THE SIGN OF THE RED CROSS

Y. M. C. A. Building

Broad and Garfield Ave.

(By M. W. WISHAM)

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR

Saturday afternoon and evening, December 15, at Red Cross headquarters in Y. M. C. A. Building, a bazaar for the sale of useful and fancy articles will be held, the proceeds to be devoted to purchasing material for supplies urgently needed at the front. Provision is being made for the sale of candy, fancy goods, cakes, groceries, delicatessens and ice cream. A special feature will be an assortment of dolls sold at reasonable prices. Everyone is invited to patronize the bazaar as many ornamental and useful Christmas gifts for young and old may be secured. A special price doll and fruit cake in an embellished box will be attractions.

Help Needed at Once

Women of the Red Cross, rally at the workrooms, an urgent cable has been received from Major Murphy requesting a large quantity of certain kinds of standard and special dressings, which must be in New York and ready for shipment not later than December 24, as the lives of our men depend upon the prompt receipt of these dressings, precedence will be given these shipments over all others. Five hundred have been allotted this chapter. We know you will appreciate this service in the Atlantic Division, which is asked for 400,000. Come and help.

Refugee Garments

France, Belgium, Italy and many other countries are filled with refugees and repatriates, who have earth under them and sky over them and the American Red Cross for a friend—that is all. Under these circumstances they look to the Red Cross for everything that makes for comfort in life, food and shelter. It may be possible that in Palmyra there is some woman who has not worked at the Red Cross headquarters or given her time and energy to the Red Cross cause. If so, she is advised to come to the Red Cross headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. Building, Broad and Garfield Aves., and see how she can help.

The writer of this column has no excuse to offer for the continual appeals to the people of Palmyra for aid to assist the Red Cross branch of our beloved town in works of mercy, realizing that our people have thus far done nobly, there yet remains much to be done. Gladly would we if it were possible at this Christmastide announce "Peace Reigneth." The horrorfulness of war is with us. Before me the many letters descriptive of the intense suffering of mankind one tells of the entire present generation of Poland facing immediate starvation, another of the devastated sections of France with no building covered by a roof, another of 1000 Belgium children between four and thirteen years sick and orphaned seeking for home care in the little town called "Troche," where stands the famous monastery of La Grande Chartreuse, a place where roses bloom all the year round. From the mountain tops, by the sea and from the sandy deserts come the cries of distress. The American people have heard the cry and answered. The echo of distress is still appealing and the echo's echo may follow. The Red Cross is "God's Angel" to carry succor to all and. Be ye not weary in well doing.

As soon as the membership cards of persons having recently joined the local branch are received from Washington they will be distributed.

Members of Red Cross throughout the United States will be asked to place a Red Cross emblem in their window Christmas night and arrange for its illumination in honor of the close of the drive for 15,000,000 members.

A large bundle containing sweaters, scarfs, socks and wristlets was conveyed to headquarters this week. A consignment of wool has been received and ready for distribution by the knitting department.

A sewing machine has been loaned by Mrs. William F. Letford, an additional one by Mrs. M. W. Wisham. If the work increases it may be necessary to call for others.

Thanks are extended to all persons loaning their automobiles for use in Red Cross work.

There is nothing like knowing how to do a thing—unless it is the faculty of being able to do it when you know how.

CAMP DIX BOYS TO BE HERE SATURDAY

Will Be Entertained in the Evening

The postponed visit of a contingent of the boys at Camp Dix will be paid to Riverton and Palmyra this weekend.

These "men of Uncle Sam" will arrive here about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and will be escorted to the Epworth M. E. Temple, where a reception will take place and where those that have offered to take some of these men as their guests, will meet with them.

An entertaining program in the nature of an informal reception and "welcome to our city" will be fulfilled on Saturday evening in the Temple Building.

All come out and show these boys that Riverton and Palmyra have a warm spot in their hearts for Camp Dix.

WASHINGTON CAMP, NO. 23, NEW JERSEY PATRIOTIC ORDER SONS OF AMERICA

At the special meeting of State Camp, Trenton, N. J., November 28, an appropriation was made to share the expense of the associated fraternal societies at Camp Dix.

A feature of the session was the presence of a real son of America in the person of Chief Charles Bender, the noted ball player, a descendant of the Chippewas.

The chief, a member of a Philadelphia camp, is deservedly popular as a square player and a patriotic citizen. The Burlington County Association holds its next meeting, December 15, at Delanco, and a large delegation from No. 23 should attend.

Several matters affecting the financial interests of the local camp will be considered during the remainder of this term. Nominations of officers will be made December 24 and election held December 31.

More proposals will be considered.

Next Tuesday will be the regular monthly mothers' meeting. Mrs. Bowker will have charge.

Men and women by the thousands are working to educate the boys to avoid the dangers of the saloon and to make the adult see his responsibility to protect the lad by prohibiting the iniquitous traffic in alcoholic beverages, so the mothers are not waging alone the battle for the safeguarding of her son.

RED CROSS SEAL SALE IS NOW IN EVIDENCE

$150,000 the Goal for New Jersey
$3,000,000 the Goal for the United States

The slogan of three times as many as last year has been adopted. New Jersey sold 5,125,254 seals and hopes this year to increase it to 15,000,000 seals. The net proceeds from this sale will be used in the most modern ways of fighting tuberculosis and saving our country from this scourge.

Slogan—"Use Three Times as Many Seals as Last Year"

The Christmas seal forms a connecting link between this great organization for the relief of suffering and one of the country's greatest agencies for the prevention of suffering. To insure this success means to greatly increase funds. Upon the sale of Red Cross seals this depends. The National Association is out after $3,000,000. Let us help them get it.

Large Audience Hears Excellent Musical and Literary Entertainment

Program Full of Patriotism and Inspiration

The entertainment given by the Home Guard of Palmyra on Thursday evening at Epworth Temple, was an unqualified success.

The Home Guard wish to express through this paper their appreciation to Mrs. Margaret McL. Williams and her co-artists, for this beautiful, inspirational and patriotic performance. Mrs. Williams, as usual, gave us new thoughts, higher thoughts, and an uplift to our "unflagging patriotism."

The other ladies in their musical sections can aptly be spoken of as "addressesses."

Mr. Howell, the only male, to judge from the manner his selections were received by the ladies, particularly the married ones. We will call "Ma-rs" and let it go at that.

Ladies and gentlemen please again receive the heartfelt thanks of the Home Guard of Palmyra, and may we be able to serve you equally as well should you require our services.

Thanks to Mr. John C. Hoepfner for the beautiful and appropriate decorations which added materially to the success of the occasion.

Those participating in the evening's program were Miss Eleanor Snyder, Margaret McL. Williams, Louis James Howell, Nina Prettyman Howell, Beatrice Flint Collins, Paulin T. Becker, Carl J. Becker and Elizabeth Purvis Barrie. Accompanists Mabel M. Foster and Ruth Peterson Bell.

APPRECIATION

My Friends in Palmyra: With deep appreciation that I owe thanks to my friends in Palmyra on Sunday morning when their daughter, Norma Edwina, was united in marriage to Mr. William H. Bleakley, of Mt. Clemens, Michigan, by Rev. William Barker, of Hempstead Baptist Church.

The bride was attired in a traveling suit of green broadcloth and carried two roses. She was attended by Miss Madeline Bennett, of Hempstead, who wore a costume of violet crepe de chine and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Mr. E. Calvin Hinkle, brother of the bride. Decorations were chrysanthemums and roses. A dainty breakfast was served following the ceremony, after which the happy couple left for Washington, D. C. enroute for Houston, Texas, where Mr. Bleakley is in command of the Aviation Section, U. S. A.

Mrs. Bleakley is a former resident of Palmyra, being widely known among the younger social circles.

BUYING THE RIBBON

"Henry, dear," said Mrs. Newbride, to her husband the other morning, "I wish, if it won't be too much trouble, dear, that you'd bring me home a yard of orange ribbon this evening."

"I don't want it so very wide, or so very narrow; something between an inch and an inch and a half, or, at most, an inch and three-quarters, will be about right."

"Be sure and get a pretty shade of orange, dear; and I'd prefer it with one side satin and the other grosgrain, although all satin or all grosgrain will do; but I think you can easily get the other if you look about a little; and be sure, dear, not to get pique-ed ribbon, but one with just a plain corded edge; and don't get a remnant; and don't get any shade but orange; not a real vivid orange, either, but a piece that will look well with pale green; and don't pay too much for it; and don't get red, or blue, or green, or pink by mistake. You won't forget, will you, dear? I must have the ribbon to-night."

Was it any wonder that when the dazed Henry came home he brought three yards of sky-blue watered ribbon, or that, when his wife saw it, she sank into a chair and gasped out:—"Why—Henry—Newbride!"

"Come back here!" yelled Mrs. O'Brien. "Come back here and explain this."

"Explain what?" asked Mr. O'Brien, with a look of innocence.

"Explain why you are a quarter short in your pay this week," demanded Mrs. O'Brien.

"Oh, yes," explained Mr. O'Brien, as he edged towards the door. "I almost forgot to tell you. The boiler exploded when I was in the engine-room this morning, and the foreman docked me for the time I was up in the air."

RIVERTON SCHOOL NOTES

Mrs. Clara McCord, our seventh grade teacher, observed the same grade of work in the Baltimore Public Schools on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

A MYSTERIOUS EAGLE

Conflicting stories are told concerning a very large stonework eagle which is situated on the broad top of a stony rain-fallen hill in middle Georgia. The one point that seems to be certain is that the Indians left the eagle as a legacy to the State. A hundred years from now it will probably be found lying on its back, with outspread wings and tail even as it lies today. For it is made of quartz, the rocks lap and overlap in such a manner as to represent feathers. No cement holds them in position, and the stones vary in weight from half a pound to three or four pounds. The image rests on a very firm foundation, for the stonework extends several feet into the ground.

Once, perhaps twice, treasure-seeking vandals dug into the breast of the eagle; but the work must have proved too laborious, for the diggers gave up before they had reached the bottom layer of overlapping stones.

Rough but fairly accurate measurements of the bird show the length of the head to be one hundred and two feet, and from tip of tip of outspread wings one hundred and twenty feet. The length of the beak is ten feet, and the height of the body at the center of the breast is ten feet. The eagle lies with its head to the west.

Tradition does not give any satisfactory explanation of the age or the meaning of the great stone eagle. It may have had religious significance to the red men who built it, and it may be the burial place of some great chief. It is a most mysterious and interesting prehistoric monument.

HE BROUGHT THE DOOR ALONG

"One of the most original characters I ever met, especially in his way of doing things," began Snaggy, with a reminiscent smile. "The name was Ephraim Joggins, who owned a side-hill farm a mile or so from Basswood, Fla. I lived in his place for several years and got pretty well acquainted with Joggins and his ways, and during that time I never knew him to do anything in the same manner that any other man would have done. If there was any wrong or outlandish method of doing a thing, Joggins was sure to find it out, and do it that way. His mental faculties seemed to work differently from other persons'; or, as I may say, he possessed a left-handed intellect, so that what appeared to be the wrong way of doing things to other people, appeared to be the right way to him. One incident that happened while I was living in his place illustrates this."

Joggins lost the key to his front door and wanted to get another. Any one else under those circumstances would have uncured the lock and taken it to the locksmith's to have a key fitted to it. But Joggins didn't. He carefully took the door off the hinges, although he had to remove nine screws in the operation, and then, hitching up his team to the big lumber wagon, he drove round to the front of the house, lifted the heavy door into the wagon and calmly drove off to the locksmith's, a mile and a half away.

"When he went in, empty-handed, and told the locksmith he wanted a door lock fitted with a key, the locksmith looked up from his work and said:

"'All right; bring your lock and time you happen to be going by and I'll attend to it.'"

"Got it here now," says Joggins, kind of careless-like. "Didn't know but you'd come out to the wagon and do the job out there, but it's all right. I'll bring it right in."

"And Joggins went out and tugged away until he got that door out of the wagon, and a minute later he came staggering into the shop with it on his back.

"'There you are!' he sang out, as he propped the door up against the counter.

"'I didn't want to offend a good customer,' said the locksmith in telling some friends about it later in the day. 'Joggins always paid cash down for everything he bought or for any job he had done; but it was mighty hard work keeping my face straight while I was fitting a key to that lock and helping Joggins get the door back into the wagon. But I never even smiled until Joggins was out of sight and hearing. Then I sat down and laughed until my sides ached!'"

ZACHARY TAYLOR

A grizzled old man, clad in trousers and undershirt, sat at his tent door on the early morning of Washington's Birthday, 1847, scraping away with a dull razor at his three-day stubble of gray bristles.

The old man was Zachary Taylor—farmer, Indian fighter, military genius. He was a failure. Not through any fault of his own, but because the Administration at Washington had decided to make a failure of him.

When, in 1846, a clash had come between the United States and Mexico the Administration had believed the way would be unopposed. Also, that James K. Polk, the President, would be censured for starting it. A scape-

"General Taylor has been defeated no less than three times to-day," commented one of his officers to another.

"Yes," dryly agreed the second officer. "But he doesn't know it."

Under cover of night, on the 23d of February, the Mexican army reeled back in utter defeat, all but annihilated by Taylor's brave militiamen.

The man who "had been beaten three times and didn't know it" returned to the United States to find himself a national hero. The Administration's efforts to ruin him proved to be the Administration's own downfall. For at the next Presidential election the tide of popular favor swept Taylor into the White House.

The old man was disgusted at his own election to the Presidency. He declared it was a conspiracy to keep him from enjoying his last years in comfort on his farm.

"There are compensations for most things!" said Mrs. Wilkins. "Poor James was run over by a motor-car yesterday, but he had a smile on his face when they took him to the hospital."

"Why the shille?"

"He was carrying home a rake at the time, and it punctured a tire."

Pretty Christmas Gifts

CRETONNE KNITTING BAG.

She who has not a knitting bag must feel like a stranger in a strange land. Christmas will give opportunity to the woman in polite society. Also to replace her with this requisite of the modern woman. Also to replace her with this requisite of the modern woman. Also to replace her with this requisite of the modern woman.

Those of cretonne have everything to recommend them. They are cheerful and durable and they are inexpensive as bags go.

The handsome bag in the picture is made of tan cretonne with black stripes and Japanese designs in brilliant colors and foliage. It is lined with bright green satin and finished with clusters of satin-covered apples in tan, red and green at each side.

The handles are of this wood and are round with a flat gold band.

LOLLYPOPS FOR YOUNGSTERS.

If Santa Claus finds himself short of money anywhere he invites his attention to those dressed-up lollypops. They will delight the children. A lollypop is a flat piece of candy on the end of a stick and it lasts a long time. All sorts of little figures of things animate and inanimate are made by colors. In all-white they are suitable to any age.

The set pictured is a favorite for street wear or with tailored suits. It is of white organdy having little ruffles in light tan color. Handsome sets are also made of white and cream or ivory satin but nothing is more durable or dainty than organdy.

CHRISTMAS CANDLES.

This year's Christmas candles will be dressed out with shades in red, white and blue, as well as in the customary red and green. There are two, among many others, in which the national colors are skillfully used to make graceful shades. The shades on the left is mainly red with white and blue in ruffles and braided strands about the top and bottom.

White over red in the other candle makes a pretty background for small

ALWAYS WELCOME CHINA.

Here are a cake basket and a bonbon dish made of small plates set in baskets of paper rope. They are the sort of gift the housewife always welcomes and require a small outlay of money and the time of the maker. With prettily decorated plates and the clever use of paper and twine, handsome baskets reward the efforts of those who learn the art of basketry.

The baskets shown are in dark brown, and that one holding the bonbon dish is brightened with a yellow cord woven in a cross pattern over the braid.

RIBBONS AND LACES IN CAPS.

Along comes Christmas, each year attended by a berry of adorable breakfast caps always prettier than those of other years. Here are two which will be a conspicuous place to be admired. Its envied owner cannot lose sight of it or refuse to behave as he should when soiled collars or handkerchiefs are to be disposed of.

The lantern bag makes a beautiful gift for anyone and is made of Japanese silk, red velvet and gold braid. It is finished with handsome silk tassels and suspended by a silk cord. A cover is made for the top of the lantern and boys in the service made for many kits and portfolios are alike in all details.

THE LANTERN BAG.

No matter how many laundry bags have vainly bought our male friends to be orderly, this lantern bag has every chance of success in fulfilling its mission. It is a thing of beauty that will never be relegated to a closet, but is destined to spend its days hung where there is no table. On the other side are compartments for paper, envelopes, post cards and stamps. A narrow strap at the bottom is sewed down at the center to carry pen and pencil. Ink can be carried in solid form now. It comes in small sticks that dissolve in water. The case fastens with strong snap fasteners as indicated in the picture.

It is a good idea to embroider the initials on belongings made for the boys in the service because so many kits and portfolios are alike in all details.

When the baby is to have a patriotic bent given to his affections, by means of toys this year. Uncle Sam appears among the clever, home-made Christmas dolls, that reveal a rubber ball somewhere in their anatomy. They have limp bodies, stuffed with a little cotton and are dressed in cotton fabric.

Besides it is another evidence of thoughtfulness on the part of the donor.

NECKWEAR FOR CHRISTMAS.

No more acceptable present can be found for any woman young or old than the collar and cuff sets of organdy which add so much to the tailored suit or the one-piece frock. For the younger women these sets are shown in pale tints or in white with ruffles in light

HOMEMADE CHARACTER DOLLS.

Carl and Pat along with Gretchen and Hortense, are making eyes at us this Christmas, inviting us to inquire into their merits. They belong to a new order of the beloved rag dolls that have always held the warmest corner of little folk's hearts.

These dolls are made of discarded socks or stockings and stuffed with fine of lace at each edge headed by a fancy braid.

This year's Christmas candles will be dressed out with shades in red, white and blue, as well as in the customary red and green. GOLDIER'S PORTFOLIO.

A small, neat portfolio to carry stationery, pen and pencil for the soldier is one of the gifts that can be made for him at home. It is a simple affair, of substantial brown denim, and requires nothing else but thread and snap fasteners, to make a very complete and handy writing case.

As shown in the picture, the case is about ten inches wide and sixteen inches long. One side of it holds three letters that make a good support for the writing tablet in cramped quarters where there is no table. On the other side are compartments for paper, envelopes, post cards and stamps. A narrow strap at the bottom is sewed down at the center to carry pen and pencil. Ink can be carried in solid form now. It comes in small sticks that dissolve in water. The case fastens with strong snap fasteners as indicated in the picture.

PULPIT TOPICS
THE MEANING OF ADVENT
Jesus could say while here on earth that He was always in heaven; that He dwelt in the haven of the Father's love and from thence projected His efforts in perfect harmony with the Eternal Will. Paradise was within reach of the blood-stained cross; His effulgence shone on the stable at Bethlehem. Those who thus believe are, properly speaking, peculiar beings. Christ's disciples are not themselves alone; they are themselves plus the glory of His advent; in its radiance they bathe as flowers in the sun. The age may be prodigious; it may have come to the last stage of rebellion and weakness, its ease of body and aloof of soul stripped off, its painted face washed white by the waters of life. Since the First Advent Jesus has dealt with men, enmeshed in their worship and their affection. The kingdom of His holiness has contained His blessed Presence, a constant sustaining, guiding, admonishing, inspiring Power. In the steady progress of Goodness, the conquest of the hogs of moral rottenness, the spread of truth, the diffusion of a wholesome faith, you can trace the controlling genius of Christ. Meditate on these outstanding facts; set them over against the terror of the times, yield their obedience, clinging to the dethroned Christ, the Prince of Peace, the Lord of the Ages. In this is your confidence, no man among you, however commonplace, can fall off from this confidence for his own sake.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT AT THE WALNUT
It will be good news to a myriad of folks to learn that Mr. Chauncey Olcott will resume his stellar place in the theatre, and that his tour under the direction of Messrs. Cohan and Harris, embracing a visit to this city and a two weeks' stay at the Walnut Street Theatre, commencing Tuesday night, December 25, with the usual matinee.
Mr. Olcott will be seen in an entirely new play from the pen of Miss Rachel Crothers, who it will be recalled, furnished the comedian with one of his great plays, "The Heart of Paddy Whack."
"Once Upon a Time" is the name of his latest vehicle. It is a purely American play and said to be admirably suited to Mr. Olcott's particular requirements in the measurement of which Miss Crothers has been singularly successful.
During the play Mr. Olcott will sing "Come Back to Ireland and Me," "My Irish Song of Songs," "My Little Colonel," "Once Upon a Time," and, by special request, "My Wild Irish Rose."
Mr. Olcott's supporting company for presentation of "Once Upon a Time" includes Edward Fielding, Elmer Granados, Miss Ethel Wilson, Miss Jessalyn Ralph, Bonnie Marie and George Brennan.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR AND EPWORTH LEAGUE TOPIC
For December 28, 1917
WHAT WILL YOU GIVE AT CHRISTMAS, THE BIRTHDAY OF LOVE?
It is not without good reason that the professed followers of Christ generally adopted the habit of giving presents on Christmas. The habit has become so confirmed that it has come to be looked upon as a matter of course, and not only among Christians, but among all classes. And in proportion as it has become a matter-of-course it has lost much of its spiritual value. It is a good thing to give, but from which it springs. How many of those who will give presents to others this Christmas will think of God's great gift on Christmas day in connection with their own giving, and try to make their gifts in some degree a manifestation of their gratitude to God, and of their desire to imitate the great Giver?
It is a very great misfortune that the giving of presents at Christmas has come to be thought of as an obligation, for that thought robs the practice of the spontaneity which is its very essence. It is a misfortune, too, that many have come to think of the giving of presents as a duty, and that they have come to think of it as a duty which must be performed, and that they have come to think of it as a duty which must be performed, and that they have come to think of it as a duty which must be performed.

A couple of country yokels on their first visit to Long were standing near the Bank waiting for an opportunity to cross over to the Mansion House. They waited for some time, watching the vehicular and foot traffic streaming by, but to their amazement it did not seem to decrease in quantity. So one of them went to a policeman, who was standing near, and asked: "Can you tell me how long this procession is going to last?" The officer grinned and replied: "It'll be on till near midnight, I expect."
"Mean alive!" said one yokel to the other, awe-struck, "but this must be the largest procession on record!"

FIRST LOT OF QUESTIONNAIRES SENT OUT ON DECEMBER 15TH

Advisory Board Named to Assist Young Men in Answering Questions

William B. C. Rorby having been appointed chairman of the Advisory Board of Palmyra by the Local Board of Palmyra, the following committee: Perry C. Clark, W. R. Harman, George C. Clover, Fred A. S. Griffith, James Hartley, Arnold J. Beckenbach, William A. Donahy and George S. Porter.

This committee met for the first time in the Field Club rooms on Wednesday evening and formulated plans whereby they might fulfill the duty assigned to them to assist those making out these questionnaires.

On and after Wednesday night last, with the exception of the holidays and Sundays there will be no less than two members of the board who will sit in the Field Club rooms to render the registrants this assistance, from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

These forms must be made out correctly and returned to the District Board not later than seven days after the date appearing on the first page of the questionnaire.

In case there is an error made on the form, a new one must be obtained from the District Board as no erasures will be accepted.

Registrants are also advised to keep in touch with the names posted on Form 1002 in the Riverside City Hall, giving the dates these questionnaires have been sent, as delays of delivery in the mail will excuse no one.

The first one to be assisted was Mr. Earl Chopper, who finally finished answering his questions after a several hours' battle.

YULETIDE AT THE BROAD

A new play from the pens of two of the leading observers and depictees of American life, Booth Tarkington and Elmer Rice, is to be the Christmas and New Year's attraction at the Broad Street Theatre, after a four month stay at the Gayety Theatre in New York. It is called "The Philanthropist" and its title is none other than Alexandra Gardie, who is surrounded by a distinguished company of players.

Both Mr. Tarkington and Mr. Rice are frank in asserting that they have attempted to protect upon the stage in their new play a young woman who will "teach the real Americans."

—Mr. and Mrs. R. Colebaugh, of Franklin, Pa., will be entertained on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gibson, of Charles street.

—The well known actress, Mrs. J. M. Graham, will appear at the Lyceum theatre on Saturday.

LAW AND LIBERTY

Exodus xxi:1 and 2: "And God spake all these words, saying, I am the Lord thy God that brought thee out of the land of Egypt and out of the house of bondage."
The Scriptures from which this text is quoted reveal the Children of Israel in a very critical time of their history. They are living in the wilderness of Sinai under the guidance of Moses, their great leader. They are a free people once again, having just obtained deliverance from the Egyptian nation, which held them as slaves and bond servants.

Their suffering under the Oriental tyranny was unbearable. The cruelties which were heaped upon this proud people had the purpose of breaking their national and racial spirit, and was very nearly successful. They were crushed and humiliated by the burden of their slavery and had reached that point of abject submission to their masters that left no hope of recovery. When Moses, their emancipator, tried to free them from their bondage, they were so far from being grateful that they rebelled against him and sought to bring freedom to their own hands and to increase their burdens and sorrows.

It is an appalling calamity to see a proud nation so utterly broken and hopeless, losing its own vision, content to bear the shackles of slavery, and so far crushed and subdued as to be unwilling and unable to make protest against it. This is the picture of Israel when Moses was trained by God and fitted to become the emancipator of his people. There to be unquestionable and inarguable.

Now it is just at this point that we want to take your thoughts back to my text. Israel had escaped from the bondage of Egypt and was entering upon the great experiment of liberty of democracy. The tremendous problems of a free people were facing her, the molding of a nationality out of a people revelling in the freedom of their individualism. And God said, Thou shalt not. Thou shalt not. Thou shalt not. We can follow the movement. Escape from tyranny and autocracy into the liberty of democracy and then into council of submission to theocracy or government under the advice of Jehovah.

The wisdom of man or any combination of the wisdom of myriads of men cannot make the world safe. Right humanity to its highest power, and we have our present civilization, and that of old Rome or Greece, and the world is not safe for the people.

But has not Christianity failed? No, not yet. Is Christianity practicable in personal life? Any man who knows Augustine before and after his confession will have no doubt. The testimony to the practicability of letting the spirit of Christ enter into an individual's life and bringing great representative forces into being is given by millions of just such as we are. I hope each man and woman here can give evidence to the fact that the family life was cast aside by those who would be most holy. No, Christianity has never been tried in the government or in the development of world affairs.

The greatest call for the advancement of human happiness, under the leadership of Christ, has been left to a coterie of clergymen and faithful women and children. It has not been heard as God's call to men of strength and power. To save the world for democracy. But how? Democracy? How futile alone. But democracy under the law of Christ—how good. Liberty alone, how absurd, how chaotic. But liberty under the law of God—how noble.

The ideal of the Kingdom of God—read it in the New Testament again. Fill your mind and soul full of the parables of the Kingdom of God, the Good Shepherd, the Good Samaritan, the Prodigal Son. It is to bring our world democracy under Christ's law that will make the world safe. Jesus Christ is still the Saviour of mankind, and there is none other name under heaven that can bring redemption and permanent salvation to the race. It is by yielding to Him that the world will be made safe and man shall have peace. The New Testament again, but Christ's truth that shall make men free.

HIDDEN WATERS
Owing to many causes the amount of water held in the rocks or other materials that compose the earth's depth of three miles—has, been estimated by different writers with widely different results. A recent estimate is given by Mr. Fuller, of the United States Geological Survey. Department of the Interior, who concludes that the total amount of free water in the crust of the earth would make a layer one hundred feet thick over the entire surface of the earth. Other writers have estimated the amount as very much greater.

A rather raw servant girl was told to order the family vegetables at the greengrocer's. After looking what was asked for, the tradesman queried: "Will your mistress want any horse radish to-day? Some just in, nice and fresh."

Tossing her head, Mary Jane said: "No, indeed; we want no such thing, I know. My master keeps a motor car."

THE LEAGUE'S JUBILEE
For December 26, 1912
The fifteenth year was a great year in Israel, a year of release, for the Israelite bond-servants and of restoration to the land to the Israelites. The law required that the Israelite should be free of debt to his Israelite owners. There were two reasons for this law, apart from the obvious one of saving the nation from becoming divided into two classes—property owners and serfs.

One reason was that God claimed sole ownership of the land, and the people were to be kept constantly in mind of that claim by the law that the land could not be sold away from the Israelite heirs. The tithing of farm produce (the only tithes which the Israelites were required to pay) was also designed as a means of asserting God's ownership of the soil (Lev. 25: 13).

Another reason was that the permanent settlement of the land by families, each family remaining on its own allotment, helped to keep the records of descent clear, so that the Israelite could trace his descent from the head of his tribe as long as the law in regard to property was observed.

All the institutions which God gave Israel were designed to keep them constantly in mind of His claims upon them. The Israelite was to be a free man, and the year of Jubilee was a sort of culmination or climax, recurring often enough to the Israelite in the thoughts of the people.

"O, Sarah!" exclaimed the one who had not been "moved" by the soprano, "O Sarah, what a sweet singer!" "Yes, and what a voice for a woman!" exclaimed Sarah. "If I could have secured him for father's funeral, it would have made a beautiful occasion!"

"I should think not," returned her friend, decidedly. "The woman lacks soul." "I am not sure," said the soprano, "but I have listened half-anxiously to hear what the old ladies would say of him." "O, Sarah!" exclaimed the one who had not been "moved" by the soprano, "O Sarah, what a sweet singer!" "Yes, and what a voice for a woman!" exclaimed Sarah. "If I could have secured him for father's funeral, it would have made a beautiful occasion!"

HERE'S TO THE MAN
Here's to the man who knows his mind, and to his word keeps true; Who, rough or smooth works at his best, nor brags of "derring do"; Who does his duty as he would that they should do to him, And helps a comrade in the slough, To turn him from the mire.

Here's to the man who, checked, re-buffed, despairs not, neither grieves; Who pulls himself together, fights, and finally achieves; Who, be he ever so hardy pressed, can make light of his woes; Who does his duty, come what may, nor thinks to pick and choose.

Here's to the man whose hours are full, yet still has time and will To bring to burdened, broken hearts a joyous, hopeful thrill; Who, battling hard all day himself, helps weaker folks along, And ever takes the cause of right and fights against the wrong.

Here's to the man who, knowing he is doing what seems right, stays not in the state that he laid in someone else's sight, But stands fast by his principles, to bribery says "No!" With head erect he wins respect, this man of "Push and Go."

BETTING—A FOOL'S ARGUMENT
Mr. K—, a strong partisan, felt so sure of the result of a November election in one of the states that he laid considerable wager upon it—a fool's argument, by the way—and lost. Still he gave no outward sign of disappointment until a few days before Thanksgiving.

Coming home one evening, he said to his wife: "Nancy, have you made any arrangements for the Thanksgiving dinner?" "Yes," she replied. "I have ordered a turkey."

"Well," he rejoined, "suppose you countermand that order. We can go along with a chicken or two this year. I'd be content to eat the poorest goose in the market—only it would make me feel as if I were a cannibal."

From which it would seem that the experience, although costly, had not been without profit.

RURAL BARBASM
A farm hand who had worked hard in the fields from dawn until dark one day after day, and had been obliged to finish his chores by lantern light, went to the farmer at the end of the month and said: "You promised me a steady job of work."

"Well, haven't you got one?" was the astonished reply.

"No," he answered, "there are three or four hours every night when I don't have anything to do except to feed by hand a few sheep."

SHODDY BOOTS
Boots and shoes in England were subject to a very considerable fall in prices before the war. This was partly owing to the use of machinery, partly to employment of lads where men used to do the work, partly to the use of what was formerly waste material, and partly to sheer forgery and trickery. Men's lace boots are made of leather, too, and to look at them you might think it genuine.

The truth is, however, the uppers are made of what is known as "centre spits," and the soles are an artificial compound of leather waste. The "centre spits" are very ingenious forms of shoddy. Good, honest skins are cunningly split into three thicknesses. The centre sheet is soft and spongy and has no natural grain upon it. But this defect in its appearance is supplied by a process of printing which produces a surface "grain" and makes it to the inexperienced eye, just like ordinary leather. It is then made up into boots that give every promise of good service, a promise to the eye, to parody Macbeth—"pretty certainly destined to be broken to the hope."—Chambers' Journal.

EXPERIENCED INVALID
An old grumbler had plenty of money, a splendid house, and the best of everything, including diseases. All the latest complaints were his, but no doctor seemed to be able to help him. He changed his physician again and again, and finally decided to give a trial to a young fellow who had just started to practice. He was telling the doctor what he thought was the trouble with him when the doctor ventured to disagree with the diagnosis.

"I hardly sounds to me like tuberculosis," "But allow me—" "You see, the symptoms of tuberculosis—" "Look here young man—" "I repeat that you're wrong." "I beg your pardon," said the patient, in a haughty way. "It isn't a young doctor like you to disagree with an experienced invalid like me. I have had six years of illness, and you're only a learner."

AGRICULTURE THE WINSTAY OF THE NATION

The United States and Canada
Have a Great Responsibility.

This is the day when the farmer as his landings. The time was when he was dubbed the "farmer" the "breadwinner," and in a "farmer" never have been called derisive, but ill there was in it the infection that been an insurmountable barrier for his competitors to overcome. In the last few years the yields of wheat and oats per acre have surprised the agricultural world. As much as fifty bushels of wheat per acre, and even more on some farms, while others have furnished affidavits showing over fifty bushels of wheat per acre, and oats as high as one hundred and twenty bushels per acre. One reputable farmer makes affidavit to a crop return of over fifty-four thousand bushels of wheat from a thousand acres. While this is rather the exception than the rule, these yields serve to illustrate the fertility of the soil and the possibilities of the country, when good farming methods are adopted. Western Canada is well equipped to produce wheat being "The World's natural bread basket."—Advertisement.

Explosive for Anti-Aircraft Gun Compartments Set to Lot Good at Different Intervals.

A kind-faced Britisher, not satisfied with having one try at a Zeppelin or an airplane with each shot from the gun, has devised a new and patented "progressively exploding shell" which has three separate compartments, arranged to burst at different intervals of time after firing. Monthly. If the first explosion is too early the second or the third may be expected to follow. The second charge gives off a different colored light for the information of the gunner, who knows the time intervals between the explosions, and by which the first compartment is set to burst. By comparing the position of the light with the position of the position of the alrship, the gunner corrects his range.

This performance is made possible by having three separate and heavy compartments, each with its load of shrapnel and bursting charge. The compartments are separated by fuse passage extending from one to

Losses of sailing-vessels in the Newfoundland trade through German raiders and submarines since the war started have been more than made up by building within the colony and the fact that the sailing fleet is a responsive. The Newfoundland sailing fleet now numbers 125 vessels, and 17 more are on the stocks, the total of 142 making the largest locally owned sailing fleet in the world. The exclusive of boats used only in the island trade. The fleet, made up of and all other farm produce on a similar basis, grown and produced on land available from $15 to $40 per acre and a return of 40 per cent despite the fact that the land is taken and sold at a higher value than it was when it was taken, in many cases an annual return even higher than 100 per cent on the return on the investment. Such is the present day condition in Western Canada. How long it will last, no one can foretell. Prices for farm produce will likely remain high for many years. Certainly, the farmer will be able to make a good thing out of this expansion of the

MINING FOR BIRDSHOT

Tons of Lead Recovered From Ground at Gun Clubs

Did you ever stop to consider what becomes of all the lead fired from the shells of trap-shooters' guns? Of course you know trap-shooters have the same hunting grounds week in and week out. Therefore, the constant shooting over practically the same territory makes lead mines, for whether the aim is good or bad, the lead finally falls to the ground. Farsighted contractors have seen the business possibilities in "getting after" this mining business. At prominent clubs, where many squads shoot every week, it is only a matter of a few years when it is profitable for the mining business. About three years ago the ground in front of the traps at the DuPont Gun Club was "mined," and a pile of lead of twenty-three tons was the result.

A portion of the grounds of a club at Columbus, Ohio, was put through the "sieve" and twenty-six tons resulted. A year ago a second trip was made to the DuPont Club, at Wilmington, Del., and results equal to the first attempt were obtained. Other club grounds are now undergoing mining treatments. The methods of securing this lead are simple. Plots of ground about three by five feet are skinned about one and a half inches deep. This top soil is then put in piles and allowed to stand for two or three days until it dries. It is then put into a large, coarse cylinder sieve, which gets rid of the earth containing no lead. Then it is put through a fine sieve and more dirt is removed. If the earth sticks, several screenings are necessary until only the lead remains. Then the remainder of the shooting territory is handled in the same manner. On grounds like the DuPont Club it takes about sixty pounds of earth to give off one pound of shot.—New York Evening Post.

POWER DERIVED FROM VOLCANO'S HEAT AT THE WALNUT

The utilization of the heat of a volcano for generating power is described in the Popular Mechanics by Lewis R. Freeman, who writes as follows:

"It was while going over one of the great munition plants near the west coast of Italy early in the war that the manager called my attention to the fact that the machinery of the three newest units was entirely electrically driven.

"The power for each of the three units has a different origin," he said, "and here, for the first time in history, you may see working, almost side by side, machines driven by electricity generated from a steam plant, by electricity generated from water power, and by electricity generated from the heat of the earth. It is the latter which runs the newest unit, and the supply of it, though it comes from a source a hundred miles away, is capable of being increased to such an extent that we contemplate drawing on it for any extensions we may be called upon make to our plant in the future. It is a strange contrast, is it not, the latent power of Alpine snows sending a current to run the plant on our right, and the latent power of some sputtering hot springs sending a current to run the one on our left?"

"This was the first occasion on which I heard of a practical system for the generation of power from the heat of the earth, though I seemed to recall an article or interview, published some years previously, in which a distinguished American engineer had suggested that the inexhaustible heat reservoirs of the earth might be tapped by driving a bore the size of a wagon wheel through—or at least a great distance into—the outer crust. The plan was no more than a dream, and nothing, so far as I ever heard, has come of it. But some Italian engineers, with the direct practicality and common sense, of which the world is now having so remarkable an example in the war organization of their country, instead of wasting their time in boring into the solar heat, simply sought out a place where the solar heat had bored its way out to them—nothing more or less than just such a mineral hot-springs area as one encounters in so many parts of Europe, America, and other parts of the world.

Here they carried out a series of exhaustive experiments in harnessing the steam which had been blowing to waste for so many centuries, and the same rare talent of inventiveness which enabled one Italian to solve the forerunning problems in long-distance transmission, and another to send the first wireless messages, again achieved ultimate and complete success. Some time before the outbreak of the war the principles of the exploitation had been worked out, so that when once Italy had thrown her weight into the great struggle and an unprecedented demand for power for munition manufacture arose, all that remained to do was to apply those principles; to do commercially what had been proved feasible by experiment."

PECULIAR PLANTS

A very odd plant, in the government botanical garden at Washington, is the so-called "barber plant." It comes from the Orient, and is not used, as its name might imply, to help the barbers, but rather to their detriment, since it is rubbed on the face to keep the beard from growing.

It is not supposed to have any effect on a beard that is already rooted, but merely to act as a preventive, boys employing it to keep the hair from getting a start on their face. It is also employed by some Oriental people who desire to keep parts of their heads free from hair, as a matter of fashion.

Also found in the botanical garden is the "cruel plant," which is so designated because it catches butterflies and kills them for sheer sport. Its flowers attract the poor little flutterer by the honey it offers, and when the victim lights upon it, it grabs the butterfly by the head, and holds it fast until the captive dies. Then the flower drops it on the ground, and lies in wait for a fresh unfortunate.

A curious-looking tree, from the Isthmus of Panama, bears a round red fruit as big as an apple, which has this remarkable faculty, that its juice, rubbed on tough beef or chicken, makes the meat tender by the chemical power it possesses to separate the flesh fibre.

One is interested to observe in the botanical greenhouse three kinds of plants that have real consumption of the lungs—the leaves, of course, being the lungs of a plant. The disease is manifested by the turning of the leaves from green to white, the affection gradually spreading from one spot until when a leaf is all white, it is just about to die.

Cruelly enough, as it would seem, the gardeners only try to perpetuate the disease for the sake of those varieties that are too healthy being thrown away.

Two old women were standing arguing at the corner of the street. Words almost came to blows, and still the controversy went on, until they were both out of breath. "Ah! tell me what it is," shouted one of the disputants, to the amusement of the crowd; "for that mean that if thou hadst th' measles thou waddent part wi' a spot!"

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT AT THE WALNUT

Whether he acts and sings in a modern play garbed in modern clothes or a typical old-fashioned Irish romance, dressed in the brilliant costume of a hundred years ago, Chauncey Olcott is Chauncey Olcott with all of his well known charm and magnetism.

This was ably demonstrated by a crowded house of enthusiastic theatre-goers at the Walnut Street Theatre on Christmas day at the opening of his new play "Once Upon a Time," by Rachel Crothers.

"Once Upon a Time" is a play in which the smiles come through the tears. Rachel Crothers knows where the heart strings are and how to play upon them. It is rarely that an author has the faculty to bring the smiles through the tears as Miss Crothers has done in this new play. Atmosphere and situations are beautifully blended with the trials and joys of her lovable character creations.

Gohan and Harris, under whose direction Mr. Olcott will make his tour this season have provided a most complete and adequate scenic investiture and have adhered most rigorously to all of the detail requirements. The play was staged under the personal direction of the author. The cast includes such well-known people as Edward Fielding, Elmer Grandin, George Brennan, Ethel Wilson, Jessie Ralph, Elsie Lyding and a wonderfully clever child, Bonnie Marie.

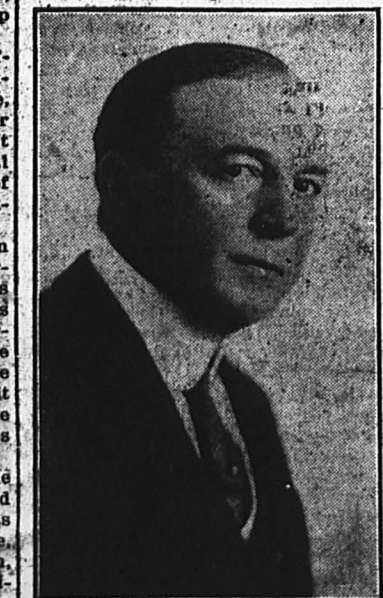

During the course of the play Mr. Olcott sings four new songs all of which made an immediate hit at the opening performance. They are: "Come Back to Ireland and Me," "My Irish Song of Songs," "My Little Colleen, Do You Believe in Fairies" and "Once Upon a Time."

YULETIDE AT THE BROAD

A new play from the pens of two of the keenest observers and depictees of American life, Booth Tarkington and Julian Street, will be the New Year week's attraction at the Broad Street Theatre, after a four months' stay at the Gayety Theatre in New York. It is called "The Country Cousin," and its star is none other than Alexandra Carlisle, who is surrounded by a distinguished company of players.

Both Mr. Tarkington and Mr. Street are frank in asserting that they have attempted to project upon the stage in their new play a young woman who will typify the real American girl. The Messrs. Tarkington and Street have gone to a small town to find the type who will best represent the average American girl. The town is in Ohio, and the girl is "born and bred" there.

This young woman is shown first in her "home town" and an Eastern environment. The play is a frank attempt to contrast the average small town American girl with her pleasure-seeking and fashion-crazy sister in the large cities on the Atlantic seaboard to the decided advantage of the young person from the Middle West. The central idea of the play has been developed with racy humor which is so characteristic of the writings of both authors.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT

In "Once Upon a Time," a Story in Four Chapters, by Rachel Crothers.

A countryman journeyed to London to visit some relatives and to see the sights. Fascinated by the Metropolis, he remained until patience on the part of his hosts, a married couple, had ceased to be a virtue.

Too polite to openly remonstrate, they both threw out many hints, but all in vain. "Don't you think, my dear fellow," remarked the husband one day, "that your wife and children must miss you?"

"No doubt. Thanks for the suggestion; I'll send for them."

"He never had but one genuine case in his life," said a lawyer of a rival, "and that was when he prosecuted his studies."

MEN ONLY ALLOWED AT SWISS FUNERALS
The funeral customs of the Swiss are very peculiar. At the death of a person the family inserts a formal black-edged announcement in the papers, asking for sympathy, and stating that the "mourning urn" will be exhibited during certain hours on a special day. In front of the house where the person died there is placed a little black table covered with black cloth on which stands a black jar. Into this the friends of the family drop little black margined visiting cards, sometimes with a few words of sympathy on them. The urn is put on the table on the day of the funeral. Only men ever go to the churchyard, and they generally follow the hearse on foot.
PURE DEDUCTION
An old farmer and his wife drove to market one day. It had been a very wet day, and large pools of water had formed in the roadway between the farm and the town. On the return journey he met an old friend. "And how are you to-day?" was the friendly greeting. "Oh, very well, thank you!" answered the farmer. "How is the missus?" continued the friend. "Fine, fine," answered the farmer. "She's behind there"—jerking his thumb toward the back seat. "She's not there!" said the astonished friend. The old farmer turned and looked over his shoulder. Then he coolly replied: "Hump! That would be the splash, then!"—London News.
