Summer is on the wane. In a fortnight people will be inquiring about Fall overcoats and wraps at night. Take it all in, all, it has been a good summer for the public health.

Local politics will soon be looking up. The bosses will soon change their slate-making resorts from the seashore to some hotel nearer home, and the underlings will proceed to about as they are bidden. Look out for official front page notices in the local organs. The bosses make up a slate and then launch their candidate's boom through the columns of their organs, and the dear people never catch on.

If workingmen would listen and heed their own native common sense more, and listen less to agitators who make their living out of dissensions and strikes, there would be less poverty and suffering in the world than there is at present, and if corporations, by the same rule, would place in authority those who have cause to realize the trials of their workmen, they would pay much larger dividends and have fewer strikes. You cannot learn the principles of successful railroad management in college any more than you can learn the newspaper business on a farm.

MRS. DAVIS' LETTER.

EDINBURGH, AUG. 18, 1897.

MY DEAR MR. SLEEPER—

We leave by steamer Rotterdam for Edinburgh by way of the North Sea, and sitting here on the deck of this steamer, I understand now as I never did before how the London people are fed, all along this beautiful harbor are freighters from London, and squeezed in beside them are the little market boats from Holland, laden with cheese, butter, poultry, condensed milk.

We arrived in Edinburgh just in the grey of the morning and proceeded at once to our hotel, the Waverley, one of a series to be found running through Scotland and Ireland, endowed by the late Robert Cranston, which are now declaring large dividends for their originators, being determined that the weary traveler should find a resting place free from the temptation of strong drink. The maids here say they can't remember an American lady that they first order a fire then a waiter.

I want to tell all the good friends at home, who sometimes may weary in the good work, be not discouraged, all over the land one sees in letters of gold the beautiful sign-boards of the women's and men's Christian Associations. One in Dublin alone cost one hundred thousand dollars. I visited here, Forthbridge the place, if you remember, where the bridge with its carload of living freight went down and never after heard from, and as I gazed upon the new one I wished the architect who modeled our bridge across the Delaware could have had my place and see high masted boats with sails unfurled, swift steamers passing in and out, in only bowing the common law of keeping to the right. On the top of this bridge, trains passing, no death trap but safe as a country road.

From here we drove to Roslyn by way of the Queen's Drive and how I wish the dear friends home, who believe in tree-planting by birds, and their care to chance, could see this road edged with its stately rows of elms.

I was invited by my friend Mrs. Cranston to accompany her on a mission of mercy, and before leaving the clothes with the poor, it is the law of the city that they shall be stamped so they cannot be exchanged for whiskey, as the Scotch Highland poor are so fond of this drink and not being properly fed do not seem strong enough to resist the temptation. With a guide and a carriage, and beside the person who from motives of economy or love of walking attempts going on foot, for it is an experience which will last a life-time: the moment one stops, they are surrounded by a crowd of women and children who are asking for alms, but simply demand them.

Passing through a door-way in which was hung a curtain we came upon a small room, with rough hewn walls, white washed and fairly clean, with smoke going out in a hole cut in the cliff over the door, no window, a dresser on which were some old cooking utensils and broken crockery, in one corner of this room was a low stool, the floor pebbled off by a rope, from the little children, laying there was the poor father dead, partially covered with an old blanket, in the corner at the wash tub was the mother. I said to her, "Dear woman how much assistance required of thee?" She answered, "Yes you know we cannot all be giving up the same thing." Coming into the shed used for a donkey and the pigs when they chose to come in, how they lived on this hillside, covered as it is principally by the leaves of the prickly pear, it is hard to understand, and their leaness shows that their existence is a precarious one.

With all the dirt there is a marvelous look of health among these people the men as a rule are tall and straight, women, stern, and children—simply swart on every side, but are dear little sturdy beggars, strong in mind and limb as evidenced by the way they kept pace with the carriage and giving tongue the whole time. Once in the open and I drew a long breath, and thanked my star that I was not among the poor of Scotland. At best they can merely call out a miserable existence, but at the same time are an interesting people, as unlike any poor I have seen in Europe.

And now we will pass to Ireland, the country I love, its people, its water, its trees and its grass, no wonder my children are never done talking about it. I have seen more birds here than all other countries since I left home. The first sight of Dublin, from one steamer, is sure to fascinate.

The weather was bright and sun shining with a clear blue sky, and Dublin, said to be the "Eye of Ireland" is set deep in its Bay, on whose sheltered waters at all times one can see a beautiful display of craft of all kinds, steam launches, fishing boats, pleasure yachts, row boats and steamers.

It is the chief seat of the manufacture of poplin, flannel, and one need not be of his brewer's and distiller, they are at home in Dublin, one plant alone, the Guinness covers fifty acres of ground. One of the first objects that meets the eye as one lands, and touches strongly of the soil, is the Irish outside car.

Nothing indeed can be better suited for the purpose of making a rapid survey of the city than these vehicles: the proper fares are very moderate, but the carmen are notorious for their rancorous and are not above asking an extra sixpence for their superior accommodations offered. The main streets are full of animated and interesting pictures, but the visitor is apt to be less pleasantly impressed with the slums and back alleys, into which the poorer class from the provinces are crowded and many a wretched scene of gaunt misery confronts the passer by, and exerts one's sympathy. There are many beautiful charities in Dublin, but how my heart goes out to those dear old fathers and mothers who have grown old, whose children are thousands of miles away, whose labor has been taken from them to supply untold extravagance, whose savings are stopped throw jewels are being guarded which, if they were sold and money returned to its rightful sources, would house and home them till the end.

Never have I appreciated the change called death, the sweet messenger which will at last take them to their Heavenly rest. We will now away to the gap of Dunlois; it is a rugged mountain pass and in the course one whisks the Black Lough, dear to all poor hearts, as the Lough into which St. Patrick threw the last of the Irish snakes.

A short drive from Cork and we stop at Blarney Castle, beautifully situated among trees, and banks and so world-wide famous for its kissing stone.

And now we leave Cork and bear down toward Queenstown. In all the corridors of the hotel one hears the subject of the sea sickness in all its various phases discussed, it was largely solved for me by a maid. I asked her why she wasn't sea-sick when she promptly answered because I should be discharged. My friends upon going upon a steamer, have something to do and if not for yourself do something for the steamer.

But on the sickness which is overwhelming is that which came to me in St. Giles Cathedral, in Edinburgh, when looking up in the Choir stalls I saw the Highland Grey's brass band of thirty pieces, like a crash of thunder come through this church and then the sweet melody fell upon the ear, and you could distinguish the sweet words of the hymn so familiar to us all.

"Lead Kindly Light for I am far from home."

I. E. Davis.

J." on the stave just below the rim, in Roman letters 1 inch long and 1/2 inch wide. POUL TIPS.

BE HONORABLE, BOYS.

Boys and young men sometimes start out in life with the idea that one's success depends upon sharpness and chicanery. They imagine if a man is always able to get the best of a bargain, no matter by what deceit and misrepresentation he carries this trick, that is propriety. That is a great mistake. Enduring prosperity cannot be founded on cunning and dishonesty. The tricky and deceitful man is sure to fall a victim, sooner or later, to the forces which are forever working against him. His house is built upon the sand, and its foundation will be certain to give way. Young people cannot give these truths to much weight.—Christian Work.

CARELESSNESS.

It is unsafe for a farmer to be careless if there are boys on the farm they will be careless, too, and misplaced tools and neglected work, especially on a small place, may easily shift the scale from profit to loss. Have a place for everything, and see that everything is put in its place. A hoe left in the field and allowed to rust may not amount to much, but a number of hoes, and a number of other tools, especially if they include some of the more complicated and expensive farm machines, often add up a bill that is formidable.

Outside of labor, tools and fertilizers are the two big items of expense; but while tools are levers for producing greater profit, and should in no case be reduced, the former could usually be cut in half by judicious care. It is surprising how long tools made to last, and how quickly they may be destroyed. It is not service that is to be feared, but rust. Three or four weeks of neglect could destroy the best hoe, which as many years of hard service would only wear to a keener edge.

SPECIAL ELECTION.

The jockey is about the only citizen of New Jersey who seems to be mindful of the special election to be held in a month at which time the fate of the proposed Constitutional amendments is to be decided. He has a special interest in that one of the three proposed changes in the State charter which forbids the passage by the Legislature of any act legalizing or countenancing gambling in any shape. The act in spite of the prompt activity of the jockeys and of the liberal sentiment elsewhere, the anti-amendment advocates will not be allowed to have it all their own way. The State Anti-Gambling Association, of which the Rev. Dr. Kempshall, of Elizabeth, is the head, is certain to organize a strong church movement in favor of the amendment adoption. As soon as the summer vacations shall have ended the work will be entered upon, and two Sundays prior to the day fixed for the election the duty of voting for the amendment will be the topic for exhortation in most of the pulpits of the State.

DON'T BE WASTEFUL.

There is an old, tried and true saying: "Wicked wastes make woeful wants." Wanton waste and destruction is as sure to bring us to want, sooner or later, as the two would make four. To guard against such things we must take care of the little things that go to make up the affairs of life.

First, we must not waste time. Life is short, and every minute is worth money, it represents so much capital. One of the worst habits a man, boy, or woman can fall into is wasting time. No truer words were ever spoken than when Cratin said: "Lost time is never found again." It would have conveyed the same idea had he used the word "wasted" instead of "lost."

A noted writer in speaking of time says: "Your time is not your own, it belongs to God, to religion, and to mankind." If our boys could only be made to see the necessity of devoting every spare moment in acquiring knowledge, how much they would benefit thereby. Time wasted in the school-room, the workshop or the office can never be recalled, it is wasted and gone forever. We do not mean that it shall be all work, and no enjoyment, for there is time for everything—a time to work, play, eat, and sleep, to laugh, cry, study and think.

Don't waste money. It is the easiest thing in the world to spend money, but it takes hard, constant labor to earn it. Save the pennies and nickels, and the dimes and dollars will take care of themselves. A penny is of little value in itself, but by saving, they soon amount to dollars.

Don't waste your health. One of the greatest blessings we can enjoy is a sound, healthy brain and body. Though health may be enjoyed without gratitude, it can not be sported without loss, it is regained by courage. When we violate the laws of nature, we must suffer the consequences. When we speak of violating the laws of nature we mean in a general way anything that is contrary to the laws of health, such as going dirty and filthy, using tobacco and alcohol, smoking cigarettes, staying out late at night, and not giving our brain and bodies the requisite amount of rest.

Now, boys, let us remember not to waste our time, money or health, for if we do, we may look for an amount of suffering in later years.—Louisville Item.

DeVos, the weather prophet, says September will be a continuation of electrical disturbances, storms, cyclones and gales.

VEXATIOUS.

What wondrous days indeed are these
When science shows a light
On any pathway that you please,
That you may turn right
Yet life is filled with terrors new.
The hours grow dull and long.
For everything you care to do,
The doctor says, is wrong.
Who tries to warble in a throat
Lost words attack his throat.
The doctor's voice must be hid,
That he may never speak a word.
Who tries to be a doctor complete
Is tempted by the wrong.
But he who flows to any note
The doctor says it's wrong.

You show the water, sparkling fair
Let few look there disguised.
You must be a doctor unless the air
Has been well analyzed.
Think how you turn, and your work
With an affection strong.
To kiss your lady. But you don't.
The doctor says it's wrong.
—Washington Star.

HOW HE WON HER.

The poor tutor was alone with her; and though it was in the days when men fought hard battles even against their own kinsman, if they so thought it was for the right, his heart throbbed just as the tutor's heart might throb today, with the difference that he had not learned to count his beats, as our enamored youth, 200 years wiser, have learned to do, in a self-controlled manner eminently conducive to the steady-tying of that obstreperous organ.

What mattered the great insurrection, the cruelties of Judge Jeffries, and a fugitive patron with a price upon his head, when love had sought shelter in his heart, and he to whom he had built a shrine was just as far away from him as the width of the table.

Of what consequence that she was the Lady Gertrude, the daughter of a noble conspirator, and he but a tutor without land or wealth. So he continued his story, looking at a book as if he were reading therefrom.

"And the poor man loved the rich lady, and he dared not tell her of his love lest she should scorn him."

"Then surely he was fearful at a nothing, which methinks he was a coward, Master Humphrey."

"A coward, if I were cowardly to fear the anger of his lady—"

"Why should he expect such anger?"

"He had naught to offer her but his love."

"You are this man, convey my sympathies to the lady!"

Now the tutor rose in wrath, and would have gone his way, for without doubt his mistress was making sport of him; but the sound of faint footsteps behind the paneled wall arrested his attention, and he stood still, considering whether 'twere best to go or stay.

"It is my father!" cried the girl, aware that she alone knew the secret passage.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Our most harrowing expectations generally die in the hatching.
RAM'S HORN.

The local newspaper should be found in every home. Every child should be taught to appreciate it as a stepping stone to intelligence not contained in books.

The more the Klondike situation is studied the stronger is the impression that the coming winter will be one of famine and sickness at the mines. A man turned back this fall is a man in luck.

Don't get pig-headed, my friend. This world can get along without you just as well as it gets along with you. If taken suddenly out of it, your relatives and friends may mourn for a time, but the world—bless you—she will never miss a cog, and the sun will rise and set after your death the same as it did the day before your death.

If sparrows were red birds they would be speedily exterminated, but not being of the game order, and more over, declared to be hurtful pests, and nuisances, none of our sportsmen care to waste powder and shot upon them. One of these days they will have so multiplied that as a matter of self-protection a general war will have to be declared against them.

When Prof. Andree departed in his balloon from Spitzenbergen two months ago he thought it possible to reach and cross the pole in three or four days. Sixty days have passed and no trace of him has been obtained. His balloon was a large object, but no one has caught a glimpse of it. Not one of his carrier pigeons has returned. He may have sealed messages in bottles and sent them adrift in the slight hope that they would come back. His balloon may have been dragged in the sea or settled down in some polar waste where escape was impossible. There is still a chance that Andree survives, but it is hardly one in a hundred.

ANTI-GAMBLING AMENDMENT.

The following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of New Jersey having been passed by two consecutive Legislatures of this State, is now submitted to the people for adoption or rejection:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION, RELATING TO LOTTERIES AND GAMBLING.

Amend Paragraph 2 of Section VII of Article IV, so as to read as follows:

2. No lottery shall be authorized by the Legislature or otherwise in this State; and no ticket in any lottery shall be bought or sold within this State, nor shall pool-selling, book-making or gambling of any kind be authorized or allowed within this State, nor shall any gambling device, practice or game of chance now prohibited by law be legalized, or the penalty or punishment now provided therefor be in any way diminished.

The submission of this amendment is the outcome of a determined purpose and a prolonged effort on the part of New Jersey to rid the State forever of the evils of gambling upon race tracks, which have so disgraced it in the past. If this amendment receives, at the approaching election, a majority of the votes cast, this purpose will be most effectually accomplished. If it is defeated, not only will all thus far gained be lost, but the reactionary effect of such defeat will surely magnify. The possibility of such defeat exists not in the fact that a majority of the voters of New Jersey are in favor of restoring race-track gambling, but in the apathy and over-confidence of the friends of the amendment. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that every friend of this amendment who has a vote to cast should realize his personal responsibility in this matter, so that he shall be spared in case of its defeat a vain regret for having neglected to do his duty.

Rest assured, you who are in sympathy with this effort to secure a great and permanent reform, that the owners of the race tracks and the gamblers—being brought down to the last ditch in the long battle—will not surrender without a severe—although it may be a hidden—effort to compass the defeat of this amendment. They have the incentive of self-interest, the control of large funds, and, to a certain extent, political influence.

The State Citizens' League makes, therefore, this its final appeal to the citizens of New Jersey—men and women—to arouse anew their former interests in this great reform; to give heart and hand and voice to the work of getting out a strong vote, and over and above all we earnestly entreat every qualified voter who believes that race-track gambling is essentially, and has proven itself to be, a curse to our fair Commonwealth; not to fail to cast his ballot for the above amendment on the 28th day of this month. We are confident that if this shall be done a great and glorious victory awaits our cause.

EVERARD KIMBALL,
President State Citizens' League,
Dated Elizabeth, N. J., Sep. 10, 1897.

The P. R. R. has been using oil on all of its crossing for the purpose of laying the dust. This experience has been tried on some of the southern roads, and has proved so beneficial that it will probably come in general use on all roads, not only on the crossings but the whole road bed, especially where there is much passenger traffic. If oil will lay the dust on the railroad bed, why would it not be of some service on our stone roads? It would be a good time to experiment on a short piece and ascertain whether it would be of any benefit in preserving the road bed during dry weather such as we have had for sometime.

BOURNE PROCEEDINGS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council was held at the fire-house on Thursday evening, September 9th. In the absence of Mayor Stoughton, F. G. Brown, President of Council, took the chair. Councilmen Hardman and Thomas also were absent.

The Highway Committee reported as follows: Your committee wish to call your attention to the fact that in the ordinance passed at our last meeting, and after having notice with a copy of said ordinance served on them, Samuel Rudderow and Samuel Slim, acting for the Heulings estate, have laid sidewalks of material other than that provided for in the ordinance, and recommend that these actions be made a matter of record on our minutes. A petition from Robert Garwood and Mrs. Baker has had your committee's attention and no action was taken upon same because we were requested not to act. Report accepted.
The Light Committee reported having purchased the lamps and posts ordered by previous meeting.
An ordinance to prevent and regulate excavations of streets and public places passed first reading and was referred to the Highway Committee.
Gen'l James made the following motion which was approved:
"Moved, that the Highway Committee be authorized to issue a circular notifying the citizens that, while Council has no desire to enter upon the business of laying pavements, it is prepared to do so if citizens will notify Clerk of Council, Chas. S. Walnut, that it is their wish to have the work done for them—notice to be given to the clerk on or before the 18th inst.
If Council undertakes the work it will be placed under the care and supervision of the Borough Engineer, and it will expect to have better, cheaper and more uniform work done than if executed by property owners themselves, and citizens may avail of the privilege of paying for the work in five annual installments, to be collected with their taxes."

SPECIAL MEETING.

A special meeting of the Borough Council was held on Wednesday evening, at the call of the Mayor, to consider the grading of Fourth street and Lippincott avenue. Civil engineer Henry Haines was present and explained the grade map. He showed that Lippincott avenue would need to be cut nearly a foot, and Fourth street from Penn to Linden, on an average of six inches. The cost was estimated between $400 and $500. After the discussion General James moved that the necessary work done according to grade by the Highway Committee, by contract, as soon as possible and the surplus dirt be placed as directed by the Highway Committee, which was unanimously agreed to.

Tours to the South via Pennsylvania Railroad.

Two very attractive early autumn tours will be run by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, leaving New York and Philadelphia September 28 and October 12. It is hardly necessary to say that these outings are planned with the utmost care, and all arrangements are adjusted so as to afford the best possible means of visiting each place to the best advantage.
The tours each cover a period of eleven days and include the battle field of Gettysburg, picturesque Blue Mountains, Lary of Pennsylvania, the beautiful Potomac, the cities of Richmond and Washington and Mt. Vernon.

Inter-State Fair at Trenton, September 27, 28, 29, 30, and October 1.

The great Inter-State Fair at Trenton grows more extensive and important each year, and the exhibition to be held on September 27, 28, 29, 30, and October 1 promises to be unusually comprehensive and attractive. Every department will be replete with interesting and instructive displays. The blooded stock exhibit will be particularly fine, and the daily program of races contains the most excellent and valuable entertainments of all kinds will be presented. The large pines offered in the manifold exhibits and contests insure annual efforts in the endeavor to prove superiority in the various departments.
The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, as its yearly custom, will sell excursion tickets on this occasion at greatly reduced rates from stations within a wide radius, and special trains over the New York and Belvidere and Amboy Divisions will be run through the grounds. The local company run direct to the Fair Grounds, thus avoiding the street car transfer, and are the only ones for three miles. The management of the Fair has put forth extraordinary efforts to make this year's exhibition the greatest ever given.

The passage of the constitutional amendments is a question in which the moral element of the State is deeply interested, and the gambling element should not be permitted to carry their point because the indifference of the people. The stand which the state has already taken on this question should be maintained, and if the moral people will take proper interest in the matter, attend the polls and vote, there should be no doubt of the result.

TEACHERS' MEETING.

The first regular monthly meeting of the Burlington County Teachers Association for the present school year was held in the high school building, Mount Holly, last Saturday. The County Superintendent made a brief address in the course of which he referred to the course of study which he had prepared for the public schools of the county. He had prepared it to cover a period of eight years of study and he had been guided in the preparation by consulting and comparing the published course of study of a large number of the leading schools of our country. He does not claim perfection as the result of his work, and he is quite sure that he will be willing to receive any criticisms made in the right spirit. Every public school teacher in the county will receive a printed copy of the "Course" and will be expected to work as near as possible to its requirements.
In order to secure a larger attendance at the meetings of the association it was ordered that monthly notices giving the subject to be considered at the meeting be sent to every teacher.
The matter of laying out the work for the present school year was next considered. In view of the state of the treasury it was not thought best to continue with the very excellent though somewhat expensive lectures of last year. One teacher was strongly in favor of dispensing with outside aid entirely, while others were quite confident that having lecturers from outside the county would produce better results. A compromise was finally made and subjects decided on. Literature, history of education, grammar and algebra were the studies selected, and the county superintendent was requested to secure competent instructors.
It was decided that the special order for the October meeting be made the consideration of the questions used at the October examination.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only remedy for catarrh, being a constitutional treatment, acting directly upon blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution, and assisting nature in doing its work. HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It cures inability to hold urine and scaling pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention the NEWS and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Hinghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.
