SUMMER HOBBIES.

There are more and more people who are turning to hobbies as a means of relaxation and to keep the mind pleasantly occupied as a safeguard against the self-centredness that so often leads to nervous exhaustion.

In especial, they urge the desirability of taking up hobbies that will discipline and enlarge the mind as well as occupy it.

Of hobbies of this sort there are some particularly available at this time of year. All of these help the mind to grow, and they have the further advantage of drawing the hobby-riders out of doors, so that the benefits through gaining exercise and fresh air.

And these hobbies are so varied that any man or woman is sure to find one or more of them appealing with special force to his or her individual taste. Yet thousands of people give no thought to them, and fail completely to appreciate their possibilities as protectors of health and developers of power.

Are you among these thousands? Are you one who neglects to make any study of the teeming life about you, in earth, and sky, and water?

If you are, I earnestly suggest that you begin such a study this summer, in the city parks or in the country when you go away for your vacation.

Make a choice from among the study of bird life, of insect life, of flower life, of the life of the trees.

When you have made your choice, buy one or two elementary books on birds, ants, bees, butterflies, moths, spiders, wild flowers, trees or whatever your choice may be. Read the books you have bought and thus obtain some preliminary instruction.

Then, taking the books with you for reference purposes, go out and study for yourself the birds, ants, bees, flowers, trees, etc.

If you have chosen wisely, you will find your particular nature study hobby one of the most delightful and profitable things you have ever undertaken.

It will prevent time from hanging heavy on your hands. It will keep you from brooding over cares and worries. It will increase your efficiency for your daily work.

Any person who really makes a study of birds, insects, flowers or trees is bound to have his mental powers sharpened.

He will grow in ability to observe closely and accurately, to draw fine distinctions, to think clearly.

Also he will grow in sympathy, in sympathy for the inferior life he studies, and thence in greater sympathy for the superior human life of which he himself is a part.

NORWOOD DEFEATS FIELD CLUB.

By capturing four out of six encounters the Norwood Tennis Club of the Interboro Tennis League, won the match held last Saturday on their courts with the Field Club team. Both teams were on edge for the keen conflict that followed and not a match was decided without playing at least one deuce set. George Durgin and Tony Boehme succeeded in taking the measure of Taylor and Loney in a three set match, after losing the first set 8-10. The other victory was gained by Walter Gibbon over his step-brother, Earl Gibbon, in the singles.

Notwithstanding the Field Club boys were playing on strange courts (although they were not without supporters), and that their opponents were much older and more experienced, they made a favorable impression and a creditable showing. They hope to secure a return match and, playing on our faster courts, believe they will be able to reverse the order of things.

Owens and E. Gibbon defeated C. Durgin and W. Gibbon, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Krats and Edwards defeated G. Bonsall and A. Bonsall, 7-5, 7-5.

G. Durgin and Boehme defeated Owens and C. Durgin, 7-5, 6-1.

Edwards defeated Boehme, 6-0, 9-7.

W. Gibbon defeated E. Gibbon, 7-5, 6-2.

FIELD CLUB TENNIS TOURNAMENT

When the 1916 Tennis Tournament commences at the Field Club courts on Saturday afternoon, September 9, even the first round is sure to produce some hard fought matches. D. K. Finley, who last year won the first leg on the handsome trophy cup for singles, is coming all the way from Virginia to defend the title against the winner of this year's tournament. If he is successful, he will have to win the title again next year in order to secure absolute ownership of the trophy. For the present tournament there will be awarded first and second prizes, beside a consolation prize to be competed for by the losers in the first round.

In the doubles there will be awarded first and second prizes as well as consolation prizes.

It is not only open to all club members, but the committee will welcome the entrance into the tournament of any tennis player living in Palmyra or Riverton. The entrance fee will be the same as last year: Singles, $1; doubles, 75 cents each ($1.50 a team). The matches will be decided by the best out of three sets and may be played Saturdays, or during the week if the contestants can arrange it among themselves. The drawings will be held Wednesday evening, September 6, so that it will be necessary for your application to be in prior to that time. Get in touch with one of the members of the committee at once by telephone or drop a postal card, requesting him to put your name on the list.

LOCALS LOSE FAST GAME.

Duskies Trim Them in Fast Game.

Before the largest crowd that has gathered at the Field Club grounds this season the Anchor Giants, the famous colored team of Philadelphia, defeated the local team in a fast game by the score of 7 to 2. The score would indicate an easy victory, but up till the sixth inning the locals had played the visitors off their feet, a misplay, an error and a hit netted them three runs, and in the ninth they sent two more over the pan after the side had been retired. Manager Williams was compelled to use new men in the absence of Stack, Kemmerle and Gibbons. This weakened the team play and as the result the game was lost. The visitors played one of the cleanest and fastest games ever shown on a local field. Their funny sayings and antics on the base paths were really humorous and kept the crowd in an uproar throughout. McGinley pitched in better form than he has shown for several weeks, and with better support would have won his game handily. He had his spitter working good and caused a number of the duskies to fan. Mende again proved that he is the best catcher in these parts. His hitting and throwing to bases kept the score down.

The banner attraction of the season will be this Saturday when the Riverton team, our old rivals, will be down. They will have many of the old players along with a few imported ones. Riverton, you will remember, are good sports, and never want to lose, so you can rest assured that when they take the field it is with the idea that they are going to win.

For Monday-Labor Day-Delanco has been booked. This is the first appearance of this club this season, and as they are playing fast ball, the game should be a hummer.

Now, don't forget the attractions: This Saturday, Riverton; Monday, Delanco. Are you going to be there? Don't miss it.

ELOPEMENT ENDS UNSUCCESSFUL

Upon finding that his attentions to Miss Elvira Reeves were strongly disapproved of by the girl's mother, Mrs. Ella Reeves, of Horace avenue, Robert Blackburn, son of Mr. William P. Blackburn, made an unsuccessful attempt to elope by automobile on Thursday last. Owing to the mechanism of the car failing to work after he had gone comparatively a short distance, another attempt was made on Friday, but Miss Reeves, having decided to abide by her mother's wishes, refused to accompany Blackburn. Being disappointed in his second attempt, he handled the girl roughly, which led to his arrest. Blackburn was held before Magistrate William E. Hires, who rendered a charge of assault and battery. At the trial which was held Wednesday, the girl was withdrawn by Mrs. Reeves and Blackburn was freed on a three years' probation.

MAKES CATTLE MEAL AND TWO OILS FROM CHERRY PITS.

Sixteen hundred tons of cherry pits, now a source of annoyance and expense to canneries, can be made to yield two valuable oils and also a meal for feeding cattle. In addition, 105,000 gallons of cherry juice now wasted in seedling cherries can be turned into desirable jelly and syrup, or even into alcohol.

A saving of these valuable by-products from cherry canning may make possible the domestic manufacture of substitutes for almond oil and bitter almond oil, now imported, and at the same time establish a new industry in the cherry packing districts of the North Atlantic, North Central and Western States.

Specialists, however, have not yet carried their work to a point where they can say that the converting of this juice and the cherry pits would be a profitable side industry for the ordinary or smaller cannery. In cases where a number of canners are operating within a reasonable distance of one another, the specialists, however, believe that the waste products could be sent to a central co-operative or other plant at small cost and there utilized to advantage. Studies are being carried on to determine whether means cannot be devised for making these waste products profitable also when handled on a small scale.

Some time ago there was similar investigation of the use of peach and apricot pits for making oils and meal, and a commercial enterprise has been established in California for dealing with these products.

It was found that many tons of raisin seeds had considerable fruit adhering to them which could readily be turned into a very desirable raisin syrup for the use of confectioners and others. After this pulp had been used it was found that an oil useful in the arts could profitably be pressed from the seed, and experiments are under way to determine whether the crushed seed could not be used to advantage in feeding stock.

Omaha Father—"Now, Bobby, I have a little home all ready, and am going back East after your mother."

Bobby (late from the East)—"Well, I'll be a good boy while you're gone."

"You know, I told you if you were a real good boy I would bring you a present of your own selecting. Now, what do you want mamma and me to get for you?"

"Bring me a big boxful of stones to throw at cats."

WALNUT STREET THEATRE.

A dramatic and musical treat that should be no means be missed by theatre patrons and lovers of music in this city. "Will take place when the theatre is closed for the season."

"Madame Spy," the thrilling drama of the secret service will be seen at the Walnut Street Theatre, which opens its 1916 season on Labor Day, starting with a special holiday matinee, continuing throughout the week, including popular priced matinees on Tuesday and Thursday and regular Saturday matinees, with Herbert Clifton in the leading role of a naval cadet who impersonates a clever woman spy sent from the seat of war.

Mr. Morrison and Harry Clay Blaney, the dramatists who have written "Madame Spy," are men experienced in the work of the theatre, and from their past have dropped some of the most exciting plays of modern times. No one whose nerves are in "hot condition" should see this cold chills "run up and down the spine, and lift the audience out of its seats with one of the most dramatic and thrilling plays ever written.

Herbert Clifton has rightly been called a great "musical and dramatic find for this place. As a singer with the greatest lyric soprano voice in the world he astonished the country two years ago when he was one of the stars in the Ziegfeld Follies. The critics on the newspapers in the cities the show played, had to look up new words in their dictionaries to describe their delight and admiration of his great voice.

In "Madame Spy" Herbert Clifton gives his full musical program, and he is surrounded by a cast of able players, while the production is a beautiful and massive one.

The same policy which was in vogue last season—BEST SEATS ONE DOLLAR—NO HIGHER—will be adhered to by the management to prove the popularity of this theatre. Beside the popular priced Labor Day matinee there will be the usual Tuesday and Thursday matinees, as well as the regular Saturday matinee.

BEARS ARE THE BEST SWIMMERS

In spite of the fact that man is not an instinctive swimmer, as are most of the lower animals, he is not aquatic in endurance in the water. It is reported that in attempting to swim across the English Channel recently a man covered thirty miles before he succumbed to exhaustion. The only land animal that is known to be able to approximate such a feat are bears, which are probably the strongest swimmers among animals not specially adapted by nature for the water.

Deer and horses rank next to bears in swimming power. Deer swim rapidly and gracefully, and it is not uncommon for them to cover a distance of ten or fifteen miles in the water. Horses are powerful swimmers and have none of the aversion toward entering the water which is

ARE WE WEARY?

Are we weary of our waiting,
Are we growing rest and glum?
Are we tired of the labor,
Will the promise never come?
Are we hungry for the resting,
Are we longing for the end?
Makes no difference—lift the burden
And be on your way, my friend!

Are we anxious for the issue
Of our toil and of our fret?
Are we wondering in what measure
The rewards we're going to get?
Are we peevish, discontented,
Are we wondering what to do?
Never mind—the task that's given
Is the only thought of you!

Are we weary of the striving,
And the losing and the gain?
Are we tiring of the anger,
And the aching and the pain?
Are we eager, full of wonder,
Just to know what it may mean?
Ah, the curtain hides the answer
That no man has ever seen!

Are we feverish and fretful,
Do we think we've had enough?
Is the way still harder for us
And the road still growing rough?
There's no answer but the echo
Of a far-off cry—Go on!
Lay the burden of the twilight
Take it up again at dawn!

DIDN'T WANT ANY.

Our life-insurance agent, Benjamin F. Gunn, called the other day upon Mr. Butterwick, and the following conversation ensued:

Gunn—"Mr. Butterwick, you have no insurance on your life, I believe? I dropped in to see if I can't get you to go into our company. We offer unparalleled inducements, and—"

Butterwick—"I don't want to insure."

Gunn—"The cost is just, nothing worth speaking of, a mere trifle. And then you pay enormous dividends, so that you have the best security at such a little outlay, that you are perfectly comfortable and happy."

Butterwick—"But I don't want to be bothered with all this business. I'm perfectly comfortable as I am."

Gunn—"Now look at this thing in a practical light. You've got to be insured, if the horse is expected to swim any considerable distance, in order to save his neck, hold the animal tightly by the tail and allow it to tow you across. This relieves the horse of the weight of the body and enables him to swim faster and much further than otherwise would be the case."

Dogs vary greatly in ability as swimmers. The water spaniel, retriever, mastiff and St. Bernard excel all others. A retriever known to the writer once followed a canoe for nine miles. The dog was much exhausted, however, when drawn into the boat.

The elephant is a good swimmer, and the wild animals of the cat family, the tiger, the panther, the leopard and others do not hesitate to cross lakes and rivers. On the other hand, the domestic cat shrinks from immersion, and drowns quickly. The otter, with its webbed feet, is placed as the creature of a cold and heartless world. It will not swim.

Butterwick—"I wouldn't leave her a cent if I had millions. I'll do the old woman good to skunk around for her grub. Then she'll appreciate me."

Gunn—"Your poor little children, too. Fatherless, orphaned, they will have no one to fill their father's shoes, no one to protect them from harm. You die uninsured and they enter a life of suffering from the keen pangs of poverty. You live in our company, and they begin life with enough to feed and clothe them, and to raise them above the reach of want."

Butterwick—"I don't want to raise them above the reach of want. I want them to want. Best thing they can do is to tucker down to work like I do."

Gunn—"Oh, Mr. Butterwick! try to see the high view of the matter! When you are an angel, and your children are angels, the angels of earth, will it not fill you with sadness to see your dear ones exposed to the storm and blast, to hunger and cold, to the perilous waves of the sea? I want them to want. Best thing they can do is to tucker down to work like I do."

Butterwick—"I'm not going to be an angel, and if I was, I wouldn't care back."

Gunn—"You are a poor man now. Just do you know, when you are gone, that your family will have enough to pay your funeral expenses, to bury you decently?"

Butterwick—"I don't want to be buried."

Gunn—"Perhaps Mrs. Butterwick will be so indulgent at your request that she will not let you be buried, but she will not let her dear ones be buried."

Butterwick—"I don't want a burial, and I'd rather see my dear ones buried."

Gunn—"Well, then, I'm afraid you are on the wrong side of the ledger."

TEACHING BIRDS TRICKS.

A professor of natural history refuses the statement so frequently made that teaching a bird to draw water needs apparatus, and that the teaching is cruelty to the bird.

"The following experience of mine," he says, "proves that it is not so by any means. We bought a young bird last January, so wild that on our approach it flew wildly round the cage. We hung the cage low, and by patience, after the bird got used to our proximity, indeed it took ground, first held at arm's length, then between the fingers, finally from the lips. We used to let him out freely, and he would perch on the roof next his head. His perch, as predicted, was the wire, and he was his favorite seat when at liberty. Then I tried hanging a bit of bread in his beak. He took it, and he was such that he may accept the month's vacation and pursue extended him in his congregation."

An elaborate program is being arranged by the members of the Epworth M. E. Church for the dedication of the new building. The event will be celebrated by a week of events which will begin October 8.

THE ARREST OF PAUL

Acts 21: 27-40.

Golden Text: "Thou shalt be a witness for Him unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard." Acts 22: 15.

After leaving Miletus, where he had met the elders of the church at Ephesus, Paul and his companions journeyed as rapidly as they could to Tyre, the chief ship-producing city of the ancient world. It is said to have almost monopolized the shipping business. From Tyre they sailed south to Ptolemais, or called Acco, and from there traveled by land to Caesarea, the place from which Paul had first started on his missionary journey.

Both at Tyre and at Caesarea Paul received new prophetic warnings that he should not go to Jerusalem. But he still felt it his duty to press on. One reason for this, perhaps, was that he and his companions were taking to Jerusalem a considerable sum of money which he had collected from the churches in Greece for the relief of the poor Christians in Jerusalem. (Acts 24: 17).

We read that at Tyre the disciples said to Paul, through the Spirit, that he should not set foot in Jerusalem. That seems to have been a command rather than a warning, and it may be that Paul allowed his strong desire to go there to deceive him as to what the will of the Spirit for him was, but

THE "SCRAFFY" MONK.

An Italian organ grinder in a Western town had a monkey, and the monkey ran away and was ambled down the street, when it was attacked by a large yellow dog. For several seconds nothing could be seen but a cloud of dust, from which a monkey emerged, and scrambled up a barber's pole. The dog established himself at the foot of the pole and barked bravely, while the monkey chattered in several dialects and slid up and down the pole, keeping a wary eye on the enemy. Finally it slid down the pole again, and then suddenly bounded plump on the dog's back, and with teeth and claws made the hair fly. The dog jumped and howled and twisted himself, and finally rolled over. The monkey promptly took to the pole again. By this time the dog was crazed with rage and made every effort to get at the chattering monkey, until down the monkey dropped, as before. The teeth and claws were again brought into play, and this time the dog had enough. After worrying his antagonist by rolling him over he ran away as fast as his legs could carry him. The monkey chased him for a few yards and then returned to the pole, where he remained until recovered by his master.

"That man must love you. He made so much fuss over you. What's his name?"

"I don't know."

"That he seemed so glad to see you."

"Yes. He was very affable."

"Haven't you any idea who he is?"

"Not at all. I've seen his face somewhere, but I can't place him."

"But he acted like a long-lost brother."

"He surely did. I can't make up my mind whether he really knows me or is a candidate for office."

WHAT CONSTITUTES THE GREATNESS OF GOD?

Psalm 146: 3, 8, 14-18.

Our minds are finite and cannot grasp the infinite. We cannot even begin to comprehend the personality of God. And yet it is of the utmost importance that we should become intimately acquainted with God, and that we may be able to do so we must study His word.

God was the absolute power and unending wisdom of God. He was controlled by a love of righteousness that makes it quite safe to trust God in the assurance that He cannot be deceived. But power and ingenuity and wisdom are not the chief attributes of God. And David knew better than that.

while at Ocean City had received a fall which apparently sprained her arm. While she was immediately removed to the Municipal Hospital, the Camden authorities are in doubt as to whether it is the disease and have isolated the case to await further developments. It is thought that while the girl had a fever, it was due to a disordered stomach and the sprained arm as it was only confined from the wrist to the elbow.

—After having suffered from a stroke of paralysis for nearly a year, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Bell, wife of Mr. Frank C. Bell, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John C. My old head into every stone in the path if 'twould save your tender feet. But go slow, little girl, go slow.

The next forenoon St made various pretexts for lingering about the house so he could watch the visitor and hear what he said and to see how he looked at Alicia.

At noon he went to his employer, "go to," John," he announced. "Take the 4 o'clock train from town. Just time to shave and put on my other suit. Be gone a week, maybe."

"You can't go now," Alicia protested. "The farmer, wretchedly, gave me the wheat to cut and threshing. Wait a few weeks, and then I'll be gone upstairs."

After St left Ames' visits grew less frequent. Alicia was too preoccupied to more than nod at his coming, then forget his presence. Her face was troubled these days, her eyes full of uncertainty, eager, yet afraid.

Mr. Wythe had taken to wandering over the big farm, viewless. All sides looking at the splendid stock and riding after the fine horses and in the new automobile. Often he rubbed his hands.

John Treat also seemed very well satisfied. So much so that when St returned at the end of two weeks he seemed to have forgotten any difference between them. "Hello, St," he exclaimed cordially as the hired man entered the parlor where the men were at the best service. "We made a dropping his old carpet bag and hat upon the table. A small package was held in his hands as he sank into a chair.

"Walked all the three miles from town, carrying the stuff," he said, "an' it's 'bout done up my old legs. I wadn't goin' to pay no dollar to be brought out. How's things?"

"Fine, fine!" declared the farmer, beamingly. He nodded across toward Alicia, who was listening to some florid description of city life by their visitor. "Mr. Wythe was tellin' me only this mornin' that he's 'bout made up his mind to settle down here an' give up his big ranch. Says he likes this country best," with a wink. "So maybe we won't lose 'Licia after all."

"Oh, no, stop your foolishness," exclaimed the girl, flushing and looking annoyed. "I've never said a word about going away."

"No, but I heard Mr. Wythe hintin' 'bout a trip to Europe, an' then comin' here to settle down," retorted her father. "A' you listened mighty well. Now, St, tell us, your adventures. Where did you go?"

"Got young an' skittish, John," St chuckled. "I took a camera an' learned how to click it. Got some nice pictures of a pretty town in New York—Shady, they call it."

"What's that?" exclaimed Mr. Wythe, who had caught the word without listening.

"Shady," I said, the town you came from," answered the old man, calmly—"only out there they called you Bill Polder, an' you was boss barber in a shavin' shop. Funny, but I happened to board right next the tenement your wife an' children live in. Got to be real close with her, an' took a lot of pictures. Knew you'd be glad to see how the children's grown. Wife's gettin' mighty uneasy, though. 'Bout you being gone so long. Says you was huntin' a better job. Says, too, she was plannin' to look you up an' seemed real pleased when I told her you was here. St's liable to drop in any minute. Now, here's the pictures."

He stopped short, his fingers clutched the camera. "What's that?" exclaimed Mr. Wythe, who had caught the word without listening.

"We—el, now!" exclaimed St, as though surprised. "If that don't beat all! At I took the pictures 'specially for him, too, John."

But John had snatched up a horse whip and bolted after his visitor. "A whole lot of success and there came the swish, swish of swiftly descending blows, accompanied by piteous appeals for mercy."

Alicia crossed the room quickly and threw her arms about the old man's neck. "Oh, St, I'm so glad," she sobbed. "I'm going to tell you. I'm afraid of that man, though."

"I think," said the merchant, "I'll have to dismiss your friend Barnes. I never saw anything quite so lazy. All sides looking at the splendid stock and riding after the fine horses and in the new automobile. Often he rubbed his hands."

John Treat also seemed very well satisfied. So much so that when St returned at the end of two weeks he seemed to have forgotten any difference between them. "Hello, St," he exclaimed cordially as the hired man entered the parlor where the men were at the best service. "We made a dropping his old carpet bag and hat upon the table. A small package was held in his hands as he sank into a chair.

"Walked all the three miles from town, carrying the stuff," he said, "an' it's 'bout done up my old legs. I wadn't goin' to pay no dollar to be brought out. How's things?"

"Fine, fine!" declared the farmer, beamingly. He nodded across toward Alicia, who was listening to some florid description of city life by their visitor. ## For Governor SENATOR WALTER E. EDGE

The Logical Candidate

Because he has conspicuously led in preparing a business government for New Jersey and has a record of real accomplishment that cannot be questioned.

Because his opponents now endorse his program, but had little part in its making.

Because he prepared and passed the Budget Bill, the State Purchasing Bill and the Economy and Efficiency measures; the slogans of the present campaign—"A Business Administration."

Because ten of his eleven Senate Colleagues are supporting his candidacy, thus demonstrating the view of those most familiar with his work.

Because he has been leader of his party in the Assembly and the Senate; President of the Senate and Acting Governor of New Jersey.

Because he has served his apprenticeship in the State Government and led the way while others followed.

The Strongest Candidate

Because Senator Edge is removed from the factional strife of Essex and Hudson counties and will receive the full party vote on election day.

Because history proves that Governors from smaller counties have always received the largest majorities, thus completely shattering claims to the contrary.

The last three Republican Governors were Stokes, Fort and Murphy. The former from Cumberland County, received 52,000 plurality; the latter two both from Essex, 7,000 and 17,000 respectively, and one lost his own county of Essex.

Because people in these enlightened days are impressed by records, service and programs rather than unbacked claims of strength.

Because Senator Edge has made his own success in this world from a humble start and is thus better able to understand the needs of all citizens.

Because his Workmen's Compensation Act will bring him the support of all laboring men.

Because he is a born fighter and after the primaries can successfully meet the Democratic nominee with a record of accomplishment at his back.

Reward Senator Edge for his Faithful Service.

Primaries to Nominate, September 26th, 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Acts 23.

Golden Text: He is my refuge and my fortress; my God, in whom I trust. Psalm 91: 2.

We have seen Paul as a fanatical and fierce persecutor; we have seen him as a poor itinerant missionary, traveling over many countries to preach the Gospel, and suffering much persecution and many other hardships; but sustained by his intense devotion to the service of Christ and by his conscientiousness of the presence of Christ.

Now we are to see Paul as a prisoner in the hands of a ruthless, but generally just, government. The Roman Empire was a vast improvement on any of the world empires which had preceded it. Roman law almost everywhere and the Roman people had sense enough to know that their empire would be stronger and more easily governed if they interfered as little as possible with the customs and habits of conquered peoples. Bible, there are slight discrepancies between the different narratives. It is not worth while wasting time discussing such discrepancies. The revelation of God which the Bible brings to us is in the spirit, not in the letter, as Paul tells us (2 Cor.

3: 6) "For the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life."

In chap. 9: 7 we read that the men who journeyed with Paul toward

Damascus heard the voice, but beheld no man. In this chapter Paul says that they beheld the light but "heard not the voice of Him that spake to us." The explanation may possibly be in the fact that the word translated "voice" means also "noise." The men might have heard a sound without recognizing any words, as was the case when God answered Jesus from Heaven. Some said it was that

One of the most successful celebrations ever given by the Independence Fire Company was that of Saturday evening. The usual program was carried out with the exception of the demonstration. Music, dancing and fireworks being the amusements of the evening. The fire company was unusually fortunate in receiving many donations; the gifts of vegetables and fruit from the farmers were much appreciated, also the fine assortment of home-made cakes; one of these from Joseph Wallace, bringing $7. Mr. John G. Haslam, who has always felt very grateful to the fire company for their brave work when his home was ablaze, sent them a very fine cake, which brought them $8; he also made a cash donation of $5. All these expressions written, implied or expressed, are very gratifying to the fire company whose sole aim and purpose is to stand ready at all times to give this and the surrounding towns their valiant and unselfish service. Receipts are not all in, but they will be approximately $200.

PRIMARY ELECTION.

A duty that confronts every American citizen living in this State is the casting of his ballot on Tuesday next at the primaries.
In previous years very little interest has been manifested in Riverton and Palmyra by the voters and the primaries have been looked upon as of little or no importance. The continuance of the present prosperity of our country, its neutral relationship with our foreign neighbors and the local conditions can only be maintained by a strict observance of the right to vote and to vote right.
Sample ballots have been mailed every voter during the past week and it's his duty, as well as privilege, to peruse it carefully, weighing the character, ability and platform of every candidate, choose those that will do most for the majority and vote for that candidate.

It is only natural that every party have its favorites and by investigation we have found those receiving the highest praise by their individual parties for the nomination of Governor, U. S. Senator and Surrogate, respectively are: Republicans, Walter E. Edge, Jos. Fellinghuysen and Carleton Haines; Democrats, H. Otto Whittem, John W. Wescott, and Member of State Committee, James Mercer Davis. Choose now and vote Tuesday.

sacrifices and trials of a woman for the man she loves form its basis, and she is made to work out the destiny and triumph she achieves against what seem to be overwhelming odds. The story involves a murder mystery that baffles the detective skill of audiences and excites curiosity in a rare degree. There is a liberal infusion of comedy scenes and character and the play is said to be especially well balanced in its contrasting lights and shades. The company and production are under the direct supervision of W. C. Mason, the well-known director for the Keith Players by which organization the drama was first produced. The company is said to be a capable one.

Articles of glass, such as tumblers, fruit dishes, jump chimneys, globes, and other similar bric-a-brac, can be mended with a preparation of five parts of gelatine to one part of a solution of bichromate of potash. Cover the broken edges with this and press together, then place in direct sunlight for a few hours.

Wash a potato, wipe dry, and put it in your bread-pan. It will keep the bread fresh for days.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.
For September 24, 1916.
REVIEW—THE THINGS WHICH ARE NOT SEEN.
Reading Lesson—2 Cor. 4:1-5; 4:16.
Golden Text: We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal. 2 Cor. 4:18.
Our lessons for the quarter have covered the latter part of Paul's second missionary journey, and the whole of the third, ending with his captivity in Rome.

In his second journey he had gone over the whole central and southern part of Asia Minor, but had not been permitted to visit the northern or western provinces. Then he had crossed over to Europe, landing at Neapolis, and going north from that port to Philippi; where he was scourged and put in jail for part of a night.

It is at this point that our review begins. Leaving Philippi he journeyed to Thessalonica. There some bigoted Jews raised a mob for the purpose of beating Paul, but they did not find him, and he was sent away by night to Berea. Thessalonica, now called Salonika, is mentioned in our newspapers every day, for it is the headquarters in that part of the world of the armies of five great nations, but Philippi was a much more important city in Paul's time. It was at Philippi, not a hundred years before Paul's visit, that a great battle had been fought for the mastery of the world. Octavius Caesar and Mark Anthony defeated Brutus and Cassius, and Cassius committed suicide. It is possible that the outcome of the present world war may be greatly influenced by a battle not far from the same place.

Leaving Berea, because Jews from Thessalonica had pursued him to that place, Paul went by sea to Athens, and finding himself very lonely he sent back word to Silas and Timothy, whom he had left behind to teach the new converts, to come to him as soon as possible.

Paul seems to have been absolutely dependent on converts to sustain his kindred spirits. If there was an indication of weakness it was also an evidence of greatness; for love is the greatest thing in the world, and Paul was a great lover. He loved intensely, and needed love intensely. "When I am weak," then am I strong," Paul said. (2 Cor. 12: 9.) Why? Because his consciousness of weakness threw him into the arms of Christ, and thus became a source of strength. A very loving heart has a deep sense of need which only love can satisfy, but love wins love, and so strengthens those who cherish it.

Paul's visit to Athens, the centre of the world's culture at the time, seems to have had a depressing effect on his spirit. The vacuity of Greek philosophy, which for the most part was frivolous and got nowhere, distressed him. And the confidence of the philosophers in their own wisdom made it impossible to win many converts in that city. So he soon left it for the more practical and more purposeful city of Corinth. The love of money was a ruling passion in Corinth, and a low state of morals existed, but even these vices were not so great a hindrance to the spread of the Gospel as the frivolity and conceit of the Athenians. Even God can do nothing with a frivolous self-satisfied person.

After the prolonged stay in Corinth, eighteen months, Paul returned to Palestine. He landed at Caesarea and went up to Jerusalem. (This visit to Jerusalem is not expressly recorded, but it is evidently implied in the words, "he went up and saluted the church." (Cap. 15: 22.) for he had no occasion to go to Caesarea, except as a landing for Jerusalem. He did not make any stay there, however, but returned to his home church, from which he had been sent out at Antioch.

The account of Paul's third journey begins very unpretentiously at Chap. 18: 23. He first went over all the ground that he had been over before

For Governor SENATOR WALTER E. EDGE

The Logical Candidate

Because he has conspicuously led in preparing a business government for New Jersey and has a record of real accomplishment that cannot be questioned.

Because his opponents now endorse his program, but had little part in its making.

Because he prepared and passed the Budget Bill, the State Purchasing Bill and the Economy and Efficiency measures; the slogans of the present campaign—"A Business Administration."

Because ten of his eleven Senate Colleagues are supporting his candidacy, thus demonstrating the view of those most familiar with his work.

Because he has been leader of his party in the Assembly and the Senate; President of the Senate and Acting Governor of New Jersey.

Because he has served his apprenticeship in the State Government and led the way while others followed.

The Strongest Candidate

Because Senator Edge is removed from the factional strife of Essex and Hudson counties and will receive the full party vote on election day.

Because history proves that Governors from smaller counties have always received the largest majorities, thus completely shattering claims to the contrary. The last three Republican Governors were Stokes, Fort and Murphy. The former from Cumberland County, received 52,000 plurality; the latter two both from Essex, 7,000 and 17,000 respectively, and one lost his own county of Essex.

Because people in these enlightened days are impressed by records, service and programs rather than unbacked claims of strength.

Because Senator Edge has made his own success in this world from a humble start and is thus better able to understand the needs of all citizens.

Because his Workmen's Compensation Act will bring him the support of all laboring men.

Because he is a born fighter and after the primaries can successfully meet the Democratic nominee with a record of accomplishment at his back.

Reward Senator Edge for his Faithful Service.

Primaries to Nominate, September 26th, 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

RELIGIONS.

1 Cor. 10: 30-32.

Our topic suggests a comparison between the religions that men have invented and the religion which God has revealed.

There is no comparison. You might as well try to compare light with darkness, or black with white.

It is quite true that any religion is better than none, and it is quite true that some religions are better than others. But the religion which God has revealed is the only religion that is true.

WORKING TOGETHER WITH GOD.

Phil. 2: 12, 13.

Our religion brings us into partnership with God. We are the active partners managing the business. God is the capitalist who provides the resources, guides us by his council, inspires us by his promises, and sustains us in hours of weakness. He gives us access to the storehouse of his treasures with permission to call for what we need. But this partnership with God is only effective in proportion as we put ourselves at God's disposal and allow Him to use us. He uses us.

The first question that we have to face is the question of our own personal salvation. There are two elements in salvation. The first is pardon for sin and reconciliation with God. And the second is deliverance from bondage to sin and consecration to the service of God. And for both we are absolutely dependent upon God.

GAINES, and our WAGON WEL STOP

God is far more anxious to save us and to transform us into His own image than we can possibly be to be saved. The fact that we cannot enter the Christian life without His help is not therefore any excuse for delay, because His help is always available if we are willing to accept it on His terms.

We can do nothing without God, and in as far as we are personally concerned, He can do nothing without us. He will not do anything for us independently of us that we can do for ourselves. He will not do anything for us that we can do for ourselves.

LOCAL SPORTS

FIELD CLUB TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Russell Gibson, the sensation of the 1916 tournament, won the annexation of his third victory last Saturday, advanced to the final round of the singles, winning the first set 6-1 and the second by the score of 9-7.

This brought two Gibsons (Walter and Russell) together in the final. Russ played a splendid game against tremendous odds, but was compelled to bow down to defeat before the onslaught of his younger brother, 6-3, 6-4 and 6-1.

This Saturday, October 7, D. K. Finley will be on from Virginia to defend the Three Year Trophy Cup, on which he won the first leg last year. It will be remembered that Walter Gibson was the runner-up in the 1915 tournament.

In the doubles, Stanley Green and Arthur Wright captured a three-set match from Francis and Edward Durgin 8-6, 6-8 and 6-4.

Geo. and Louis Bostel were unable to stop Pete Weart and Kelton, who are making what it appears will be a successful effort to gain possession of the title of the latest fashion. They played well together and won their match, 7-5, 6-4.

Frank Mathews put up a nice game against Tony Boehm, the match going to three sets. Tony was the victor, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, only to meet his fate in the semi-final, as recounted above.

In consolation singles, Louis Bostel defeated Morris Allen, 6-1, 6-4.

Francis and Edward Durgin defeated Kipp and Seger, 6-3, 6-3, in consolation doubles.
