to the comfort of its passengers. See the new Sedan and other new Ford body styles at our showroom.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

THE BUZZY WAGON

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"THIS flivvering across country is not as joyful as it sounds," growled Mr. Bellamy, as he munched a dried beef sandwich.

"Don't call my Rolway a 'flivver'," objected Jack Bellamy. "What is that behind us?" Jack asked.

"A very disreputable car—probably bandits."

It was an ambitious little closed car, much the worse for wear. Suddenly there was a loud report and the Rolway listed a little. Jack stopped the car at the side of the road.

"Tire, front—flat," explained Jack as he got out and removed his coat.

Mr. Bellamy growled inarticulately as he, too, scrambled out. But he paused, petrified, as the shabby little flivver came up and stopped in front of them. A girl's charming face looked out at them. She sat at the wheel. She was wearing knickers and soft white blouse, with a round hat on her misty dark hair. Beside her sat another girl, fair and blue-eyed, in the same attire.

Mr. Bellamy, at heart a kindly man, beamed upon them and asked huskily:

"Haven't any water on board, have you?"

"I am sorry—we have drinking water, not enough for—"

"Don't want it for the car—dying of thirst," explained Mr. Bellamy.

"The poor thing!" exclaimed the other girl. "I will get it Dorothy."

At the sound of Dorothy's name the head of Jack Bellamy emerged turtle-wise from beneath the car, besmeared with grease and sand, his expectant eyes seeking the dark-haired girl. She saw him at the same moment and paled. His head vanished instantly to reappear at its proper height beside his father.

"Oh, see the pretty man," breathed Helen as she passed Dorothy with a thermos bottle in her hand.

"Idiot," groaned Dorothy, wondering what adverse fate had brought her to the same trail with Jack Bellamy, whose erratic father had refused to allow his son to marry a poor, unknown girl. The girl herself, an ambitious art student, was too proud to enter a hostile family, so she had sent Jack away. They had lost sight of each other, and now she and Nina Gray, jogging along in their beloved "buzzy wagon," journeyed from town to town and sketching by the way, had found themselves trailing a gorgeous car that blocked the narrowing road. And it had proved to be the car of Jack's objectionable and objecting parent.

Mr. Bellamy drank deeply from the silver cup again and again. It was a shining cup—Dorothy's christening cup—and bore her name. The horn-rimmed spectacles of Mr. Bellamy peered closely at the inscription.

"Dorothy Meares—Meares—that your name?" he asked sharply.

"Yes," admitted Dorothy, regaining her lost color.

"I knew a Meares. Old friend of mine. We used to hunt in Canada together, long ago. What was your father's name?"

"Nathaniel," she said reluctantly.

Bellamy looked disturbed, and his face softened. "He was my friend, and he has passed away, my dear?"

"Two years ago, at Seattle," she answered sadly.

He nodded. "I heard that. A brave man and a thoroughly honest friend. I am very glad to meet his daughter. My name is Bellamy, Angus Bellamy."

"Thank you, Mr. Bellamy. My father always kept your picture in his study, the one in which you were landing a monster trout."

"Jack, you never told me, sir." He frowned on Jack.

"Miss Meares is the young lady I wish to marry, dad," he said at last.

"What?" bristled Mr. Bellamy, trying to collect all the astounding facts before him and fit them into the puzzle of the undesirable girl Jack had wanted to marry. "What? What?"

"One of Dorothy's pies," irrelevantly broke in Helen Gray, as she came toward them with a huge flaky apple pie in her hands. "I am starved, and it is twenty miles to the next town—who will have a slice of pie?" She put her things on the running board of the Rolway. She flashed a silver knife and passed pieces of delicious pie around on paper plates.

Mr. Bellamy ate, and mutely passed his plate for more. "Anyone who can make a pie like this . . . the daughter of my best friend . . . Dorothy, my dear, go and make it up with Jack!"

Dorothy led Jack to the shabby, happy little car that she and Helen owned together. She bent, and swept a kiss at the open door.

"The dear old buzzy-wagon . . . it brought us right to you!"

"I want to kiss it myself," grinned Jack, "only it's a pity to waste 'em!"

Modern Requirement.

"Nowadays a man can hardly marry unless he can show the girl two licenses."

"Two licenses?"

"Yes, marriage and motor car."

OWNERSHIP OF WATER SUPPLY

Governor Silzer Outlines Plan in Talk to New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce.

COST PUT AT $150,000,000

Believes State Should Acquire Sources and Apportion Supply—Bonds of $70,000,000 for Present Works and of $80,000,000 for Development.

Trenton.—State ownership of the entire developed and undeveloped water supply of New Jersey was advocated by Governor Silzer in an address at the annual dinner of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce in Newark. To meet the expense of such acquirement the governor would issue state bonds, divided into two classes—bonds given in payment for going plants taken over and development bonds to raise money for new supplies.

The plants in operation would be the security behind the first class, the bonds to be held by the municipalities or companies whose plants were acquired. The second class of bonds would be sold in the open market. They would be tax free and bear a low rate of interest because of the high credit rating of the state.

The governor estimated that in the northern district of the state, where the most urgent need of water conservation and development was manifest, it would cost $70,000,000 to take over

CUTTING DOWN THE CLOUDS

Destructions of Forests Along Rivers and Creeks Would in Time Mean Just That.

It was Thoreau, who in writing of the destruction of the forests, exclaimed: "Thank heaven, they cannot cut down the clouds!"

Aye, but they can, and the worst of it is that they are doing it. Clouds, as everyone knows, are made of masses of vapor arising from damp places and joining other masses. These float in the air until, with certain changes of temperature, they grow so heavy that the atmosphere cannot hold them and then fall to the earth in the form of rain.

But if men destroy the forests that preserve and distill moisture and take the shelter of the trees away from rivers and creeks, so that they have to evaporate, they prevent vapor from forming and rising.—And if it does not rise it naturally cannot fall.

The immediate profit of such destruction may be great, but it cannot be great enough to justify itself. The man who is guilty of it may not live to realize the outrage he has committed, but his children and his children's children will suffer from it. I never told a sadder truth than this—that man cut down the clouds, says an exchange. He can change the forces of nature to suit himself, but woe unto him if he is not careful.

Scarf-and-Hat Sets for Girls

Every girl will rejoice in the cozy, becoming scarf-and-hat sets which are displayed in such variety this season. Some of them are knitted and many of them are made of woven fabrics, as light chinchilla, astrakhan, angora cloth and the like. The cap pictured has a tam crown and upturned brim and the wide scarf is gathered at the ends.

In the Mode for Misses

Why Not?

If certain medicinal spring waters benefit human beings why should they not be good for horses who have similar bodily structures? So thought a well-known English horse trainer and his ailing horses at Doncaster are now being supplied with water from the famous Harrowgate springs, in spite of laughter of his friends. Did not Epsom salts originate in a spring near the famous race course at Epsom? And, is there any significance in that fact?

Ouch!

The widower had made his proposal and was awaiting the reply. Haughtily she arose, and fixing him with a stern glance she exclaimed: "I couldn't marry a widower; the very idea! Once me walking in another woman's shoes!" Then the light of triumph gleamed in his eyes. "Madam," he returned "I had no intention of offering you my late wife's shoes—you couldn't get them on!"

SHOW IS GREAT SUCCESS

"Champagne and Oysters" Plays to Crowded Houses Two Evenings in Succession

"Champagne and Oysters," produced before a crowded house both Friday and Saturday evenings, proved to be what everybody calls a "howling success."

The play was staged under the direction of Mrs. Margaret M. Williams and was the crowning success of a long line of similar triumphs.

All of the cast portrayed their parts wonderfully well and it would be difficult to pick out one who was better fitted to his role than another. The special features also were gems in themselves and each performer received many encores.

Beautiful floral gifts were presented to each of the participants and the cast made a presentaation of a basket of flowers to Mrs. Williams.

Camp 23

Camp 23, P. O. S. of A., will observe Thanksgiving at its meeting this Monday evening. A big celebration has been planned and every member is requested to attend.

THREE HURT IN COLLISION

Two Palmya Women and Baby Injured at Edgewater Park

Mrs. George B. Shaner, of Lincoln avenue, her eighteen-month old baby and Mrs. Lewis K. Rodgers, of Philadelphia, Mrs. Shaner's mother, were seriously injured Tuesday afternoon when a car driven by Mrs. Shaner hit a tree.

The accident occurred just as the car was coming out of the railroad tunnel at Edgewater Park. Mrs. Shaner was driving very slowly thru the tunnel, when apparently the steering wheel locked, causing the car to head into a nearby tree.

It was only the bumper on the front of the machine that saved the entire party. The engine was driven toward the back of the car, and if it had not been for the bumper lessening the shock it would have gone far enough to go through the floor. All three passengers were on the front seat.

Mrs. Rodgers was badly cut about the face and body by flying glass, and a leg was broken in two places. She was taken to the Zurbrugg Memorial Hospital, Riverside, but will later be moved to a Philadelphia hospital.

Mrs. Shaner and baby are both confined to their beds at home. Mrs. Shaner sustained a broken nose and both she and the child received many cuts and bruises about the face and body.

The car is in a Burlington garage, completely wrecked.

Parry Notes

The Rev. and Mrs. C. Nelson Sperling entertained a conference of Moravian ministers and their wives Monday.

Cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Seibke next Wednesday evening at 7.30.

A Thanksgiving service will be held in the Moravian Church Thanksgiving Day at 10 a. m.

Fowler Shaffer and a number of other Parry boys were injured last Sunday when a machine in which they were riding overturned. Schaffer received a broken collar bone and wrist. He was the most painfully injured of the party, the others receiving bruises and small cuts.

Palmyra Borough Council Meeting

Palmyra Borough Council at its meeting Tuesday evening adopted a form of lease for determining the relations and duties of the fire company to the Borough in the use of the new fire apparatus.

Councilman Finney reported that the pumper had passed successfully all the underwriter's tests and moved that it be paid for. Mayor Weart had the check ready and passed it over.

A letter from County Detective Parker was read in which he gave the highest of praise to the Palmyra police for the capture of the colored sneak thief, Charles Jones, who had committed twenty-five robberies and terrified the county for some time. Jones was arrested single handed by "Bucky" Wallace several weeks ago and since has been sentenced to a long prison term.

In discussing the sewer financing, it was announced that 60% of the property holders had paid their first assessment in full and it is expected that about the same number will pay the final assessment immediately.

Such payments will be of great benefit, not only to the Borough, but to the citizens themselves, as it saves many dollars in interest for the public and at the same time improves the Borough's credit by reducing its bonded indebtedness. These bills can be paid in full at any time.

Councilman Lee's ordinance forcing the owners of vacant lots to keep them clear of rubbish and high weeds was passed.

George N. Wimer called attention to some tax difficulties with the Morgan estate, in which some of the new property owners had received tax and sidewalk bills which did not belong to them. The finance committee was instructed to take up this matter, and Mr. Wimer, who becomes a member of council January 1, was appointed a special member of this committee.

Eleanor Doris Smith

Eleanor Doris Smith, the four months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Stewart Smith, died very suddenly on Monday of this week. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from her parents' residence, 411 Garfield avenue, Rev. F. B. Morley officiating. Interment was made in Morgan cemetery.

Symmetry.

"Do you take plenty of exercise?"

Unorganized.

"How's the new minister getting along?"

"All right so far. You see he hasn't been here long enough yet for us to decide which faction is going to be for him and which against him."

Sufficient Reason.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Dr. Clarence Bawden Describes Ideal Parent at P. T. A. Meeting

Father's Night at the Parent-Teacher Association last Tuesday evening, was a great success and those present were surely given a wonderful treat in hearing Dr. Clarence Bawden, of Philadelphia, speak.

He took for his topic "Bringing Up Father," emphasizing the co-operation between home and school. He then outlined four types of Fathers not wanted in our homes.

1—Immoral Father, one who leads a double life, therefore neglecting his family.

2—Ignorant Father—one ignorant of the fundamental laws of life and better understanding of child life.

3—Indifferent Father—one who is too much absorbed in business to be bothered about the children and worry of the home.

4—Lazy Father — which we are thankful are in the minority.

Then he followed by the kind of Father we would like to see in every home, the Ideal Father.

1—Industrious Provider—a builder of the happy normal home.

2—Devout and Devoted Home Builder—down-right good character that the children will be proud to call "Dad" and form home ties that will hold when the children have to leave the "Love Nest."

3—Efficient Disciplinarian—to teach respect for the law in order to make better citizens of tomorrow.

Change 'Phone to Loud-Speaker Use

Way to Solve Problem That Has Confronted Many Radio Fans.

One of the most baffling problems which has confronted the radio fan is that of the loud-speaker. He equips his receiver with an amplifier, increases the plate voltage until it is well into the hundred volts, connects in his special loud-speaker 'phone, but only hears signals spoiled by rattling and scratching. Where is the trouble?

In the first place, it is impossible to use a loud-speaker with a set unless the signals are already very strong at the output. In other words, one should not expect the loud-speaker to amplify the signals. That is the duty of the amplifying unit itself.

Improved Speakers.

If the signals are already loud enough, it may be possible to use a loud-speaker. Any device which makes use of the receiving 'phones, so arranged that they may be fitted to a phonograph or other sound horn, is suitable, provided the user takes certain precautions. It must be remembered that ordinary receiving 'phones are not made for loud-talker use and that they will handle only a certain amount of current. If more than the rated amount is used, the diaphragms will be shaken up violently against the pole pieces, and a grating noise will result.

If large amounts of plate current are used, it will be necessary to alter the adjustment of the diaphragms, so that they will not hit up against the pole pieces. This can best be done by unscrewing the cap, taking off the diaphragm and cutting a very thin washer of paper, as shown in the illustration. First, a very thin piece is used, and the thickness may be increased by the use of additional washers, until all noise of a metallic nature, clearly traceable to the diaphragm trouble, is eliminated.

The operator should be sure to screw up the cap receiver on the diaphragm very tightly, so that there will be no possibility of the latter rattling or becoming loose. This is a very important point, which is sometimes overlooked.

Amplifying Unit.

If greater amplification is to be obtained from an amplifying unit, it may be secured by increasing the plate voltage to 60, or even 90 volts, instead of the 45 volts usually employed. But if a greater amount is used, the separation of the diaphragms from the pole pieces will have to be increased proportionately.

Somebody Needed Firing.

An old man approached the ticket wagon on the circus grounds and asked for three seats for the afternoon performance.

"Sorry, but we're sold out," the ticket seller told him.

"You mean to say you haven't even three seats you can sell me?"

"That's about the situation."

"Well," opined the old man with acerbity, "I call that derned poor management!"—Nation's Business.

Service.

Mrs. McGee (in hotel)—Are these sheets damp?

New Maid—No, ma'am; but we can sprinkle them if you wish.—Hotel Management.

Has Not Advanced.

"Maud says she is twenty-seven. That was the age she gave me several years ago."

"Yes; that's one thing that hasn't advanced."

Richer.

Bob—Can you see any change in me?

Johnny—No; why?

Bob—I've just swallowed fivepence.—London Answers.

OUR BIRDS IN DANGER

Audubon Society, Which Has Fought Battle for Song Birds, May Disband for Want of Support

Out of the recent annual meeting of the New Jersey Audubon Society and its Board of Trustees, and the subsequent conferences of the latter, comes word of a life and death struggle for the continuance of organized bird protection in New Jersey, because of apparent callousness.

The Society which took the field, a few hundred strong, in 1910-11 and carried through a bird plumage bill as strong as any known, defeating an opposition the previous year; the Society which fought the battle for the bobolink, prince of songsters and insect destroyers, for years and won in 1921 against odds declared impossible to overcome, only to have the fruits of victory stolen by political chicanery the following year; the Society that blocked several schemes to pay out the public money of the State in bounties on hawks and owls, the farmer's best protection against rats, mice and other vermin; the Society which has acted as a State information bureau on all pertaining to its wild bird life, establishing bird clubs in the schools, providing illustrated lectures on the birds of the State, maintaining a news service, and answering hundreds of personal inquiries, it appears, has been sustained by a paltry membership of from 1700 to 1900, during the thirteen years of existence, and its activities for the benefit of the whole people of the State made possible, only through the earnest and unselfish efforts of the little group of public spirited Trustees who have worked undaunted for the public welfare.

From the headquarters office of the Society, 164 Market street, Newark, it is learned that a final effort has been planned to bring an awakening conviction to the public mind, of the importance of bird life, both from an economic and aesthetic standpoint, through a field agent who shall strive to maintain the very direct, personal contact of the society with the public.

With this final effort to put the organization on such an effective and business basis as will insure its adequate functioning, the Society is issuing a warning to the people of the State, that if organized bird protection ceases through the failure of this effort on behalf of their interests, they may expect a quick revival of efforts to break down protective laws, to permit shooting of robins, mourning doves, flickers and other song and insectivorous birds, such efforts as the Society has repeatedly defeated in the past, and which, with organized opposition withdrawn would almost almost certainly prevail.

Massachusetts, Connecticut and other states not only adequately support Audubon Societies, but enable them to maintain bird sanctuaries, which act as centres of repopulation of bird life. If the people of New Jersey as a whole, do not regard the bird life of their State as worth $1.00 a year to them, there need be no complaint over the consequences that will surely follow an abating of organized supervision and effort for bird conservation.

GIRL RESERVE CONFERENCE

Y.W.C.A. Will Entertain Girls from Twenty Cities at Moorestown

Moorestown has been chosen as the meeting place for the Annual High School Conference of Girl Reserves of the Young Women's Christian Association movement. One hundred delegates from twenty cities including Philadelphia and Wilmington are expected, and will be entertained in the homes of Moorestown residents. The County Association is entitled to send two delegates from each of the six organized high school clubs.

The conference opens with supper at 6.30 on Friday evening, the 23rd of November and closes on Sunday afternoon with the vesper service. The meetings are to be held in the Academy and the Presbyterian Chapter House. On Saturday evening there will be a banquet, the High School Clubs of Moorestown acting as hostesses. On Sunday the Girl Reserves, dressed in uniform, will attend services at the Presbyterian Church, where the pastor, Rev. Dauerty, will preach a sermon especially prepared for them.

Included in the list of speakers is Dr. K. Frances Scott, of Smith College, who will give the health talk on Saturday morning. Miss Christine Galitzi, of Roumania, and a student at the National Training School for Y.W.C.A. secretaries in New York, will speak at the banquet.

TUDORS AND FORDORS

New Names Appear in Family of Popular Autos

Detroit, Mich., November 23rd—There's been a double christening in the Ford car family.

When the newest member, a smart sedan with two doors, arrived on the scene, announcement of which is just made, there came with it the question of a name.

For several days the folks just couldn't decide what to call the baby of the family until, from quite an unexpected source, there came the happy suggestion:

"Let's call it Tudor."

And Tudor it was christened, a name quite in keeping with the aristocratic appearance of the new car.

"How about re-naming the other sedan?" someone asked and then came this reply:

"We might call it the four-door Ford or — Ah, that's it! Ford—or, Fordor. Simple and expressive, isn't it?"

So we have two Ford cars with brand new names, the Tudor and the Fordor.

Final Accounting Made in Dorrance Estate

The final accounting in the estate of Arthur T. Dorrance, late of Riverton, and formerly one of the heads of the Campbell Soup Company, of Camden, was made to Judge Wells in the Orphans' Court on Thursday of last week by former Judge William D. Lippincott, counsel for the executors.

Dorrance's daughter, Mrs. Therese Dorrance Groves, her husband, Frederick Stanley Groves, and the Camden Safe Deposit and Trust Company were the executors of the estate,which involved a sum of $1,686,000. Judge Lippincott was allowed a counsel fee of $5,000 by Judge Wells.

In the Dorrance will, the daughter of the testator was bequeathed his real estate in Riverton, which included a fine residence, a bungalow and a quantity of land. She also received all his personal property and stocks and bonds in the Riverton Country Club.

The residue of the estate, real and personal, was bequeathed to the three executors to be held in trust for Dorrance's grandchildren who were living at the time of demise. The residue was to be divided into equal portions for them.

public and privately owned water works, of which $17,000,000 would go to private water companies and the remainder to municipalities. Full development of the north Jersey water supplies would entail the expenditure of approximately $80,000,000 more, or a total of $150,000,000, the governor said. He pointed out, however, that this development could be gradually done and would not require the immediate expenditure of the large sum involved.

Must Be Kept Out of Politics

The governor declared that if such plan was adopted it must be kept out of politics, otherwise it would be much better to continue under the present piecemeal policy.

"If this great project is to be made the football of politics, with all its accompanying incompetence, waste and extravagance," he said, "it had better not be undertaken. If the question is to be dealt with and solved by a legislature which of necessity cannot give abundant time and thought to a matter of this kind then we had better not undertake the plan.

"The commission to carry out such plan must not be composed of politicians or those favored by them. It must not be made up of men who are more interested in party success than in the public interest.

"It must not be made up of men who are interested in the expenditure of money in order to provide patronage or to aid favored contractors. The commission must be nonpartisan and made up of the highest type of men who can be induced to undertake this work, men who are willing to make some sacrifice for the people."

The governor said that he expected that objection to the plan would be raised. Among such objections, he declared, would likely be the statement that all the work outlined could be better done by private companies, that if the water companies disappeared the municipalities and the state would lose the taxes now paid by them, that provision for the immediate future might be made by the state developing the Wanaque, Ramapo and Raritan river sources of supply and that state commissions do not operate effectively and economically.

Calls Problem Serious

Before unfolding his plan the governor went at length into present conditions, pointing out that, while the condition in south Jersey was not yet acute because of the scattered population, the north Jersey section was facing a very serious problem. He said that in the counties of Bergen, Passaic, Hudson, Essex, Union and Middlesex, which he termed the metropolitan area, thirty-three systems were supplying water to a population of more than 2,000,000, the combined capacities of the plants being more than 368,000,000 gallons daily. The consumption was 244,000,000 gallons daily, he said, leaving only an 8 per cent excess were all the supplies pooled. During the recent drought the systems had practically no reserve worth considering.

Making an inventory of the sources already developed and in process of development, the governor gave the yield in gallons daily as follows: Pequannock River, 57,000,000; Rockaway River, 57,000,000; East Jersey Water Company, lower Passaic River, 50,000,000; Wanaque reservoir, under construction, 96,000,000; Hackensack Water Company at New Milford, 41,000,000; Elizabethtown, Plainfield-Union and allied companies, 27,000,000, and miscellaneous smaller supplies, 34,000,000.

The existing supplies of the East Jersey Company and the surface supplies of the Elizabethtown Water Company, he declared, had been unsatisfactory and should be eliminated as soon as practicable or at least placed in reserve for emergency or industrial use only.

Fixing the needs in 1960 at 640,000,000 gallons daily, the governor said, that with a supply now available of about 340,000,000 gallons it would be necessary to add within the next 30 years a daily supply of at least 300,000,000 gallons, or approximately 100,000,000 gallons, to the daily supply every eight years.

Seeking a source for such additional supplies, the governor said that there were approximately 900 square miles of unappropriated watershed from which about 750,000,000 gallons daily might be developed by the construction of the necessary works. Of the sources available the governor pointed out that only the upper Passaic and the upper Raritan were entirely within the state and could be developed without interstate considerations. The lower Ramapo, while in New Jersey, might require works in New York if developed most advantageously. The Wallkill and Pochuck rivers, rising in New Jersey, flow into New York, so that interstate rights are involved. The Musconetcong, Pohatcong, Pequest, Beaver Brook, Paulins Kill and Flatbrook, in Sussex and Warren counties, are all tributaries of the Delaware, and Pennsylvania would have to be consulted in their development.

The possibilities of the Delaware river for portable supplies and for industrial purposes were touched upon briefly by the governor, who said that a commission composed of three men each from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania had been created to study the uses of the stream and to make recommendations. He advocated the holding of the stream to prevent federal seizure and said he had directed the attorney general to fight any efforts of the federal authorities to take possession of it under the powers given it by congressional enactment.

Wants Shore Towns Protected

Needs of the shore towns from the Highlands to Belmar also were touched upon with the declaration that the people there must be protected both as to supply and from overcharging at the hands of private concerns.

Speaking of the Wanaque development, the governor said that tentative allotments of the available water from that source indicated that the 96,000,000 gallons would be needed almost at once on completion. It had been estimated that the north Jersey district would have a population of 6,100,000 by 1960, which would require a supply of 640,000,000 gallons daily.

"The state is confronted with a most confused condition—the shortage of water, the struggle between municipalities for supplies, the ownership of supplies divided between municipal and private control, destruction of supplies by pollution (- their acquisition by private interests and a retrogression due to the inactivity of municipalities," the governor said. "The necessary consequence of these factors is the throwing of the whole question into the political arena. Some action must be taken at once to remedy the present condition."

Discussing the advantages of state ownership, which he said he did not favor as a general rule, the governor said that one of the first benefits would be the reduction of interest charges which municipalities are obliged to pay on their water bonds. Newark, he said, would be relieved of interest charge on $17,000,000 worth of bonds. Another benefit would be the elimination of private profit.

Consider Jitney Pleas

During the proceedings before Part II of the supreme court involving application for writs of certiorari to review the proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission instigated by the Public Service Railway Company to enjoin the alleged illegal operation of jitneys the court announced that it would consider 88 additional applications for writs besides the two regularly listed on the calendar. The validity of the Kates and Elliot acts regulating buses and the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission are involved in the certiorari proceedings. Following adjournment of court Frank H. Sommer, one of the counsel for the bus owners, filed with the clerk of the court notice of certiorari proceedings in 126 cases, all involving similar questions. Decision was reserved in the two cases.

The argument before the court was concluded by William H. Speer, appearing for the Public Service Railway Company, and George L. Record, associated with Mr. Sommer and George F. Seymour, Jr., as counsel for the bus owners. Mr. Speer argued that the Public Service Railway is conducting a public utility for the convenience of the public and that it should not be jeopardized by unlicensed competition. He said that the legislature intended to protect legitimate corporations in the exercise of their franchises.

Sees Litigation as Endless

Mr. Speer contended writs of certiorari should not be allowed at the present juncture to review the cases pending before the Utilities Commission and that even should the court grant such writs they should not be accompanied by writs of supersedeas which would nullify action by the Utilities Commission indefinitely. He submitted that if writs of certiorari should be granted at intermediate stages of the proceedings there would be no end to the litigation. The Public Utilities Board, he declared, was created to function "and not to become a case of creeping paralysis." If its actions can be brought in the court at every stage, he added, interminable litigation would result.

The practical effect of such a course, Mr. Speer continued, would be to sanction unwarranted competition by buses, which could thus be prolonged until the Public Service Railway Company is wiped out of existence. Such a situation, he suggested, should not be tolerated by the courts.

The Service Must Go On

The addition of $3,500,000 worth of new equipment to our plant in southern New Jersey in one year is a stupendous undertaking.

Switchboards, cables, wire,—the elements which make up the telephone system,—are living things, alive with conversation.

While new telephones are being connected, while switchboards are being enlarged, while wire and cables are being added, there must be no interference with the service of our 87,000 telephones already in service in this territory.

The Bell Sytsem in South Jersey is being expanded with staggering amounts of new telephone equipment.

The plant must keep pace with the traffic, which is now 365,000 calls a day. It is estimated that in 1924 this volume will increase to 405,000 calls per day.

But there are no "growing pains"—no evidence to the user of the service that back of his telephone in the Central Offices, in the streets and along country roads, millions of dollars are being added.

PALMYRA WINS AT CAPE MAY

High School Champs Arouse Shore Village With Celebration After Victory

About twenty-five members of our squad left Palmyra, in Wood's large bus, about 8.45 a. m. We arrived in Cape May 12.30. After dinner, of egg and toast, we took a stroll along the beach. The game was called for 2 o'clock, on Columbia field. After dressing we took a look at the field and decided to change to bathing suits. The observation proved to be very unsatisfactory, for we found the gridiron to be exceeding slippery as it was covered with mud.

There was about an 85-mile an hour gale blowing across the field. This made the kicking and catching of punts almost impossible. The first period found both teams playing at a standstill, neither being able to gain much ground. Palmyra, however, scored a safety.

In the second period Cape May threw a pass, which was mixed up by one of its own men and after juggling the pill in the air, another of the shore players caught the slippery oval and took it over for a touchdown According to the local players the touchdown was illegitimate, but the referee could not see that way, so the reader will see that Palmyra had to play twelve men (11 players and 1 official).

In the third period Palmyra came back like bulldogs. Such ripping and tearing you never saw. Kersey advanced the ball from the middle of the field to the goal line, and after a line buck off left tackle took the pigskin over for a touchdown. A little later Richman repeated the performance. Neither of the goals were kicked.

The game was followed by a snake dance through the town by our boys, and what few friends accompanied them to the game. They woke the little town up with yells and their amusing antics. No one in the town was slighted, for even the stores were forced to receive the boys while on the warpath.

After the dinner the boys went to the movies, each being accompanied by one of the town's beauties. Many of the male sweethearts of Cape May were forced to stand alone on the corner on this memorable evening.

The return trip was started about 9.30. Three o'clock found the crowd just arriving in Palmyra.

BUY SEALS IN RIVERTON

Tuberculosis League Needs Over $5000 This Year. Seals Bought Out of County Does Not Help Here

On December 1st the National campaign for the sale of Christmas seals will open. Burlington County is organized for this campaign with 56 chairmen, representing every community. Mrs. Alexander C. Wood, of Riverton, is county chairman.

The mission of the Christmas seal is familiar to all. In fifteen years it has provided means to carry on the fight that has reduced the death rate from tuberculosis by one-half.

The population of our county is over 76,000 and the returns from the sale should be at least ten seals per capita. During the past year 112 new cases of tuberculosis were reported in Burlington County. Every penny seal that is sold helps to fight this disease. Those who commute to other States or counties and are asked to purchase seals at places of business should realize that only those seals bought in Burlington County can help to maintain the work in the county, and that by sharing the amount of seals purchased with each place the home county will not have their support.

The New Jersey Tuberculosis League, with which the Burlington County Tuberculosis League is affiliated, is assisting with a nutrition program being conducted, and has contributed $500 toward the maintenance of the rural dental clinic for county work.

By supporting this greatest of campaigns for better health we are making possible an extension of service from the State and National Association as well as an educational program and a nursing and clinic service.

The estimated requirements of the Burlington County Tuberculosis League for 1924 total $5,181.00.

Address of Audubon Society

Through an oversight last week we failed to publish the address of the office of the New Jersey Audubon Society in connection with its appeal for funds to enable it to continue its work for the protection of useful birds in New Jersey. Those who would like to assist in this very necessary, but often misunderestimated work, may communicate with the office of the Society at 164 Market street, Newark, New Jersey.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER

Moncure Biddle Tells Men's Club How Cheaply Rivers Can Produce Current

Moncure Biddle, of Philadelphia, an expert on hydro-electric plants, gave an interesting illustrated lecture Monday evening at the Men's Club in Christ Church Parish House.

Mr. Biddle explained in detail the complicated engineering features involved in the construction of water power plants but emphasized the cheapness with which electricity could be produced and sold once the machinery is in operation.

Various views were displayed showing the great concrete dams which have been built across the Susquehanna, St Lawrence and other large rivers for power purposes. The water turns huge turbines to which are connected powerful electrical generators. The flow of water is regulated automatically according to the load carried by the dynamos.

Following Mr. Bidde's address an invitation for new members was extended and as usual a large number of names were presented and enthusiastically accepted. The hall has been filled to overflowing for several meetings past and it looks as if a larger meeting place will have to be obtained if the club continues to grow as it has in the past.

William T. J. Purnell, president, announced that members of the club would be called upon to furnish the program for the next meeting which will be held a week before Christmas. For some time the idea has been advanced that many of the club members were capable of giving interesting talks about their own professions, so Mr. Purnell has decided to try out the pan.

At the close of the meeitng a much appreciated violin solo was rendered by Fred Schroepfer, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Frank A. Mathews, Jr. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the St. Agnes Guild.

COUNTY FIREMEN ELECT

Annual Meeting Held at Moorestown Last Week

Last week the Moorestown Fire department was host to the Burlington County Firemen's Association at the annual meeting of that organization.

There were over 200 delegates present, representing thirty-five companies from all sections of the county. The meeting was presided over by William B. Cramer, of Beverly, president of the organization. The welcoming address was made by Evan F. Benners, of Moorestown, the first president of the Association, in behalf of the local fire fighters. Following the business session an enjoyable sauer-kraut luncheon, with all the "fixings" was served.

The December meeting of the Association will be held in Marlton.

The regular election of officers and a board of directors for the ensuing year resulted as follows: president, David A. Brotherton, Burlington; first vice president, D. Harry Bishop, Florence; second vice president, Harry B. Ellis, Delanco; secretary, William S. Gingham, Bordentown; assistant secretary, William B. Cramer, Beverly; and treasurer, Albert G. Mayer, Mount Holly.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS

Expert Urges Co-ordination of Busses and Trolleys

Atlantic City, November 29—In a paper read before the New Jersey Utilities Association here, Harlow C. Clark, of the staff of Public Service Railway Company, which operates street cars in 147 New Jersey municipalities, declared that the hope of a permanent solution of the State's transit problem lay in the operation of cars and busses under one management with service so co-ordinated as to permit the most economical and efficient use of each.

Mr. Clark emphasized the necessity of co-operation between the public, State and municipal officers and the traction companies, in putting the State's local transportation system upon a basis where it can not only provide adequately for present demands but can expand to meet future public needs.

The motor bus, he said, was an important factor in the situation. Its great advantage from the fact that it permitted flexibility of operation, making possible quick changes in routes wherever good highways were provided. Its great limitation was its inability to handle "mass" transportation traffic during rush hours.

COOPER'S HOME DEDICATED

Prof. Phelps and Judge Wells Speakers. Rain Made Attendance Small

Having acquired the birthplace of James Fenimore Cooper, on High street, the Burlington County Historical Society opened and dedicated the building Friday afternoon with appropriate exercises.

Cooper was born in the High street home September 15, 1789. The building itself portrayed the workmanship of early American builders, and it now is literally filled with rare old furniture, books, and other antiques.

Among the interesting things on exhibition are the coat of arms of the Cooper family and the family history, stating Richard Fenimore came from Lingewick, Buckinghamshire, England to America and located in Willingboro township, Burlington County, in 1681. That they built on land formerly known as the Fenimore Farm, on Fenimore street, Burlington Island.

Other historically interesting articles are the door which came from the front of the Franklin printing office, the flag raised by Washington at Cambridge in January 1776. This flag also was used on the high sea at Fort Moultrie in June 1776 and was called the Grand Union Flag.

Spinning wheels may be seen and numerous pictures, among them being a portrait of Cooper's mother. A stove which was used by Washington and his soldiers is there, a calf yoke, a collection of "War of the Rebellion" books formerly the property of Captain N. W. Brooks, and a collection of surgical instruments used by Dr. D. Wills, who came to this country in 1677.

It is the purpose of the society to allow visitors at the home on certain days of the week.

Friday's celebration began at the Friend's Meeting House, High street, where Prof. William Lyons Phelps, of Yale College, spoke on "Fenimore Cooper, the Great American Author."

Following the service in the meeting house the celebration was continued at the home, where Judge Harold B. Wells, Bordentown, addressed the school children. Owing to the inclemency in the weather there were not as many children as had been anticipated.

Tea was served in the Cooper home and at 4 o'clock the Cooper home was dedicated by Judge Wells.

In connection with the opening of the home the annual meeting of the society was held there. Men are now to be accepted as members, the society having been formerly composed entirely of women and known as the Women's Historical Society.

Adjoining the Cooper home is the home of Captain James Lawrence of "Don't give up the ship" fame.

Mrs. Charles Allen, chairman of the Burington County Historical Society presided. Franklin D'Olier introduced Professor Phelps. Miss Alice D'Olier, sister of the former Commander of the American Legion, is vice president of the Society.

Bowling at the Country Club

The fall tournament at the Country Club has only four more weeks to run with four teams closely bunched for first place, only six games separating the first from the fourth team. One of the features of this tournament has been the showing made by Heisler's team, which finished in last place in the spring tournament but so far in this one, it has been in the lead right from the start and is only now three games behind Boehme's team.

The high game honor is held by H. R. Coe with a game of 222 pins, W. Ayres is next with 220 and H. R. Jones is third with 216.

	Won	Lost	Per.
Boehme	18	6	.750
Heisler	12	6	.666
Coe	15	9	.625
Jones	15	9	.625

Camp 23

The meeting Monday evening was followed by a banquet and entertainment. The latter being furnished by Collins and Phillips, Philadelphia entertainers. First on their program was a magician of exceptional ability. This act was followed by a number of baritone solos, which won much applause. Next came the usual farmer act. This, however, was much better than the average, for the "hecker" was a skilled musician. Then came some beautiful piano solos. These were followed by singing. Sheets containing all the latest popular song hits were distributed among the men, so all joined heartily in the singing.

Everyone present enjoyed the banquet, the whole thing being such a success it was decided to have something on this order once a month. The date for these entertainments and "feeds" will not be announced in advance, so in order to be sure of being present at these, members must be regular attendants.

The Camp's first dance, held in the hall last Saturday evening, was a success and another is being planned for the early part of January. This, however, will be more elaborate than the first, as everything will be done on a larger scale.

Will Try Out Bullet-proof Vest

Friday evening of this week, at the Riverton fire house, a test will be made of a steel alloy composition jacket or vest, which is said to be bullet-proof. In a recent test of this vest at New Orleans the newspaper report says that the wearer was fired at with a .38-calibre soft-nosed bullet, which flattened itself against the protecting garment. Next a .45-calibre steel-nosed bullet was used, and while the blow was stronger, the bullet did not pierce the vest.

Editorials

IT has been suggested many times that Riverton employ a man to look after the various borough interests, which now are more or less neglected, because what's everybody's business is nobody's business. For instance: this man could inspect curbs when they are laid, to see that the specifications are lived up to, could issue permits for plumbers to open streets and make it his business to see that the surface of the street is replaced in a condition as good as before the opening was made, which is required by borough ordinance; he could be building inspector, keep an eye open for broken pavements, inspect sewer construction, and in general keep in touch with everything going on in the borough where the town's interests are involved.

We are passing the suggestion on to the borough authorities for what it is worth.

An Open Meeting at The Porch Club

On Tuesday next, December 4th, at 2.30 p. m., a splendid opportunity is offered to all women in the community to broaden their views and add to their knowledge of the big activity women are engaged in—the "Promotion of Peace" and the Prevention of War.

Mrs. Otto Wittpenn, chairman of committee on International Cooperation for Prevention of War, and Miss Caroline LaMonte, chairman of State Federation Committee for World Peace, will both tell of the vast scope of this movement and the ideals they hope and expect to attain.

This will be an OPEN meeting—a most cordial invitation is extended to all citizens, men and women, to come and get the inspiration always gained by listening to those who are engaged in State, National and International work, as both Mrs. Wittpenn and Miss LaMonte are.

Jersey Towns

O Little Towns of Jersey,
As thro' your streets I ride,
I wonder if just happy folks
Within your homes abide.

For your windows full of posies,
And your gardens bright and gay,
Cast such a spell of sweet content
On all who pass your way.

In you I see my Dream-house,
Which I had built for two,
So I'll bring my Love to Jersey
And dwell in one of you.

Central Baptist Sunday School Will Present Novel Christmas Cantata

Great strides have been made by the Christmas entertainment committee of the Central Baptist Sunday School. A cantata has been chosen from a large selection and the committee, under the direction of Mrs. May Brown Jermon, assisted by Mrs. Milton M. Klotz, is busy selecting the talent for the many good parts.

From present indications this will be the best entertainment given in the Riverton and Palmyra Sunday Schools for some time.

P. H. S. Dance

A football hop, in honor of the Palmyra High gridiron warriors, will be given in the High School gym Saturday evening, December 1.

Very attractive floaters have been circulated throughout our twin-cities announcing the big affair. It states the "kick-off" is at 8.30 and the "sad news" is $2.00. Local dance attendants are requested to be present in the following manner, "Don't miss this scrimmage."

The music will be furnished by Pete Ross and his "Wanderers," with dancing from 8.30 to 12. The gym will be attractively decorated for the occasion and a big surprise is in store for all who attend. Carl Lutz, popular president of the School's Athletic Association, is in charge of the affair.

Y.W.C. A.

All members of the Y.W.C.A. are urged to be present at the next meeting to help with the Christmas carols.

Newcomers to Palmyra-Riverton are extended a cordial invitation to join and are assured of finding an atmosphere of good fellowship.

The privilege of the use of the Riverton Porch Club affords the Y an attractive and cozy meeting place.

Classes scheduled for next Tuesday evening are dressmaking and Bible study. Miss Arbus will be present.

Getting Attention.

BOARDING HOUSE FOR PETS

Institution for Care of Dogs and Cats Planned by Humane Society in Kansas City.

Plans for establishing a boarding house for pet animals, principally dogs and cats, were outlined recently by officials of the Wyandotte County Humane society. The plans will be submitted to the board of directors by Miss Sarah Jacobs, president.

The dog and cat boarding house would be self-sustaining. Miss Jacobs said that the plan contemplated would require the construction of suitable sheds, pens, a run or playground for dogs and a modern system for disinfectant to guard against disease.

"I have had more than 100 calls this summer," Miss Jacobs said, "from responsible persons who desired to pay for a temporary home for their pets while away on vacations.

"It appears comical to establish a boarding house for dogs and cats, but the proposal has a serious side. Many animals are valuable, and dogs roaming the streets while owners are away on vacations often become rabid."

Miss Jacobs said provisions would be made to give lodging to horses and cows if the demand was great enough. The boarding house would be under supervision of a veterinary surgeon.—Detroit News.

The Test of True Love.

A bride who had bobbed her hair read a fashion item which thoroughly frightened her. Her husband was reading in the library and when she managed to reach him she was shaking visibly.

"Why, my dear," he asked, "what is the matter?"

"Freddie, do you love me since I bobbed my hair?"

"Of course."

"But this magazine," whimpered the bride, "says that bobbed hair is rapidly going out of fashion."

"It may not know. But what of it?"

"Freddie, will you love me if I go out of style?"

Only Three Miles.

The pale-looking passenger had shown signs of nervousness throughout the voyage. Approaching the captain one day he asked: "How far are we from land, captain?"

"Oh, about three miles," replied that official.

"Only three miles," said the passenger. "Then it's funny we can't see it."

"Oh," returned the skipper, "that's because the water isn't clear enough."

These days, it requires a skillful architect of his own fortune to keep within the plans and specifications for saving money—yet many are doing it.—Uncle Phiander.

THE CONFESSION

By GERTRUDE WHITE

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

GLORIA PHELPS was modern from the "toppest" hair of her shining red mass of bobbed curls to the soles of the two-color sport sandals on her prettily arched feet. Her father gloated in his daughter's modernness. "Shows she has a mind of her own," he always said. And, "Gloria can't ever come to any harm, for she's just like her mother."

The newly-made mother had died shortly after she had given Gloria into the father's keeping. "You'll have to watch over her, dear, and she will take my place."

Mr. Phelps was at first inconsolable at losing his one pal; but, when the tiny two-weeks-old Gloria clasped his great finger in her frail little hand, and looked up at him with her mother's eyes, he found he had something very precious to live for. From that time on his daughter was his only passion. Her slightest whim was granted.

And it is no wonder that Gloria thought the world was made just for her. At times, she was all tenderness and consideration, which "showed her mother peeping out in her"; but these moods were few.

Small wonder that she resented the interference of her father's new secretary. He, one Brandon Cort, had been in their employ only two weeks, when he positively forbade Gloria to intrude upon her father during the hours of 11 to 2. This was a bombshell, and when Mr. Cort started to take her father on business trips, without even consulting Gloria, the little sparks of resentment were fanned into flames of intense dislike. Some day she would put this man in his proper place!

During the summer of 1922, Mr. Phelps' interests in London took an alarming turn, and it was necessary that he go over there at once. Gloria, her old nurse, Nanette, and Mr. Cort were to accompany him. Just the day before they were to start, Gloria rushed into the forbidden room.

"Where is my father, Mr. Cort?"

"He is out of town, Miss Phelps, and will not return until late tonight."

"Oh, bother! I did so want to see him. Well, you'll just have to cancel our passages, and get new ones for a week from tomorrow."

"And why?"

"Because my two new evening dresses will not be ready until next Thursday, and I shan't leave without them."

"Miss Phelps, I think you are the most selfish, self-centered girl I've ever known. If your father does not leave tomorrow, he will lose a great deal of money and, what is more, the respect and confidence of his men in London. That is not worth satisfying the foolish whim of a girl like you. We sail tomorrow, with or without you."

Gloria's only answer was a loud bang of the door, and the quick patter of heels up the hall. "She could be such a sweet woman with the proper training," thought Brandon to himself. "But how she does flare up!" He whistled, and smiled, then busied himself at his work.

Next morning Gloria, with Nanette, appeared all ready for the voyage, and nothing was said of the interview of the day before.

"Wonder what trump card she has up her sleeve," thought Brandon.

Mr. Phelps took to his stateroom immediately, and Gloria was left to the mercies of Mr. Cort. He proved to be an excellent sailing partner, and saw that Gloria wanted for nothing. At times he was as tender and as anxious to gratify her every wish as her father would have been.

"He really is human, after all," was Gloria's explanation of the change in his manner toward her. "Well, I'll bury the hatchet for the time being," she confided to Nanette, "but I'll fix him yet."

But the fourth day out Gloria became dreadfully ill. Each moment she grew worse, and nothing helped her. "Oh, Nanette, I know I'm going to die, and I don't want to."

"There, dear, just lie quiet. You probably won't die. Just as many get better as die." (This was a poor way to comfort Gloria, but Mr. Cort had advised Nanette not to baby the sick girl. She would enjoy life in a better way, for thinking she might lose it.)

"Nanette," whispered Gloria that evening, "I'd like to see Mr. Cort. Ask him to come in—please."

Five minutes later Brandon was looking at the most pitiful little creature he had ever seen. Gone was the glorious Gloria, and the usual shining bright eyes were dimmed with real tears. Brandon's heart suddenly did all sorts of queer things.

"Brandon," she said softly, "I'm going to die. Perhaps you'll get some satisfaction out of seeing me do something I don't want to do. You've just got to know that I've done one big thing during this playful, all-holiday life of mine. I've fallen in love with a real man. I wouldn't ever tell you, but it can't hurt anyone now. Brandon, I love you, and I've got to die."

"You little darling," crooned Brandon. "You can't die now. You mustn't leave me. I love you, too, Gloria, and I want you to live for me."

"Oh, Brandon, I am the happiest girl. And, maybe, for once, I can do something that someone else wants me to do just as much as I want to do it myself."

Brandon left, a very happy man; for though he knew that seasickness was very alarming, it was seldom fatal.

Rain or Shine.

"Please, Mr. Grafto," said the caretaker of the flats, "the gentleman on the next floor presents his compliments and says, seeing as how you can foretell the future, would you be so good as to let him know how long it will be before your bath stops overflowing through his ceiling?"

Just a Week's Run.

"What sort of a baseball team has your town?"

"Well, sir, the first week of the season we were sure we were going to win the pennant, and now there's hardly anybody in this town can tell you whether the team is in fourth or sixth place."

FORBIDDEN GOAL

By ELOISE C. RIVERS

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MILDRED GLOVER, fresh and pretty in a navy-blue dress of sheerest voile, tapped a slim sandaled foot upon the granite curbing of the sidewalk until the car for the subway jangled along.

Mildred, at twenty, had received her first thrill. It was, unfortunately, a second-hand romance, and an old, familiar story. But to Mildred, experiencing for the first time the powers of her feminine beauty, it was a highly perfumed, intoxicating romance. For instance, the night before, when all the other members of her family fanned and fussed on the little screened-in porch, Mildred, lying in the dark upon a humpy mattress in her cramped bedroom, had brought forth in such clear detail every little bit of her romance that the ugly room and even the intense heat had faded into oblivion.

The firm of brokers for which Mildred worked consisted of a senior partner and a junior partner. The senior partner was gray, grave and aloof. The junior partner was dark, charming, considerate, appreciative of a nice bit of work—and friendly. So friendly that the day before, when Mildred had taken in some letters to be signed, he had expressed dismay that a rush of business made it necessary for the girls to work during the hot afternoon. Couldn't he drive Mildred down to one of the beaches that evening to cool off? Mildred had stammered a polite refusal. The next evening, then—he insisted—and Mildred had agreed.

The little kink that made it a second-hand romance was the fact that the junior partner was married.

Two horridly persistent voices argued rapidly inside Mildred's head while the car jangled along to the subway.

"And what's the harm in a kiss?" derided the second. "Remember, he tried to kiss the switchboard operator and she slapped his face."

Across the car, a commuter was absorbed in the last page of his morning Post. The front page sprawled its inviting headlines toward Mildred. She read them rapidly; then her gaze moved upward to the Daily Quotation at the top of the page, a feature of the paper for some time past.

Aim to attain your goal, but know you this,
Rather than harm your soul, 'tis best to miss.—R. N. L.

She read it but once. The words seared themselves into her brain like live, burning coals. The car suddenly became suffocating. She left the subway and walked an extra block to her work.

"Aim to attain your goal . . ." Long ago she had decided that her goal would be to get the most of fun and happiness out of life.

"Rather than harm your soul, 'tis best to miss." Would it harm her soul, she asked herself, unhappily. Oh, it would, it would, she decided honestly. She made her lame excuses to the junior partner when she went in for his dictation. She was sorry, but her mother had unexpected guests and needed her at home that evening. Maybe some other time.

The senior partner cocked one eye at her and smiled quizzically, as if to say, "There won't be any other time, my dear."

Toward noon Mildred saw him bending confidentially over the desk of the new switchboard operator. They apparently reached some sort of an amicable decision, for the operator smiled to herself the rest of the day. Mildred saw them go out together at closing time, and banged out on her typewriter, with maniacal speed, a whole page full of "VIRTUE IS ITS OWN REWARD."

The motto was very disconsoling.

The next morning Mildred appeared at work buoyed and freshened by a heaven-sent east wind instead of romance. She was still a little bit sore to think of the good ride she had missed because of a newspaper's Daily Quotation. All night long she had heaped bitter invectives upon the head of this unknown moralist, "R. N. L."

The girls in the dressing room were talking in low, excited tones.

"Haven't you read the morning's papers?"

Mildred hadn't. She had privately determined never to read another one.

"The junior partner was in an accident last night. Had the switchboard operator out with him."

Mildred paled.

"Not—killed?"

"No. But they're both in the hospital. Woof! Any girl who would take a chance going out with a married man ought to get spilled."

Mildred walked soberly across to her desk. As she bent over her machine, she closed her eyes for a moment and sent a silent message flying through space.

"I don't know who you are, 'R. N. L.,'" she breathed, "but I owe you a big lot for that quotation."

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

POLITE LAWYER

Sometimes diplomacy defeats its own purpose, as in the case of the old fellow who was enthusiastic in praise of the busy lawyer from whose office he had just come after a purely social call.

"That fellow, for a busy man," he declared earnestly, "is one of the pleasantest chaps I ever did meet. Why, I dropped in on him jest to pass the time o' day this mornin', an' I hadn't been chatting with him more than five minutes before he'd told me three times to come and see 'im again."

HOW 1,000,000 TONS OF COAL YEAR BY YEAR ARE HANDLED AND FED BY MECHANICAL MEANS TO HUGE MOUTHS OF ELECTRIC POWER PLANT FURNACES

One million tons of coal a year. For every day in the year, Sundays and holidays included, 2,740 tons. For every hour of the day 114 tons. Measured by any ordinary standard, for household use, for instance, these figures are tremendous. Imagine a cellar or furnace big enough to handle 2,740 tons of coal a day, or more than 100 tons an hour! Figuring on one man shoveling a ton an hour, it would require 100 men shoveling ceaselessly to perform the task.

Yet this is the rate at which the huge boilers that supply the steam to drive the turbines in the fourteen generating plants of Public Service Electric Company demand food. To deny these fiery caverns fuel for one hour would mean that these almost human mechanical agencies would produce just so much less electricity for power and light to the residents of New Jersey. Therefore they must be fed with unerring regularity.

But at the larger stations none of the work is done by hand. From the time the coal leaves the mines until it is transformed into electric current hundreds of miles away, it is entirely mechanically handled. That is, no shovel, pick or other tool, wielded by hand, touches it. It is dumped, lifted to enormous hoppers and stoked into the furnaces by machinery, much of it driven by electricity.

Where does this coal come from, how does it come, and how is it handled after it arrives at the power stations?

Let us start with the coal at the mines, over in Central Pennsylvania, and follow it through. To simplify the proceeding, we will take Essex Station on the Passaic River at Point No Point, Newark, as the objective point. This is the largest station Public Service has at present, containing five gigantic turbo-generators, with a capacity of 155,600 kilo-volt-amperes. Soon after the first of the year there will be available at this plant 35,300 additional KVA. There are being burned in Essex more than 900 tons of coal a day, or an average of thirty-seven and one-half tons an hour—more than twice as much each hour than most houses burn in an entire year.

Fifty Cars of Coal

A train load of coal—fifty to sixty cars—owned by the company (the company has 600 of these cars so as to be independent of the railroads in transporting this most vital necessity) leaves the Pennsylvania mines on its way eastward. If the time of year is such that the weather is mild, the trip to South Amboy, where most of the coal is first taken, is likely to be without incident. But occasionally in the winter the coal freezes solidly in the cars before its arrival. In this event each car goes through a thawing house. After the frozen fuel is thawed out, the car is tipped upside down by a mechanical arrangement and the coal dumped into a chute. From the chute it is loaded in barges holding from 500 to 1,000 tons each and these barges are taken up Newark Harbor and the Passaic River to Essex Station.

At Essex the barges are anchored almost directly under the hoisting tower at the extreme left or easterly end of the station. The tower is about 280 feet above the river and the coal is lifted from the barges to the chutes near the top of the tower by two clam shell diggers. These diggers thrust their huge jaws into the coal pile, scoop up a load of coal (about two tons at a mouthful) and are then hoisted to the chutes at the top of the tower at a rate of 1500 feet a minute. The scooping and the hoisting are done by electricity, the controlling switchboard and operator being also at the top.

Through the chutes this coal goes to the magnetic separator which extracts foreign bodies, such as nails or pieces of iron, which would injure the coal crushing machinery into which the coal descends after it has passed the separator. The coal then drops to a system of conveying belts which are equipped with a device called a tripper which takes the coal off the belt and delivers it to the bunkers. From the bunkers, over the station, the coal drops through a pipe which feeds the lorry crane. When the hopper on the lorry crane is filled, the coal in it is weighed and the crane is moved on tracks to the front of the boilers where it is dumped into the hoppers over the plunger boxes of the mechanical stokers.

Some of the coal goes directly to the power stations by rail, in which case it is dumped through the bottoms of the cars into a huge pit and carried by conveying belts to the top of the hoisting tower and thence to the bunkers as before.

Mechanical Stoking

Probably the most interesting phase of this coal-handling process is the underfeed mechanical stoking system. After the coal is dumped into the hoppers it slides down in front of the plungers and is rammed through retorts until it reaches its place under the burning fuel. The plungers are operated by heavy crank-shafts which in turn are driven by an electric motor.

The grates in the furnaces are a series of cast iron plates which lap over one another like shingles on a roof. There are spaces, or holes, between the plates through which air is pumped by a force draft fan to accelerate the flame.

The temperature in these furnaces runs up as high as 2500 degrees Fahrenheit and the fire bed at the front end is from three to four feet deep. The incandescent burning fuel on top is replenished throughout the entire retort length from beneath.

In the underfeed type of stoker, when the coal leaves the retorts it is pushed under the fuel already in the furnace and the heat drives the gas out of the new fuel. As the gas passes up through the red hot mass it is ignited. This leaves nothing but carbon which is commonly called coke. As the gas has been driven off, the coke, when it reaches the ignition point, burns without smoke, thus giving a very hot fire.

As the grates are buried by the green coal coming in at the bottom and as the air necessary for combustion is admitted through the perforations of the grates, they never get excessively hot.

Different From Old Days

Very different is all this from the old days when human stokers, their faces streaming with sweat, and working in shifts, shoveled the coal into the fiery mouths twenty-four hours a day. Then the boiler room was hot and smoky and noisy, with the atmosphere heavy with coal dust and ashes. Now the stoker rooms of the great electric power stations are clean as a parlor floor, there is comparatively little noise and the quarters are so cool that one scarcely realizes that there is any fire at all under the huge boilers. And yet the terrific heat in those very boilers generates such a volume of steam that its velocity through the pipes from boiler to turbine is at the rate of two miles a minute.

As the mechanical stokers work by electricity, there are few men needed to operate the boiler room. The series of plungers moving back and forth to ram the coal home through the retorts wriggle like a lot of snakes and are almost as noiseless.

Thus the coal coming from the mines is made to perform its work of generating hundreds of thousands of kilowatts of electric energy so that the people of New Jersey may have power for their factories and their trolley cars and lights for their homes.

WOMEN STILL DOWNTRODDEN

Management Won't Let the Oppressed Creatures Even Smoke in This Office Building.

Poor woman! She gained the right to vote, to smoke, to go to boxing matches, to participate in athletics, to enter business—in fact, she's on a par with man in every field of activity, says the New York Sun and Globe. And not on an equal footing with man, but surpassing him in many things, she insists.

But, alas! In one instance at least she is doomed to defeat. The scene is a downtown office, where smoking is prohibited. Yes siree, not even the manager can use his favorite weed while sitting at his desk, but must join the office boy and lowly salesman out in the corridor when he desires to smoke.

Not so for milady, who has just as much work and responsibility as at least half of the office force. She likes a "drag" occasionally, too, but where can she have it? The rule denies her the privilege of deriving inspiration from the weed while she types, and only the men occupy the hallway and in the lounging room the matron absolutely refuses the girls the right to smoke. Poor girl, what good do women's rights do her?

Few Aliens in New Zealand.

At present in New Zealand less than one-half of 1 per cent of the population consists of aliens, according to a recent report to the Department of Commerce from Vice Consul John E. Moran, Wellington. Of the 5,440 aliens, more than four-fifths remained in North island, where climatic conditions were more to their liking. The majority of the Syrians, centered in Dunedin, are merchants and manufacturers of clothing, while the Indians follow no particular occupation. Of the 3,270 Chinese registered, 21 per cent are merchants, 39 per cent market gardeners and 12 per cent launderers. The aim of the New Zealand government is to enforce the immigration restriction act and prevent as far as possible an undue increase over the present percentage of any aliens.

Sky Birds.

Some birds with strong voices are exceedingly shy of showing themselves, like the nightingale and the corncrake, and the grasshopper warbler, which is as timid as a mouse, and lives a secretive sort of life under cover of grasses or sedges. Like the nightingale, it sings its best under the cloak of night; or perhaps sings its very best just as dawn is flushing. Then it mounts to some little elevation, a twig or the top of a sedge, and, with quivering form and widely-opened bill, with head turning from side to side, shrilly utters the strange song which earned it the name, "Reeler." At the least alarm it vanishes.

Repented.

One hundred and sixteen paintings by famous old masters were recently sold in London at Christie's auction rooms for $938,178. They belonged to Sir Joseph Robinson, the South African magnate. He bought them all back himself except eighteen. When he ordered the treasures to be sold he had not seen them for years, but when they were taken out of storage he fell in love with them again and tried to get Christie's to cancel the sale. He failed and had to buy them in himself. Some had increased greatly in price.

Woods in Autumn

By Grace E. Hall

The woods in Autumn are a wordless song
That floods my heart with throbbing melody;
Colors of flame and bronze the notes prolong,
And russet and red complete the harmony.

The woods in Autumn are as paintings hung
Against the sky, with colors bold and bright;
The creeks are silver ribbons, deftly flung

The woods in Autumn are an artist's store
Of treasures, laid upon a thousand hills;
October opens wide the magic door
Into the great salon, that charms and thrills.

And woods in Autumn are a sermon, too,
Teaching that death must come to everything;
But that when death and earth-decay are through,
We shall be called—to greet another Spring.

SOCIETY FROWNS ON HATRED

Civilization Has Not Abolished Any of the Vices, However, Declares Writer.

Civilized society has not yet abolished any of the vices, perhaps because it would be dull without them; but it does its best to eliminate passions, and in one case has virtually succeeded, Stephen Gwyn declares. Hatred as a passion, as something which takes and shakes a man, has no longer any real existence for the spheres of life in which urbanity is the rule. In such regions to avow your love is rather like undressing in public, but nobody is shy of proclaiming a hate, because what passes with them for hate, is not the crude stuff. Love always retains some of the primitive, all conquering sway that Sophocles wrote about in another highly civilized society two thousand years ago; and even today no drawing room is without apprehension that the creature may break loose. It is not altogether a disagreeable apprehension; the discouragement of love is never whole-hearted; everybody, some one said, loves a lover, and at any rate every decent person does. But hate with its acrid atmosphere carries discomfort into sensitive circles; its sudden explosion affects people like a bad smell, and so manners, much more powerful than morals, have brought it very tolerably under control. The task has been easier because hate is not a necessity of nature; breeding earth has no use for it; and it runs counter to that instinct of association which is part of man's gregarious temperament.—North American Review.

WAYLAND, THE SMITH SAGA

Wayland, the smith, was a hero of old Teutonic origin. His myth assumes numerous forms. It appears in Scandinavian, Anglo-Saxon and German poems. The name probably signifies the "skillful" or the "artful" one.

Wayland seems to be a deification of the smith, whose calling was considered among the highest. Episodes in the story narrate that Wayland was, like Vulcan, lame, and, like Daedalus, manufactured wings and could fly. These are thought, however, to have been late introductions from the classic mythology.

In France, too, Galans, the smith, was known. The megalithic monument in Berkshire, England, called "Wayland Smith's Cave," with the character of Wayland, empiric furrier and peddler, is familiar through Scott's "Kenilworth."—Detroit News.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Near East Relief,
151 Fifth Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen :-

It is with a good deal of satisfaction that I commend your proposal to observe an International Golden Rule Dinner Sunday, on the second of December, 1923. I feel sure that this suggestion will meet with very widespread approval and will bring more closely to mind the charitable requirements of those who are prosperous to those who are in adversity. It suggests not only a practical method for help, but the highest expression of sympathy by sharing for a time the privations of others.

Cordially yours,

Calvin Coolidge

The plans for the observance of Golden Rule Sunday call upon the people of America to serve a menu in their homes similar to that served in the orphanages in the near east, the difference in cost of the orphanage menu and the ordinary meal to be contributed to orphanage work overseas. The observance is very appropriately fixed for the Sunday following Thanksgiving. Having on Thursday partaken from well-laden tables as a token of rejoicing in the prosperity of America, it is fitting that on the following Sunday people give special consideration to the needs and distress of those who are less highly favored.

REFUGEE MEAL FOR AMERICANS

Whole Country Asked to Adopt Orphanage Menu for Just One Sunday Dinner.

RELIEF HAS SAVED MILLION

People of All Nations Will Figuratively Gather Around Same Table as Practical Sign of Sympathy With Near East Sufferers.

How many comfortably fed, clothed and housed Americans will sit down to a Sunday dinner of rice, corn grits and soup—typical orphan fare—on December 2, as a practical test of the golden rule?

The question is asked today by Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of Near East Relief, who is in charge of the plans for the general observance throughout the United States of "Golden Rule Sunday." In an interview, Mr. Vickrey said:

"If American people will renounce for one meal the food they are accustomed to eat, and contribute the difference in cost to the support of starving children in the near east, the situation in Greece, Armenia and Palestine will become infinitely more real to them.

"I have recently returned from several months in those countries. America is a name to conjure with there. Bitter reproaches are heard against nearly every other country, but none against us. That is because people realize that Americans have gone to them with a helping hand and a square deal, rather than with the mailed fist.

"America could well have afforded to have spent every penny of her relief funds as a long-sighted, cold-blooded business proposition. The good-will that has resulted from relief work in the near east is of incalculable value. When these orphans we are caring for today grow to manhood, they will become the leaders of their nations and their eyes will turn toward America.

"At least a million persons in the near east would not be alive today had it not been for American aid. Even today, 100,000 persons are being cared for day to day by the Near East Relief, mostly women and children who would probably perish in a few days or weeks if the work ceased.

"Our workers are now concentrating not only on the physical care of our 50,000 orphans, but on their industrial training as well. At the age of 16, when an orphan leaves our care, he is equipped to enter some useful trade or business. In Nazareth there are boys working in our carpenter shop a few feet from the spot where Christ toiled. In Macedonia, hundreds of Greek orphans are learning farming in the atmosphere where Paul spent many years in establishing the first European churches.

"Five dollars a month provides food and physical necessities for an orphan, and $100 a year provides for his education as well. The observance of Golden Rule Sunday by a million American families will provide enough funds for thousands of orphans.

"When people break bread together, they become friends. On this International Golden Rule Sunday people of all nations figuratively will gather around the same table, partaking of the same food representing the menu which the unfortunate children of the near east hope, by the benevolence of the West, to eat 365 days in the year. But even this simple menu the orphans cannot have unless the rest of the world practices the Golden Rule."

FOURTEEN NATIONS SUPPORT COOLIDGE

European Countries Join American President in Backing Golden Rule as Practical Program.

Geneva, Switzerland.—Officials of relief organizations from fourteen European countries have asked their governments and peoples to join in a great international movement to save the destitute orphans and widowed mothers in those countries of the Near East that have suffered from recent wars.

Dec. 2 has been set aside as "Golden Rule Sunday." On that day people will be asked to observe the broad principle of the Golden Rule by foregoing their usual noonday meal and eating instead the frugal ration usually partaken of by the parentless children of Greece, Armenia and Palestine.

The world's people will then be asked to contribute the difference in the cost of the two meals to the principal relief organization in their country, to be administered for the needy children.

Notable people in Europe who will co-operate to give the day an international aspect are King George of Greece, Prince Carl of Sweden, ex-Premier Clemenceau of France, M. Paul Hymans and Dr. Alice Masaryk.

AMERICAN FOODS BEST SAYS FAMOUS DOCTOR

Athens.—American standard foodstuffs are the best in the world, says Dr. Mabel Elliott, famous woman physician, who for the past two years has been medical director of American orphanages in the Near East. From the standpoint of purity and high food value, she asserts that no European nation can compete with the United States, and for this reason she insists on American products in all orphanages and hospitals, in order to meet adequately the needs of undernourished children.

Dr. Elliott's annual report, summing up the results of the care of 50,000 children in orphanages as well as clinics for 50,000 additional children in refugee camps and homes, says:

"Stable American foods are now the backbone of all our menus for rebuilding children who became weak and anaemic during the refugee exodus from Asia Minor. Our menus contain, not only bread made from American flour, and corn grits in porridge and stews, but also the liberal use of corn syrup. American condensed milk and American cocoa and macaroni, thus making a balanced ration to meet all the scientific requirements as to relative food values, calories and vitamines.

The favorite orphanage pudding is composed of corn grits with cocoa, sweetened with corn syrup, and made more nutritious and palatable by adding a sauce of American condensed milk. Such a pudding has a high food value and is very economical—no other equivalent food value could be obtained from other foods at twice the cost. Moreover, it is so palatable that children eat it eagerly several times a week, and never seem to tire of it. The American people, in providing for these parentless children such pure and wholesome foods from their own tables, are certainly making a practical application of the golden rule."

Dr. Elliott has recently returned to America to arrange for the publication of a book of her experiences under the title of "Beginning Again at Ararat."

To Use Odd Parts for Loud Speaker

Sections From Automobile May Be Utilized in Construction.

This loud-talker, with a single pole and a field coil taking one-half ampere at six volts, is very easily built from odd parts and with very few tools.

The core of the field magnet is made from a section of an automobile rear axle and is wound with four pounds of No. 20 D. C. C. wire. Fiber ends three-sixteenths of an inch thick are provided for the core, as shown. A "U"-shaped bar of wrought iron, with the dimensions as shown, is used as the supporting medium.

The lower end of the core is fastened thereto, and a ring, made from an automobile rear hub, is attached to the top by means of two machine screws. Two pieces are turned up from hard wood, as shown, to be used for holding the diaphragm. The latter is composed of sheet aluminum .015 of an inch thick, and to the center is fastened a brass tube 23.32 of an inch inside diameter by half an inch long by means of a small brass machine screw.

The walls of this tube are .010 of an inch thick. This tube is wound with 48 feet of No. 36 enameled wire, and leads are brought out therefrom to be connected to the secondary of the step-down transformer. Before assembling a cardboard tube is slipped over the field winding for protection. The entire unit is mounted upon a piece of hard rubber, which in turn is mounted on a wooden base. A single pole, single throw switch is also mounted on

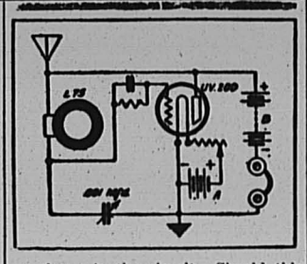
Another panel of hard rubber or other insulating composition is mounted on the front of one leg of the permanent magnet and four binding posts attached thereto to provide connections.

An automobile coil was used for the step-down transformer, the secondary being connected to the receiving set and the primary to the moving coil.

Applying six volts to the field, only .46 of an ampere will be drawn, which allows the use of the same storage battery that supplies the filament current. The apparatus has been built and works very well, and it will well repay any amateur to construct it.



as shown in the circuit. Should this coil not respond to the wave lengths desired, insert the next size coil, the 100. The .001 variable condenser tunes in the wave and helps to build up the signal strength. The tube shown is the UV-200, but since this needs a six-volt battery the UV-199 can replace it in order to cut down the consumption of the battery. The dry battery will respond very nicely if employed in this circuit.

Use Circuit Receiver With Dry Cell Tube

A large number of regenerative receivers suggested from time to time are single circuit arrangements of a more or less freak nature. They all depend upon the same principle of transferring energy from the plate circuit of a three-electrode vacuum tube to the grid circuit. This transference of energy may be accomplished in a large variety of ways, and between the various methods there is very little to choose. It is because of this fact that the circuit using regeneration is to be preferred.

Effective action may always be predicted beforehand and the tuning may be adjusted for best results. In other circuits the adjustment is most difficult. The single circuit arrangement about to be described does not contain any mysterious tuning, but is a very efficient DX receiver.

The primary tuning inductance consists of a 75 honeycomb coil connected

In True Tailored Style

Near of kin to the tailored suit is this trim and dignified street frock made on the simplest lines of poiret twill. For adornment it has a neck-to-hem panel at the front, made of a plaid material, and similar panels in the sleeves. Small, round buttons below the collar and a narrow girdle of the twill, finish it in true tailored style.

Chic Current Style

Every woman who aspires to owning a youthful chic wrap has only to choose the handsome box coat pictured here. The design cannot be improved upon. It is made of astrakhan cloth in two colors, but might be copied in a different fur fabric and be equally handsome. The huge, fine buttons are used for ornament, and the smaller ones for fastening.

THE CRADLE OF LIBERTY

Independence hall, oft referred to as "The Cradle of Liberty," in historic Chestnut street, Philadelphia, where "Uncle Sam" was born more than 146 years ago, stands and looks very much as it did when, on July 4, 1776, the liberty bell rang out to the world from its place in the tower the news that the colonies in America had agreed to withdraw from the rule of England.

The plans for this venerable brick building, which is 100 feet long and 44 feet wide, were laid in 1729. Except for the wings and the tower, the structure was completed a few years later as a home for the Continental congress.

Possessed of a simple dignity and a quiet charm, Independence hall is a substantial and imposing relic of Colonial architecture—perhaps the most historic of all American buildings. To and through it come and go annually hundreds of thousands of citizens, representing every state in the Union and many lands beyond the seas.

This building has been the center of many a stirring and history-making scene. In it met that Continental congress which debated, then shaped, subsequently adopted, and finally signed, the Declaration of Independence. From its steps this precious document was read to the people. In it George Washington was commissioned commander in chief of the Continental armies. It was here that the first American flag was raised on his birthday in 1861. It was to this building that his body was carried to lie in state, and here it was that congress convened, following the close of the Revolutionary war during the summer of 1787, to agree to sign a constitution for the newly-created United States.

The room in which, one by one, the authorized representatives of the 13 colonies advanced in a tense atmosphere and affixed their signatures in ratification of the Declaration of Independence is indeed dignified. The walls of the building are graced with portraits of the signers and a painting of that dramatic moment when the signing was in progress.

Liberty bell, the most famous of all bells in America, was removed from the tower many, many years ago, and now reposes within a glass cabinet on the main floor, almost directly beneath the location from which it rang out its message of freedom on July 4, 1776.

WEATHER SIGNS IN THE SKY

Thought by Some Country People to Be Superior to Weather Bureau Forecasts.

Signs of fair or foul weather are noted very carefully by country people. Some of them are more inclined to believe in old sayings about the weather than in any readings from barometers or the predictions of weather prophets. Here are a few old saws:

When the peacock loudly bawls soon we'll have both rain and squalls.

If the moon shows like a silver shield be not afraid to reap your field. But if she rises haloed round soon we'll tread on deluged ground.

A rainbow in the morning gives the shepherd warning; that is, if the wind be easterly, because it shows that the rain cloud is approaching the observer.

A rainbow at night is the shepherd's delight; that is, if the wind be westerly, as it shows that the rain clouds are passing away.

If at sunrising or setting the clouds appear of a lurid red color, extending nearly up to the zenith, it is a sure sign of storms and gales of wind.

If the fog lies close to the surface of the ground until it is gradually dissipated by the sun, the day will be bright and fine.—London Tit-Bits.

DREAMERS

Is it a dream that we are different?
Can it be true we are the same as they—
Those beasts forever tearing at their prey,
Seeming so sleek yet always on the scent?
Our talons hide in pale pear blossom flesh,
Cold cunning lurks beneath our fragile skin—
Oh, we are strange and terrible within,
Our slender hands can lay a snaring mesh!
Still, do beasts hold hushed visions as they go?
By toiling sweat do they stretch spires high—
Aching to wring a solace from the sky
And crying of a High White Thing they know!
Are we mere beasts and cruel as we seem,
Or are we different because we dream?
—Power Dalton.

Opportunity not only arrives, in some cases, when a man is sitting and waiting, but when he is asleep.

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

HOW TO STUDY THE FACE

For practical character reading from the features the face may be divided into three sections. From the chin and jaw, mouth and upper lip the emotions are indicated. The affections, the appetites, the temper, etc., are indicated in the lower region of the face.

The middle portion of the face indicates the executive region. A face long in the central region belongs to a powerful determination and strength in undertakings, while the short, central face is more feminine, emotional, and not as powerful as a leader in the business world.

From the eyebrows to the top of the forehead is the intellectual region. Observation, understanding, reasoning, memory, and construction are shown by the relative development of the forehead to the rest of the face. States of mind are presented in the eye.

All character analysis is relative. No single feature analyzed without reference to another development of the head or body should be judged arbitrarily, though it is generally a rule, for instance, that a weak mouth is placed in a head low at the point of firmness in the top of the head above the ears, etc. The features and hands conform to the head shape.

Ways of Girls.

Not every girl can be a Diana.

Still, you frequently see a girl take out her little mirror. She consults it earnestly, makes an improvement or two, again consults the mirror, and snaps the bag.

She seems to be satisfied.

Often Happens.

She—Why did you never marry? Couldn't you find the right girl?

He—I found plenty of girls that I thought were the right girl, but I never found one who thought I was the right man.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 2

THE POWER OF THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:1-4; 37-42.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."—Acts 2:21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Telling About Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Missionary Power.

The power of the early church was the Holy Spirit. This same Spirit has been the power of the church in all ages. The watchword of God's mightiest men throughout the centuries has been, "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts." (Zech. 4:6.) The mightiest forces in the world are spiritual.

I. The Coming of the Spirit (Acts 2:1-4.

1. Time Of (v. 1). It was on the day of Pentecost. "Day of Pentecost" means the feast which was held fifty days after the wave sheaf was offered (Lev. 23:15-16). It was observed by presenting two loaves made of the new wheat (Lev. 23:17). These loaves were baked with leaven, while leaven was excluded from the Passover feast (Lev. 23:6). The reason was that the Passover feast typified Christ's sacrifice, while Pentecost represented the church, composed of Jews and Gentiles—the two loaves. Christ had no sin in Him while the men and women composing the church have sin in them.

The feast of Pentecost in a figurative sense still continues, for the body of Christ is not yet complete. Pentecost was a most fitting time for the coming of the Spirit.

2. Upon Whom the Spirit Came (v. 1; cf. 1:13-15).

The twelve and others to the number of 120. The coming of the Spirit was not merely for the twelve but for all believers—members of the body of Christ. They were in "one place, with one accord" waiting for the fulfillment of "Father's promise" (Luke 24:49). With a group of believers thus with eyes fixed upon Christ in expectation of the fulfillment of His promises, wonderful blessings are sure to come. If the church would be with one accord in one place wonderful blessings would come still.

II. The Marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-4.)

1. External.

(1) The Sound of a Mighty Wind. There was no wind—only the sound thereof. This suggests the all-pervasive life-giving influence of the Holy Spirit.

(2) Tongues of Flame. Each of the 120 was crowned with such a tongue. The tongues show the practical purpose of the Spirit's gifts, and the fire indicates His purifying energy, purging the dross and making fit witnesses for Him.

(3) Speaking in Foreign Tongues. For these humble Galileans to thus speak caused great amazement.

2. Internal.

This is seen in the transformation wrought in the disciples. They have great courage and self-possession. Peter, who a little while before was cowering before a Jewish maid, now with lion boldness stood before the thousands of Jerusalem and a little later before the chief rulers of the city and declared that they had murdered their King.

III. The Converting Power of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:37-42).

Many people were convicted of their sins—about three thousand repented and were baptized. This revival was real because:

1. They continued steadfast in the apostles' teaching. They did not grow cold or run after every fad that came along. This is the real test of conversion.

2. They continued in fellowship with the apostles. The surest way to grow is to keep in fellowship with Christians. Death is sure to follow the neglect of the fellowship of the brethren in Christ.

3. In using the means of grace, "In the breaking of bread," God has instituted ordinances in His house and those who are genuinely converted will avail themselves of their use.

4. In prayer the apostolic church was a praying church. The Christian life cannot be lived without prayer.

Good Deeds.

The influence of a good deed is great upon the world, but the reflex influence upon the doer is a priceless thing.—Gospel Banner.

False Prophets.

False prophets and teachers have ever been speakers of pleasing words and glorifiers of the conditions of their times. Thus only can they hope to secure popularity, ease, and the other things they are after.

Insufficient for That Day.

I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. My own wisdom and that of all about me seemed insufficient for that day.—Lincoln.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED BY THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

RED PEPPERS END RHEUMATIC PAINS

When you are suffering with rheumatism so you can hardly get around just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Instant relief. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Frees the blood circulation, breaks up the congestion—and the old rheumatism torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Use it for lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, colds in chest. Almost instant relief awaits you. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Over the Wire

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tommy Pearson was in a quandary as to how he was to wake himself every morning sharp at 7 o'clock. He had lost two positions already by not being in his office on time, and he liked the one he now had and wanted to keep it.

Tommy was rich enough to indulge in all the stupid hobbies of the idle wealthy if he chose, but he preferred to work.

His family had all gone to their summer home at Southampton with the entire staff of servants and Tommy remained alone in the big town house content save for that one annoying lack—his inability to wake at a regular early hour. Tommy quite realized that his subconscious or his will power or his power of suggestion should come to his rescue, but they didn't, and he realized that an alarm clock would only continue to ring itself out.

A bright idea then flitted through Tommy's fertile brain and upon that idea he worked swiftly. Consequemly the following morning among the personal columns there was a short message.

"Will some one please ring my telephone until I answer it? Object, getting me up. Reward, a good dinner and theater once every fortnight. Just before seven, please. Thank you. Tom, Riverside K-79."

Next morning at three minutes to seven Mary Dalton went to her telephone, called up Riverside K-79, waited until a masculine voice called sleepily "Hello," then hung up the receiver. After that she sat down to her dainty breakfast and again read the personal which had prompted her telephone call. She smiled as she reflected that each morning she would begin her day with a small good deed. Mary was a scout and the doing of one good deed a day at least was one of their praiseworthy teachings.

Tom was delighted at the swift result of his personal and spent a moment or two at the telephone trying to thank the unknown benefactor, but hearing the receiver hung up at the other end he hurried off to his cold plunge, wishing however that he might have been permitted to thank the fellow, whoever he was.

Each morning his telephone rang and as regularly Tom jumped up, answered and tried to get a word with his unknown waker, but so far no word had reached him. Tom almost came to the conclusion that it was some one of his friends trying to keep his curiosity quickened. He spent little time, however, in vain conjecture, since getting up and to the office was his main idea and not the personality of the one who was responsible for that timely arrival to duties.

But toward the end of the second week Tom realized it was high time to find out who it was he was to treat to a dinner and theater as he offered in his personal. He therefore became a little insistent over the telephone when next it rang at two minutes to seven and took the receiver off very quietly and shouted, "How about that dinner and theater?" before the fellow at the end of the wire could hang up. Mary, however, hung up. Her smile was a trifle amused and she decided to ask her brother to answer the following morning.

Her brother, Donald, visiting Mary over the week-end, was agreeable to most things she suggested, since he knew her to be quite capable of taking care of herself under most conditions.

Consequently it was his voice that answered the somewhat annoyed Tom when he again demanded his right to treat to dinner and theater.

"I say old chap," Donald said laughingly, "I am booked up this week, but next Friday will suit if you are free. I'm not keen on the theater in hot weather, but if you insist and will ring the bell marked Dalton at 130 West Fourteenth street at about 6:30 Friday I'll be down and we can have a dinner together."

Mary smiled as he hung up the receiver. It was going to be somewhat of a lark, and Donald had promised to be with her just to appraise the stranger.

When the Friday evening arrived a call from her brother informed Mary that he was detained and that she must just make the best of the situation.

Tom, arriving at 130 promptly at half past six, rang the bell marked Dalton and waited in the small hall for the chap who had been so regular in getting him out of his bed for the past three weeks.

Tom suddenly realized that waiting for strange young men was a most pleasant pastime, for coming down the stairs was a lovely young girl with a flush of rosebuds in her cheeks and a pair of wonderfully expressive eyes. These same eyes glanced shyly at Tom as the girl herself drew nearer and, much to Tom's delighted surprise, she made straight for him.

"I am the waker-up—over the telephone," she said with a ready smile. "My brother, Donald, was coming tonight, but has been detained. Perhaps I should not go to dinner with you."

"Oh, please," exclaimed Tom, in dismay. "Having seen you now and knowing what I would be missing in not having you opposite me at the table, I couldn't eat a bite," he gazed pleadingly at her and Mary laughed softly.

"I could not allow you to starve," she said, and with a bound Tom was out hailing a taxi.

"Such good fortune is seldom given to mortal man," he thought as the taxi drew up at the curb and he carefully helped his lovely waker-up into it. "Can we go way up Riverside and have dinner?" he questioned.

"Oh, that is so dreadfully far to go in a taxi," murmured Mary.

Tom promptly gave the driver his orders. Even then he was anticipating the drive back and he knew he would tell the driver to go as slowly as his engine permitted.

"I have more money than sense," laughed Tom, "and am only too glad to have some one nice to spend it on. You will come every Friday with me, won't you? You know it is a big task, calling me up every morning so regularly."

"It is nothing at all," said Mary. "I am up anyway and am only too glad to do any little thing to help people in this world."

"I need help very much," Tom informed her. "All my friends have dropped me because I insist on working like other men and I'm lonesome for some one—just like you. I don't think you'd call me a silly fool just because I can't idle day in and day out."

Mary looked straight into Tom's eyes and saw therein that which made her glad. "No," she said, quite frankly if a trifle tremulously, "I am not the kind of person who makes fun of a real man when I meet him."

"I shall bless my inability to wake up early—until the end of my days," thought Tom, but he was far too wise to say so during that first glorious meeting.

However, when he did tell her all about it Mary, too, felt that some frailties in the human makeup certainly lead to paths that are very wonderful.

USE FOR DEGREASED HIDES

Hog Product Proves to Be Equal to Calfskin, According to an Authority.

The leather section of the bureau of standards has recently completed investigational work on the quality of leather produced from degreased hog and sheep skin. In general, the results show that the degreasing process is very efficient, practically all of the grease being removed without apparent damage to the elements needed for making leather. Leather made from the degreased skins is superior to that made from the natural skins, and the time occupied in tanning is reduced with more effective results, says the Scientific American. Leather made from degreased hogskins is equal in physical properties to calf leather, while leather made from degreased sheep skins appears to have sufficient firmness and an improved appearance which makes it suitable for upper leather in some types of shoes instead of goat leather.

It is believed that by degreasing sheep skins and hog skins before tanning, leather can be produced which can be brought into general use for shoe uppers and as far as the quality of the leather is concerned, it appears logical for packers to utilize hogskins for leather purposes.

No published report is available on this work at the present time, but one will be issued as soon as possible and the notice of it will appear in the technical news bulletin of the bureau.

Life's Dunnage.

"It is much easier to die than to take a vacation. In the former case a few words, written or dictated, will dispose of all one's possessions and one's heirs will gladly attend to the details. This done, one may fold one's hands on one's chest and depart this vexatious life in peace.

"It is quite another matter to prepare for a few weeks out of town. There are bills to be paid; the iceman and the milkman and the laundry man must be choked off, and the daily paper restrained from littering the doorstep. There is hair to be cut and teeth to be tinkered, and so on. In short, it takes days to stop the machinery of one's customary living for a fortnight and days to get it going again. But, my dear, one must have a change."—Boston Transcript.

To Take No Chances.

Answering a phone call, George Cline, when he went down to the athletic club, took with him a belt for a brother member. "What's the big idea of the hurry-up call?" he wanted to know. "Well," remarked his friend. "I bought myself some suspenders the other day and when I came to look for them they turned up missing and I had thrown away my old ones. I asked my wife about them, and what do you suppose? She says: 'Can't you see that those new suspenders exactly match my new dinner gown? So I made them into a bodice.' So from now on I'm taking no chances. I'm going to wear a belt."

Paying for Sins.

"Rastus," said the minister, "don't you know it's wrong to play cards on de Sabbath?"

A Dig for His Master.

A London physician accepted an invitation to join a house party for a little shooting. When he returned, a privileged butler asked him whether he had enjoyed himself.

"Oh, yes," was the reply.

"Kill much, sir?"

"No, hardly anything," admitted the doctor.

"Ah, well, sir," said the butler, "it's nice to have a change."—Boston Transcript.

Meanest Flowers.

In a certain congregation in the South there was a lovable old lady who was most devoted to flowers and who maintained a beautiful garden. She was especially fond of sweet peas and each Sunday in the summer it was her bouquet that adorned the pulpit of her church. Suddenly there was a change in the flowers, a fact which the minister noticed. Accordingly he asked the lady after service why she brought no more sweet peas.

A sad smile came to her face.

"You don't like them," she said simply. "Last Sunday you pointed right at my sweet peas and said, 'God loves even the meanest flower that blooms!'"—Everybody's Magazine.

ADVANCE IN TREE SURGERY

Millions of Dollars Being Spent Annually to Salvage Things of Beauty.

Tree surgery, as it is practiced today, is less than a quarter of a century old. It was, naturally, crude in its beginnings, and the past ten years have been the era of its greatest development. It may be said that this development has closely paralleled that of the automobile. In both cases the original principle was sound, but it has taken a good many years to bring about the refinements which constitute the efficient gas-driven car and perfected tree surgery of the present day.

Among Americans no line of commercial or professional endeavor can be expected to thrive or even endure for long unless it has a sound economic justification, says E. A. Quarles. We are a practical people and things impractical make a very limited appeal. American home owners spend yearly not less than $5,000,000 in the care of their trees, exclusive of work done on them by labor in their own employ. Ten years ago it is doubtful if half that sum was spent. These figures speak forcefully in confirming the acceptance of tree surgery as an important and practical application of science to the preservation of a useful material possession of mankind.

Shade trees about the home have both an aesthetic and economic value. With many the first-named would justify any reasonable care for their preservation. Louis Fuertes, the noted painter of birds, said in a recent address that he, for one, was tired of hearing people appealed to for the protection of birds because of their economic value, great as this is. Those of us whose lives are spent with the trees and whose daily endeavors have to do with their preservation sometimes have the same feeling if we must be brutally frank. "Only God can make a tree," in the words of Joyce Kilmer's immortal verse. Do not its majesty, grace, beauty and the suggestion it gives of a link between man and the Creator furnish all the urge that is necessary to give our trees the care they deserve? Short of man himself, few creations of the Almighty so completely fill the eye and satisfy the aesthetic sense as do the trees. In practically all landscaping of any scope trees are the dominating motif. Certainly they deserve better care from man than they receive.—Arts and Decorations.

Getting Familiar.

When a young man gets that important feeling it usually manifests itself as a desire to call somebody "Bub."

American Legion Convalescent Home to be Opened—to be Supported thru Posts of Burlington, Camden, and Gloucester Counties

A real cause for Thanksgiving in the hearts of all the members of the American Legion Posts and Auxiliaries of Burlington, Camden and Gloucester counties and especially to the disabled soldier, has come in the advent of the opening of the Convalescent Home on Sunday, December 2nd, at Clarksboro, N. J.

The hopes of the Posts, which were apparently improbable at the beginning of the project, are at last realized and a more fitting time to enter upon a work of this nature could not be devised.

Donations of any nature, in keeping with the needs of the Home, will be gladly received by the individual Post commanders and forwarded to the proper authorities.

An appeal thru Frederick M. Rodgers Post No. 156 of Palmyra is made to the honorable citizens of Riverton and Palmyra for such donations in order that they too may have a part in this work of rendering comfort to the disabled soldier.

When All Signed With Cross.

In olden times the signature of the cross, now made by persons who are unable to write, was not confined to the illiterate class. Among the Saxons the mark of the cross, as an attestation of good faith of the person signing, was required to be attached to the signature of those who could write, as well as to stand in the place of the signature of those who could not write. —Detroit News.

WOMAN EVANGELIST

Miss Annie Agnes Smith to Conduct Services at Epworth Church

Miss Annie Agnes Smith, of Norfolk, Va., a cultured and popular preacher, evangelist and platform speaker, will conduct a two-week series of evangelistic services at the Epworth M. E. Church starting this Sunday. She will be in charge of both the morning and evening services on Sundays and will preach every evening but Saturdays. The week-day services will start at 7.45 p. m.

Miss Smith has been engaged in evangelistic work since she was 12 years old, and was the second woman licensed in America since the General Conference of the Methodist Church recently ruled that women should be licensed to preach. She has been engaged in evangelistic work and Bible teaching all over the United States, having traveled over 20,000 miles during the past year.

Miss Smith was licensed as a local preacher June 14, 1920, by the Union Square quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, Md.

ARTISANS' BIG TIME

Order Enjoys Fine Entertainment and Big Attendance

The Artisans had another big meeting Tuesday evening. The members that crowded into Society Hall for the occasion filled nearly all the floor-space and gave the baldhead row a fine view of the entertainment that followed the business meeting.

Many of the new members who have been signed up in the drive to provide a record-breaking class for Charlie Grakelow at the big initiation in Philadelphia this week were present to enjoy their first taste of the Artisans' big time.

Odd Fellows

Friday evening, November 23, saw a well attended session of this lodge even though the weather was threatening. The scheduled return match of quoit with Bridgeboro Lodge was postponed by them until November 30 owing to the inclement weather conditions for their trip down.

Following the regular meeting there was demonstrated one of the latest creations in the radio art and industry by David Cook, a well-known Philadelphia radio engineer. This set is now a permanent feature of this lodge, promising plenty of entertainment for the members.

The lodge is also planning a revival of the old fashioned open nights and social evenings this winter. Announcement of the first of these events is hoped to be made soon.

The degree team is also brushing up on their parts for December's initiation. Looks like a busy season ahead for them.

FLOUR MADE FROM BEETS

Product Manufactured in France May Eventually Be Used in Making Cakes and Sweet Bread.

An important additional use for the sugar beet is found in the manufacture of flour therefrom. Indeed, it is reported that this kind of flour is turned out in considerable quantities at Suresnes, in France, where an enterprising person has built a large "dryer" for the purpose.

The first part of the process consists in chopping up the beets and drying the water from them. They contain, to start with, about 72 per cent of water, nearly all of which is removed by evaporation. By this means 100 pounds of dry material are obtained from 357 pounds of beets.

The dry material contains more than 70 per cent of sugar—that is to say, there will be more than 70 pounds of sugar in every 100 pounds of the evaporated product. Accordingly, the latter, on being ground to a fine meal, is exceedingly sweet and well adapted for the making of cakes and puddings. It is estimated to contain something like 82 per cent of pure nutriment.

The expectation is that this sort of flour will eventually come into extensive use, particularly in the manufacture of cakes and sweet bread. It is said to be not only very nutritious, but guaranteed to be germ free by reason of the high temperature to which the raw material is exposed in the process of evaporation.

Twisted.

It was his first great speech, and he wanted it to be a success.

His oration was long and passionate, and he wished to end it with a warning.

He could have couched his warning in the old proverb about locking the stable door after the horse was stolen, but that was too commonplace. He wanted something original.

He thought of something better. Then he shouted: "Don't, I beg of you—don't wait till the house takes fire before you summon the firemen."

The Superman.

Mr. Flubdub, after trying to read the paper while his wife gabbled, laid it down.

"I see a registration of motorists visiting the national parks shows there is an average of 3.45 persons per car."

"What about it?" snapped his better half.

"Nothing; I was just thinking," he insisted.

"Well, what were you thinking?"

"Nothing much, my dear. I guess I am the .45 person per car."

The Real Reason.

"Boy, is this the field on which the great battle was fought?" asked the historian.

"No, sir; that be at the top of the hill," answered the native boy.

"Dear, dear!" exclaimed the historian, "that must be a mile away. Why didn't they fight it in this field?"

"I suppose because this 'ere field belongs to Farmer Johnson. He never would lend his field for anything, not even for t' village sports."

Take It From Mary.

Father—I met the school principal today; he's very dissatisfied with you.

Little Mary—Don't you care, daddy, it's all in the spirit of the times. Dissatisfaction is spreading, you know, and people are striving for something they'll never reach, instead of being satisfied with what they have—just as you've always said.

Took Too Much Time.

"There is one thing, Bridget," said the mistress, "that I insist upon. If you break any dishes, come and tell me at once."

"Sure, ma'am," protested Bridget, "I can't be runnin' to ye every minute of the day."

British Motorship Building.

Britain's motorship building is increasing, with 23,000 tons more than a year ago. Lloyd's Register shows 118 motorships, aggregating 327,232 gross tons, under construction. Almost half that tonnage is credited to British yards, with Germany, Sweden, Denmark and the United States making up the bulk of the remainder. During the last year launchings of motor vessels from British yards totaled close to 175,000 tons.

Details Requested.

"It is reported that in Russia a divorce can be secured for as little as 20 cents."

"Yes," replied the exceedingly cautious person. "But how about the alimony scale of prices?"

To Prevent Blowouts of Your Vacuum Tub

There are times when a vacuum tube is burned out by the accidental shorting of the "B" battery across the filament. In order to safeguard the tube from this accidental burnout a suitable resistance should be connected in one of the leads from the "B" battery. This resistance will successfully prevent, for example, a 100-volt "B" battery from blowing out a WD-11. Having this resistance in the "B" battery circuit detracts in no way from the efficiency of the set, as the resistance is not sufficiently high to cut down the signal strength.

The value of this resistance can be readily calculated by several laws of electricity, but this calculating must be done every time a tube of different amperage is used or when more voltage is added to the "B" battery. In order to save time and trouble in these calculations the writer devised a formula that is not only extremely simple to use but is absolutely accurate.

Now, before going any further, suppose it is known what resistance to use, it would then be a question of where to get it or how to make the resistance. One of the cheapest and most efficient resistances that can be used for the purpose outlined in this article is an ordinary 110-volt bulb such as is used in the regular lighting of the home with 110 volts alternating current. These bulbs have a resistance depending on the wattage they are rated at. For example, a 50-watt bulb has a resistance higher than that of a 75-watt bulb. These resistances can be figured out by Ohm's law.

The formula devised and used will give, directly, the wattage of the 110-volt A. C. bulb to use when a given vacuum tube and a given "B" battery is used. This formula thus reduces all figuring down to one simple calculation.

The formula is: A equals 12100 times I divided by E, where A equals wattage of the 110-v. bulb which is to act as the resistance; I equals current in amperes of the vacuum tube used; E equals voltage of the "B" battery.

Suppose that you have a WD-11 tube, which is rated at .25 amps. and a "B" battery of 45 volts, then A equals 12100 times .25 divided by 45, which equals 67 approximately. Thus a 67-watt 110-volt bulb should be used. As a 67-watt bulb cannot be procured the next lowest wattage bulb that is available should be used. In this case a 60-watt bulb will be O. K.

If a UV-199, rated at .06 amp., and a 22½-volt "B" battery is used, then A equals 32 approximately. In this case a 30-watt or a 25-watt bulb will be the correct one to use.

If you want to use one resistance for all purposes a 5-watt 110-volt bulb will take care of all vacuum tubes with amperages of .06 up and all "B" battery voltages to 150 volts, but this method will put a higher resistance in the plate circuit of your set than is absolutely necessary.

Will Save Tubes.

Always turn down the rheostats when you first connect up a new set that you have just completed, and try out a single tube in the sockets before putting in all the tubes. This will save two or three tubes.

Pair of Birds to the Acre.

Bird censuses over a period of seven years for the country east of the great plains and north of Maryland shows that the average is a little more than one pair of birds to the acre of farm land, according to Department of Agriculture reports. The robin is the most abundant species, with the English sparrow second. In the immediate vicinity of buildings, including lawns and orchards, about 180 pairs of birds are found to nest on 10 acres. For the entire farm the average is about 112 pairs to the 100 acres.

Sea Jewels.

Visitors can be seen roaming the English sea coast for valuable stones. The sea collects the jetsam of ages and specimens of every geological formation. Among others found are cornelians, chalcedonys, amethysts, agates, onyxes, and pieces of jasper. The "Elie ruby" is a garnet found to the eastward of Elie Harbor, on the coast of Fife. Other parts of the coast have their special jewels. Onyx can be found almost anywhere. As for pearls, it has been stated that they have been found in cockles at Conway.

Strange Mongolian Whisky.

A kind of whisky known as airik is distilled from mare's milk by the natives of Mongolia. This milk, which is thicker than cow's milk, has a sort of sour taste even when fresh. After being allowed to stand for several days it attains the consistency of buttermilk. When it is put into a huge pot and covered with what looks like a barrel with both ends knocked odt. The vessel is suspended in the middle of the barrel, a kettle of cold water is set on the top, and after a few minutes of boiling in this primitive still the milk is changed into pure spirit.

FOR RACE BETTERMENT

Many people from all over Burlington County attended the meeting in the Clarkson Street Hall, Burlington, Sunday afternoon, given under the auspices of the Burlington Division of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, addressed by Hon. P. L. Burrows, secretary-general of the National organization.

The meeting was opened by Robert Roberts, president of the Burlington Division.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. A. D. Brown, who paid a fine tribute to Mr. Burrows and declared that he was one of the most wide-awake Negroes of the world. He was gifted with a vision of the future such as had never fallen to any one of his race, and that he sees the problems of the black man as they really exist.

Mr. Burrows said that the Universal Negro Improvement Association, to a great extent, had been misunderstood and its motive misinterpreted because of the enthusiasm of some of its early leaders. The leaders, he declared, had failed to study the aims and objects of the organization and the high ideals were lost to many.

In defence of the Association he quoted from the preamble: "The Universal Negro Improvement Association is a social, friendly, humanitarian, charitable, educational, institutional, constructive and expansive society, and is founded by persons desiring to the utmost the work for the general uplift of the Negro people of the world. And the members of the Association pledge themselves to do all in their power to conserve the rights of their human race and to respect the rights of all mankind, believing always in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

GIRLS IN CONFERENCE

Three States and Twenty-six Towns Represented at Big Meeting at Moorestown

The Y.W.C.A. in Burlington county had an opportunity to show the High School Girl Reserves of New Jersey, Philadelphia and Delaware their county, and to acquaint them with the work of the Y.W.C.A. in rural communities. Last week-end Moorestown opened its homes and hearts to 106 girls, for Burlington county had been chosen by the National Y.W.C.A. Association as the meeting place for tthe mid-year High School Eastern Regional Conference.

This conference was unique in several ways. Never before had such a gathering been entertained by a County Association, for it has been easier to take care of large numbers of delegates in cities. These conferences are held that the girls might be brought into closer touch with the Association and that thro their united effort they might take larger steps toward common goals. Furthermore that the girls might learn of county organizations. Secondly, at this conference there were thirteen colored delegates. These girls came representing their clubs and were entertained in the homes of the colored folk in Moorestown. This is the first time that colored girls have been included in such a conference, having their own. The combination was a very happy one, as one of the colored girls, said, "I felt that the conference was truly mine." It is hoped that this conference will be a little step toward social understanding and better co-operation.

Dance to Benefit Riverton Library

The committee asks the cooperation of all who are interested in this most worthwhile cause to make this dance a success. Tickets, at one dollar, may be procured from any Porch Club member.

DEATHS

John G. Williamson

John G. Williamson, sixty-eight, of 308 Midway, died on Friday, November 23, in the Polyclinic Hospital, Philadelphia. He had been ill for two years, but his condition became alarming only a few days before his death.

Mr. Williamson was born in Philadelphia, the son of the late Thomas J. and Louisa Agnes Williamson, an old Philadelphia family. He was employed on The Bulletin, of which his father was a part owner, between 1872 and 1887. For the past twenty years he had been employed by the firm of Harry C. Worrell. He was a member of the Riverton Fire Company. His wife, two daughters and three grandchildren survive.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at two o'clock from the home of his brother, Frank, 2302 Spruce street, Philadelphia. Interment was made in Arlington cemetery.

Mrs. A. Baun

Mrs. A. Baun, formerly Miss Lena Schwink, of Palmyra, died at her home in Blossom, New York, near Buffalo, last Saturday afternoon. She had been ill but a week of pleural-pneumonia.

Mrs. Baun was the daughter of Mrs. F. Schwink, of 717 Garfield avenue. She lived in Palmyra until her marriage to the Rev. Mr. Baun two years ago and was widely known as an expert hairdresser.

The body was brought to Palmyra Tuesday and the funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. Harry L. Saul officiating, with interment in Morgan cemetery.

MUCH TIME LOST AT DRAWBRIDGES

State Highway Commission Calculates Losses in Waits to Cross Rivers.

SUM RISES TO BIG FIGURES

Traffic Likely to Double in Next Four Years, and Problem Is Accentuated. Auto Traffic Blocked 10 Per Cent of Time at Two Drawbridges.

Trenton.—Heavy monetary losses sustained by automobile owners through traffic delays at river drawbridges in New Jersey is demonstrated in calculations now being made for the State Highway Commission. Economists value the time of a motor vehicle at 5 cents a minute and upwards. Using this sum as a basis, the Highway Board is directing a study of the records preserved by Essex and Hudson counties on the amount of time wasted at the two drawbridges over the Hackensack and Passaic rivers on the Lincoln Highway. To permit the passage of vessels it has been found that traffic is blocked 10 per cent of the time.

The greater interruption occurs at the Passaic river bridge. Tabulations extending over a year show that in 365 days the time lost represents 21,486 hours for 6,717 openings of the draw. At 5 cents a minute this amounts to $64,404. Capitalized at 5 per cent a year an investment of $1,288,085 is represented.

In one year at the Hackensack river 7,160 hours were lost by stalled vehicles through the draw being opened 3,579 times. On a valuation of 5 cents a minute the time consumed is equal to $21,480, or a capitalized possible investment of $429,605.

Each of these bridges is used by the 16,930 vehicles passing over the Lincoln Highway daily at that point, and the peak is in the hours between 10 and 11 at night, when 1,606 were counted. The next nearest hour was between 6 and 7 at night, when 1,204 machines were checked. The lowest total was recorded between 6 and 7 in the morning, when 91 vehicles passed.

The maximum number of openings of the Passaic river draw for any one hour was 624 for one year between 9 and 10 o'clock at night, and the average road traffic for that hour was 425 vehicles. The minimum for draw turns, 61, was recorded for the year between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. The road travel for that hour was 168 vehicles. The greatest loss in minutes, 416, occurred between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

On the Hackensack river bridge the draw was opened the greatest number of times, 282, between 10 and 11 at night, and the vehicular road travel in the same hour was 682. The minimum for draw turns was four and was recorded between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning, when the road traffic averaged 122 vehicles. The most minutes, 165, were lost at this draw between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Seventy-eight per cent of the openings on the Hackensack were for vessels requiring 40-foot clearance, but for the Passaic River only 42 per cent were of the height. Because of the greater traffic on the Passaic at present, however, the sum of vessels with the higher masts and stacks does not differ widely on the two rivers. The use of the Hackensack is increasing, while that of the Passaic is falling off, investigators assert. The heaviest traffic on the Passaic was found to be in June, with 257 vessels passing through, and on the Hackensack in April, with 335 vessels.

Assuming that vehicular and river traffic will both double within the next few years, a not improbable condition, it will mean that the capitalized delays will be increased four times. The problem of handling this traffic is now receiving the consideration of the Highway Department.

No calculations have been made as to the enormous cost of days at the ferries at Jersey City and Camden, which are, perhaps, much greater; but the tunnel and bridge, now under construction, will solve the traffic problem there.

Had Cancelled Assessment

In January of this year the State Board cancelled the assessment in the belief that none of the securities were in this State on October 1, 1922. Richard P. Whitely of Washington, one of the executors, informed the board that the decision was evidently based on a misapprehension of fact. That the securities were actually in a New Jersey safe deposit vault on October 1, but had been removed before the first of the taxing year.

South Orange Village, through Mr. Sandmeyer, asked the State Board to open the case for reargument. This was done with the result that a ruling has just been found against the estate. George McCarter of the firm of McCarter & English represents the executors.

Assessment Affirmed

Reversing a previous decision, the State Board of Taxation has just affirmed the assessment of $91,000 on securities of the estate of the late Mary N. Shepard of South Orange Village. Through a misapprehension of facts the board had previously cancelled the entire assessment.

Several points of law are involved in the case. It was agreed between counsel last spring that whichever side won before the State Board an appeal would be taken to the courts. William E. Sandmeyer, counsel for the Village of South Orange, would like to have a court interpretation of Section 301 of the 1918 revision of the New Jersey taxing laws.

Executors of the estate allege contravention of Section 2, Article 4 of the United States Constitution, so it is considered probable that the case may reach the United States Supreme Court.

Stocks Called Intangible

Counsel for the executors of the estate contended that the stocks, being intangible assets, should be taxed in the State where the executors reside. The securities in a New Jersey safe deposit vault on October 1, 1922, were merely "evidences of value" and did not themselves constitute property.

Ownership of the securities rested with the executors, two of whom live in Washington, one in New York, according to counsel for the estate, who cited the Constitution, which states in Article 4, Section 2, that "all citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States."

It was shown that a tax on two-thirds of the fair cash value of the securities had been paid in Washington, on an assessment as of July 1, 1922. It was further shown that the securities had been distributed prior to January 1, 1923.

The Essex County Board held that it had no choice in the matter, as Section 301 of the 1918 Revised Statutes held that "personal property belonging to an estate of any decedent shall be assessed in the taxing district wherein decedent resided at the time of death, except such part of the tangible property thereof as may be actually located in some other taxing district in this State."

Cars Must Have Mirrors

Although the Postmaster General recently determined that it was not essential to equip motor trucks used in the mail service with mirrors, as required by the New Jersey law, Commissioner William L. Dill of the Motor Vehicle Department has temporarily brought about a reversal of this decison, and it is expected that as the result of further negotiations all of the trucks in the federal mail service will meet the requirements of the state law in this particular.

Postmaster Forrest Greer of Long Branch, was instructed to procure mirrors for the two government mail trucks in use at that place and in turn took the matter up with the Postoffice Department at Washington. In response, he was advised that the mirror equipment was not essential.

Chagrined at this attitude of the federal authorities Commissioner Dill took the matter up with Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, former speaker of the House from Bergen county. In his communication to Mr. Glover Commissioner Dill expressed the opinion that the Washington postal authorities could not consistently hold to the view that the postal department was not subject to the regulations which govern the operation of motor vehicles in the various states.

"I am familiar with the decision of the United States Supreme Court respecting the licensing of the drivers of mail trucks," said Mr. Dill in his letter, "but certainly so far as compliance with the motor vehicle act in every other particular I feel that your trucks are just as amenable as the individually owned machines, and I am referring the matter to you confident that your interest in protecting the lives of the citizens of New Jersey will bring about an immediate reversal of the order which was sent to the Long Branch postmaster."

Replying to Mr. Dill, Mr. Glover said he had taken the matter up with the First Assistant Postmaster General, in whose bureau service matters of the nature mentioned are handled "and word is being sent to the postmaster at Long Branch for him to secure mirrors for the two government-owned trucks at that office." Commissioner Dill was advised that the First Assistant Postmaster General would take up the question of having all motor vehicles in New Jersey conform with the state law in regard to the use of mirrors.

"It is unnecessary for me to say," continued Mr. Glover, "that I was very glad to have you call this matter to my attention and agree with you that the Postoffice Department should be no exception in regard to this matter so far as it relates to the operation of their motor vehicles."

Criticise Medical Board

Some dissatisfaction has arisen in State departments, particularly that of the Adjutant General, concerning the conditions under which Governor Silzer's medical advisory board, composed of seven prominent physicians of the State, is functioning. At the time of the organization of this board it was announced that its members would place themselves at the disposal of the State for such services as they might find it possible to render. The actual call to service, however, has not been responded to in the spirit that was anticipated, according to the State's military authorities.

It was the belief of the Adjutant General's department that this board would provide a means through which an important obstacle in the way of the building up of the National Guard along the lines contemplated in the National Defense Act could be overcome. With the funds available for organization purposes, it has been found difficult to secure physical examinations of recruits by competent medical men and it was thought that a way out of this difficulty might be found by having the applicants for enlistment examined by members of the medical advisory board.

Honor Among Chinese.

It appears that there is a very high sense of honor among Chinese, writes Henry Crosby Emery, LL. D. So is there among the merchants of America, England, Germany and other countries. Again the differences between individuals are infinitely greater than those between nations. To all this must be added that, since China is an older country, her merchants developed a sense of honor long before western countries. At a time when European commerce was half trade and half piracy, China had developed this high commercial morality. It is probably the half-buccaneering traders who first brought news of this strange and honorable custom to lands who as yet knew it not. Today Chinese commercial honor and English or American commercial honor differ little except that China had developed it centuries before it was adopted in foreign lands.—Harper's Magazine.

Criminals Use Tear Gas.

Equipment of a first-class criminal now includes a gas mask and a supply of tear gas, the War department indicates in a report showing that the crooks have not been far behind the police in adapting this war material to the pursuit of "peace."

An example is quoted of a bootlegger who carried tear gas in his rum-laden car and when pursued loosed it through the exhaust pipe. Pursuit ended immediately.

Because the criminal has become a customer of the gas mask manufacturers, many police departments are now considering the use of other than tear gas—something that the ordinary mask will not stop. Such a gas would be far more dangerous and equally as effective.

Differ in Glory.

Gustav le Bon, an authority on diamonds, has found a striking difference of the phosphorescence of Brazilian diamonds and those from the Cape. The former, which are noted for the liveliness of their light, and which have become quite rare of late years, exhibit a brilliant phosphorescence after being exposed to the radiation of a magnesium ribbon, while Cape diamonds in similar circumstances show very little or no phosphorescence. This is thought to be a means of detecting diamonds falsely offered as Brazilian gems.

Nature Writers.

Nearly all our nature writers are men of the north temperate zone. They yearn so much to write about trees and flowers because of the winter that they annually suffer under.
